

19197/A Nova 17

By Halliannel Cronch ander the poundaryon of R[school] B[with]

Donator Are signal

myo 8

38920 arniont the second

WONDERFUL

PRODIGIES

OF

Judgment and Mercy, Ge.

Devils of leveral Shapes, in a Nobleman's-House Germany. p. 19.

PRODIGIES

Judgment and Mercy:

Discovered in near

Three Hundred Memorable Histories,

Containing,

I. Dreadful Judgments upon Atheifts, Perjured Perfons, Blafphe mers, Swearers, Curfers and Scoffers.

II. The milerable Ends of divers Magicians, Witches, Conjurers &c. with feveral firange Apparitions

III. Remarkable Prefages of approaching Death, and of Appeals to Divine Justice,

IV. The wicked Lives, and world Deaths, of wretched Popes, Apostates, and desperate Persecutors.

V. Fearful Judgments upon cruel Tyrants, Murderers, Ge, with the wonderful discovery of Murders

VI. Admirable Deliverances from Imminent Dangers, and Deplorable Diffresses at Sea and Land.

VII. Divine Goodness to Penitents, with the dying Thoughts of several Famous Men concerning a Future State after this Life;

Collected from Antient and Modern Authors. And Imbellished with Pictures.

By R. B.

The Sixth Edition.

LONDON, Printed for Nath. Crouch at the Bell over-against Grocers Alley in the Poultrey near Che apfide. 1707.

TOTHE

READER

HIS small Trast cannot be thought unseasonable this Age wherein Atheism and Impiety so en abound. And as the Holy Scriptures do sufficiently cover the Wonderful Judgments of the Almight we prophane and impenitent Sinners in former Ages, for Divine Justice hath not left it self without Witness all times since, of the like severe Vengeance against the and fince Examples commonly prevail more than P cepts, this little Collection may by the Bleffing of He ven, prevail upon some profligate Offenders, to forsa their evil ways, least they themselves be likewise ma Monuments of Gods Wrath and Displeasure: And as t Judgments, fo likewise the Mercies and Goodness of Go hath appeared towards those that put their trust in bil or have returned to him by ferious and hearty Repentance of which we have abundant instances both in Scriptu and History; and whereof I have likewise transcribe some few out of approved Historians, whose Names are as ded to the Relations, thereby to obtain Credit with th Reader, who may here find in a small manual, and so a small Price, what has been dispersed in several large Volumes: and so I hope will not be unacceptable to the World: Which is the desire and wish of

R. B.

CHAP. I.

Dreadful Judgments upon Atheists, Scoffers, Blasphemers, Swearers, Cursers, and Perjured Persons in several terrible Examples.

E scarcely read of any People so Barbarous, who by the Instinct of Nature have not believed a Deity; and the denving thereof was detestable, absurd, and strary to humane Reason among the antient Heathen, o reckoned it horrible Blasphemy. The Athenians ished Protagor's and burnt his Books, for feeming doubt of a Deity, Diagoras firnamed the Atheilt ng accused sted for fear of punishment; so they proned, That whoever kill'd him should have a Ta'ent er, in value 600 Crowns: How much then is State of Christendom to be lamented, which is gelly infected with this contagious Pestilence? And many impudent Atheifts are there, who deny the idence of God and the Immortality of the Sou!, t there is no Life to come and so live like Swine Brute Beifts, wallowing in Lust and Sensuality. let such mad and brutish Wretches know, that shall be convinced of their Foily when it is too And they may find by the following Listances, rere of undoubted Certainty, that Divine Juloth fometimes execute fevere Judgments on such World, and makes them Monuments of Vengeor deterring others, That they may hear and fear, no more so wickedly. Blatphemous Wretch drinking at an Inn, ask-Companions, ' Whether they thought Man was possessed with a Soul or no? Some replied, The Souls of Men were immortal, and that some after their release from the Body lived in Heaven, and others were condemned to Hell, as we are taught by the Prophets and Apostles : He swore, He did not believe the Soul did survive the Body, but that Heae ven and Hell were meer Fables, invented by the Priests to get money; and for his part, he would fell his Soul to any who would buy it. One of his Companions took up the Cup, and faid, Sell me thy Soul for this Cup of Wine, which he consented to, and drunk it off: Now the Devil was there in the Shape of a Man, who bought it again of the other Man at the fame price, and peremptorily demanded his Son! the whole Company affirming it was fit, fince he bought it, not knowing who it was that asked it: So on a fudden this Infernal Merchant laid hold on this wretched Sou-ISeller, and carried him into the Air before them all, and he was never feen more. Discipul. de

tem. Serm. 132.

II. Some years fince, Marlin a Scholar brought up in Cambridge, a scurrilous Poet, and Play-maker, giving the Reins to his Wit and Fancy, denied God and Jesus Christ, blasphemed the Trinity, and writ Books affirming our Saviour to be a Deceiver, Moses a Seducer of the People, the Holy Scriptures to be vain and idle Stories, and all Religion a politick Cheat and Device: But Heaven by an eminent Judgment, stopt the Mouth of this Blasphemer; for as he intended to have stabbed a perfor, whom he had Malice against, the other avoided the stroke, and catching hold of his wrift. he flabhed his own Dagger into his own Head, which wounded him so terribly, that he died soon after, Curfing and Blaspheming to the last Gasp, his last Breath passing out of his Body with an horrid Oath, to the terror of all that beheld him: And herein did Divine Juflice appear, that his own Hand that writ those Blasphemies, was made an Instrument to punish that Head and Brain, which had wickedly devised them. Beards TheatreIII. In 1527. A young Italian, effected brave and valiant in Arms, was to fight with another young Mancalled Forchebene; they went with a great Company without the Port St. Gall: being come hither, a friend to the former faid, God give you the Victory; the proud young Mananswered, How shall he chuse but give it me: They came to use their Weapons, and after many blows, Forchebene being the Instrument of God, gave him a thrust in the Mouth, that failining his Tongue to the Poll of his Neck where the Sword went thorow above the length of a span, he fell down dead, the Sword remaining in his Mouth: so that the Tongue which had so grievously offended, might endure punishment for so horrible a Sin. L. Remis confid.

IV. A Gentleman in Barkshire, of a great Estate, was an open contemner of Religion, a profest Atheist, and a Scorner of the Word and Sacraments; so that, beng Witness to the Baptizing of a Child, he would have it named Beelzebub. He was given to all Desauchery, keeping several Strumpets in his House, vithout shame : and so accustomed to Swearing, that e could fearce speak without an Oath. This miserable Man (or rather Brute) continued long in this dampable ourse of Life; but at last, Divine Vengeance sound in out, for going a Hunting with one of his Compaions, as they were discourfing of divers idle Stories, e fell on the Crupper of his Horfe backward, and was iken off stark dead, with his Tongue hanging out of is Mouth, and became a terrible Example of Gods affice against wicked Atheists. Beards Theatre.

V. Cluverius gives account, That in 1632, there lied in Muscovia, a Nobleman, by Office a gatherer of axes; by name Albertus Peroscius; who when poor en could not presently pay, used to destrain their attle, and drive them to his own home: Now this obleman being from home, lost all his unjust gains one night, for all his Cattle, both those he had tan by Violence, and what he had bought with his

A 2

Monies

Dreadsul Judgments upon Atheists

Money suddenly died: This wretched Man coming frome, was told by his Wise and Servants of this sear-sal Judgment of God, whereat he began to rave, and taking his Musket, shot it up against Heaven, breaking out into these blasphemous Speeches, Let him that killed my Cattle devour them; if thou wouldest not let me eat them, eat them thy self: Upon these furious barkings against God, there fell some drops of blood, and this wicked Man was turned into a black Dog, and howling ran to the dead Cattle, and began to feed upon them, and for ought I know (saith mine Author who wrote this story presently after) is yet feding on them. His Wise great with Child being t rrified with the strangeness of Gods Judgments, shortly after died. Clarks Exam. I. part.

VI. Simon Churmay in 1201. having fubtilly and acutely disputed about the Frinity, his friends perfuanted him to put it into writing, that so the Memorial of such excellent things might not be lost, but he proudly proudly brake forch into this Atheistical Speech, O Jesuie O Jesule, &c. O little Jesus, O little Jesus, how much have I confirmed and advanced thy Law in this · Question ? but if I had a mind to deal crosly, I know how with fronger Reasons and Arguments to weaken and disprove the same : Which was no sooner spoken but he was struck dumb, and became an Ideot, and a Mocking Stock to all that faw him. Mat. Paris.

Perjured Persons, Blasphemers, &c.

VII. One Michael a blasphemous Jew, as he was banquetting with his Companions fell to Blafpheming Christ and his Mother, boasting, That he had gotten the Victory over the Christians God, but as he went down stairs out of the Room, he fell and brake his Neck? Fincelius. Pirieres who writ a blafphephemous Book, openly macking at God and all Religion, fell into desperate despair, and though strict watch was kept about him, yet he killed himself. Theat. Hift. In 1502. Hermanus Biswick, a Grand Atheift, and a notable instrument of the Devil, affirmed, That the World never had a beginning as foolish Mofes dreamed; and that there were neither Angels, nor Devils, nor Hell, nor future Life, but that the Souls of Men perished with their Bodies, and that Lefus Christ was a Seducer of the People, and that the Faith of Christians and the Holy Scriptures were meer vanity. These Opinions full of Atheism he was so hardened in, that he avouched them to the Death, and was with his Books burnt in Holland. Theat. Hift.

VIII. A Rich man at Halberstadt in Germany, abounding in worldly happioess, gave up his whole Soul in delighting therein, so that he had no sense of Heaven or Religion; yea he Atheistically said, That if he might lead such a Life continually upon Earth, ne would not envy those that enjoyed Heaven, nor deire to exchange his condition with them: But it pleae i God to cut him off by Death, and fo the pleafures which he doated on, came to an end; after his death here were seen such Diabolical Apparitions in his louse that no Man durst inhabit it: For every day there appeared the form of this Epicure, fitting with a great many Guests, drinking, carousing and making good cheer, the Table being furnished seemingly with all manner of Delicacies, and attended on by fidlers, Trumpeters, &c. so that whatever he delighted in, while he was alive, was there daily to be seen, God permitting Satan to deceive mens sight by such appearances, to deter them from living in such a course of Impiety. Theat. Hist.

Dreadful Judgments upon Atheists,

IX. Martiques, Governor of Brittany in France, in the War against the Prorestants, persuaded them to yield to the King, fince their strong God had now for taken them, and scoffingly said, It was time for them to fing, Help us now O Lord, for it is time; but he foon found their strong God was able to defend them, and to confound the proud; he himself being flain in the Siege. Acts and Mon. Libanus a Sophistical Atheift being at Antioch, demanded blafphemoufly of a Religious Man, What the Carpenters Son did, & how he employed himself? Who by Divine Spirit replied. The Creator of the World, whom thou difdainfu'ly calleft the Carpenters Son, is making a Coffin for thee, to carry thee to thy Grave: The Sophifter laughing went away, but in a few days after died, and was buried in a Coffin according to the Prophecy of that Holy Man. Beards Theatre.

X. Neither hath Divine Vengeance left it felf without Witnesses against Cursers, who denying God, give themselves to the Devil; as appears by these dreadful Examples. A Souldier travelling through Morcia in Almaign, finding himself not well went to an Inn, and delivered to his Landiady a sum of Money: Being recovered he demanded his Money, but the Woman consulting her, Husband denied the receipt of any, and accused him of wrong in demanding what she never received: the Souldier enraged, accused her of Cheating him. The Man of the House though privy to all before, yet thrust the Souldier out of Doors; who being abused drew his Sword and ran against the Door with the point, whereat the Host cried out Thieves, Thieves, affirming he would have entred his House by Force, and Robbed him; so the poor Souldier was cast into Prison, and ready to be .. condemned to Death; but the day wherein Sentence was to be pronounced, the Devil entred the Prifon, and told the Souldier, That if he would give himfelf Body and Soul to him he would deliver him: The Prisoner replied, he had rather dye being innocent, than to be delivered upon that account : The Devik represented the Danger of Death wherein he was, and used all manner of craft to delude him, but finding his Arguments ineffectual, he left his fuit, yet promifed to revenge him upon his Enemies for nothing, advising, him to declare his innocence, and the wrong he tuffered, and to intreat the Judge, That one in a Blew Cap, who was in the Court, might make his defence for him ; (now he in the Blew Cap was the Devil.) The Souldier accepted his offer, and being called to the Bar, defired to have his Attorney, who was there prefent to plead his Cause, which being granted, this crafty Lawyer began cunningly to defend his Client, affirming him, To have been fallly accused, and so would be unjuffly condemned, and that his Bost did with hold the Money, and offered him violence; and to demonstrate it, reckoned up every Circumstance, yea, the very place where they had hid the Money, The Host impudently denied all, wishing, That the Devilmight take him Body and Soul if he had it. This fubtil Attorney in the Blue Cap, finding the advantage he looked for, left off his pleading, and feizing on the Landlord, carried him out of the Court into the Air, and he was never after feen: thus was the Souldier delivered, to the affonishment of all who were Eye Witnesses of this terrib'e Judgment upon this perjured curfing Innkeeper. Wierius of Spirits iib. 3.

XI. Luther Relates, That a debauched Person at every word almost had the Devil in his Mouth, tho' often reproved and exhorted to correct to deteffable a Dreaafut Judgment's upon Atheists, Custom. So continuing in this damnable practice, it happened as he was passing over a Bridge, he fell down; and in his fall he cried out, Hoss up with an hundred Devils, which he had no sooper uttered, but the Devil whom he had called for so oft, strangled and carried him away. In 1551, at Megalapo'e, the People being drinking and carousing at Whitlantide, a Woman commonly named the Devil in her Oaths, till he that had been called upon so often, came and carried her thorow the Gate alost into the Air, before all the Company, who with association on the ground, they ing in the Air, and then falling on the ground, they found her stark dead. Wierus.

XII. About this time there dwelt in a City of 3evoy, a Man of a very vicious Conversation, and a monthrous Sweater, whom many good Men reproved for his wicked behaviour, yet he would not reform his ways. Now it happened that the plague was in the City, and he being infected himfelf, his Wife and Kinfwoman withdrew apart into a Garden-House that he had; in this his extremity, the Minifters centinually exhorted him to repentance, but he was so far from being moved, that he seemed daily to harden himself in his ill course of Lite: one day 25 he was fwearing, denying God, giving himfelf to the Devil, and calling for him with horrid vehemency, behold the Devil appeared, and carried him into the Air; his Wife and Einfroman feeing him thy over their Heads : In this transportation, his Cap fell off, and was found at the Roine; but himfelf was never feen after. The Magistrate advertised hereof, came to the place, and took the Depositions of the two Womenupon Oath, of what they had feet. Wierus of Spirits.

XIII. Martin Luther writes, That a Priest who had been a Protestant, and Apostatized to Popery, thundering out bitter Carses against Luther in the Pulpit, at a Town called Ruthnerwald, wishing, If Luther's at a Town called Ruthnerwald, wishing, If Luther's Dostrine were true, a Fhunderbolt might strike him to death; three days after arose a mighty Tempest with Thunder and Lightning, whereof this Priest was extreamly assaid, his guilty Conscience accusing him that he had spoken wickedly against the Truth, so he ran into the Church and sell to his Prayers, before the Altar, but Vengeance found out his Hypocrisie, for he was struck with Lightning; and tho' with difficulty recavered to Life, yet as he was led home through the Church-yard, another slash burnt him from the Crown of the Head to the Sole of the Foot, as black as a Shoo, dying with a manifest mark of Divine Justice upon him. Luth. Col. Men.

XIV. Henry Earl of Schwartzenburgh, used to wish he might be drowned in a Privy: He being in St. Peters Cloister in Erford, with Frederick Emp. of Germany, the Emp. having occasion to go to the Privy, was followed by some of his Nobles, and Schwartzenburgh, when suddenly the floor under them began to fink; the Emp. took hold of the Iron Grates of a window, whereat he hung by the hands till help came, fome of the Gentlemen fell to the bottom and were drowned, and amongst others this Earl. Wanley Hist. Man. XV. A young Courtier at Mansfield, used upon any earnest asseveration to say, The Devil take me if it be nog fo; and the Devil indeed took him while he slept, and threw him out of an high window, where, though by Gods good Providence, he escaped with Life, yet he learnt by experience to bridle his Tongue from all fuch cursed speeches, this being but a taste of that Divine Wrath which hath happened upon such profligate wretches. Cyriac. Spangen.

XVI. In 1557. At Forchenum in Germany, a Priest both crooked in Body and Mind, through Age and ill Nature, and so instruct that he could not go but upon Crutches, yet he would be catried up into the Pulpit to Preach a Sermon; his Text was in a Corinthians cap. 11. From whence he took occasion to defend the Mass, and other Errors of the Papists, and then breaking forth into a rage, he uttered these Blacker mous speeches; Oh Paul, Paul! If thy Dostring the papists of the Papists of the Blacker mous speeches; Oh Paul, Paul! If thy Dostring the page 11.

Dreadful Judgments upon Atheists,

ing the Receiving of the Sacraments in both kinds, betrue, and if it be a wicked thing to receive it otherwife, then would the Devil might take me; and turning tothe people he faid, if the Fopes Doctrine concerning this Point be not true, then am I the Devils Bondslave, reither do I fear to pawn my Soul upon it : These and: many other horrible words he used, till the Devil came indeed, in the shape of a tall black man, terrible of Countenance, with such a noise and wind, that the Reople were afraid the Church would have fallen one their Heads, yet without hurrying any, he took away the Old Prieft and carried him fo far, that he was never heard of. The Bishop of Rugenstine's Brother hardly escaped, for he defending himself with his Sword; wounded his own Body, and very parrowly faved his Life. After this many Visions were seen about the City, as Armies of Men, feeming ready to enter and forprize them. A noise was heard in the Church, while they were Baptizing a Child, all for the abominable blaibhemy of this prophane Priest. Beards Theatre.

XVII. At Offer, a Village in Germany, a Womane her felf to the Devil both Soul and Body, and used horrible Curfings both against her self and others, upon all occasions, but especially at a Marriage in that Village ; and though the Company exhorted her to leave off, yet the continued therein. The People were fet at Dinner, and very merry, when the Devil taking her away before them all, transported her into the Air with horible Out cries and roarings, and carried her round the Town, so that the Inhabitants were ready to die for fear; and then tore her Body into four pieces, leaving a quarter in the four high ways. as Witnesses of her punishment; and returning to the Marriage, he threw her Bowels upon the Table before the Mayor of the Town; faying, Behold these Dishesof Meat belong to thee, whom the like Destruction awaiteth, if thou dost not amend thy wicked Life. The Reporters bereof were, John Herman Minister of that: Fown, the Mayor, and all the Inhabitants. Beards Theatre.

XVIII. In 1553, near Bellsina in Helvetia, three prophane Wretches playing at Dice on the Lords day, one called Ulrick Schæterus having loft much Money, at last expecting a good cast, he brake forth into this blasphemous Speech, if fortune deceive me now, I will thrust my Dagger into the very Body of God, as far as I can; and the cast miscarrying, he drew his Dagger and threw it up against Heaven with all his ftrength, when behold the Dagger vanished, and five drops of Blood fell on the Table before them, and iminediately the Devil came and carried away this Blasphemous Wretch, with such a noise that the whole City was aftonished; the other two distracted with fear, strove with all their might to wipe the drops of blood from the Table, but the more they wiped them, the clearer they appeared. The Rumonr of this dreadful Accident brought multitudes to the place, where they found the two Gamesters washing the Board, whom they bound in Chains and carried toward the Prison; but in going thorow the Gate of the City, one was struck dead, with a number of Lice, and Worms creeping out of him: The third to avert Divine Indignation, the Citizens without further Tryal put to Death. The Table with the spots of blood thereon, was referved as a Monument of this fearful Judgment. Clarks Examples p. 1.

XIX. One W. Hacket used in discourse to curse himself in this manner: If it be not true then let a vifible confusion come upon me, and he wanted not his wish: For in 1591. Ed. Coppinger and H. Arthington, two Gentlemen, affociating with this Hacket, who had been a lewd Person but now pretended great Reformations; these three ran into divers strange opinions. and coming to his Lodgings in London; Hacket told them that he was anointed with the Holy Ghost; then Coppinger asked, what his pleafure was to command them; Go faith he, and proclaim in the City that" Jesus Christ is come with his Fan in his hand to judge the Earth; and if they will not believe you, let them come and kill me if they can: Coppinger answered, That it should be done; so he and Arthington ran into the Streets, and proclaimed their Message; and when by the confluence of People they could go no further, they got up into two empty Carts in Cheapfide, crying Repent, Repent, for Jesus Christ is come to Judge the World: And pulling out a Paper read many things concerning the Calling and Office of Hacket, as how he represented Christ, by taking part of his glorified Body, &c. They called themselves the Prophets, one of Justice, the other of Mercy. The Citizens being amazed took Hacket, and carried him before a Justice, who committed him, and being found guilty of Sedition and Traiterous Words against the Queen, he was hanged on a Gibbet in Cheapside, uttering horrible Biasphemy against God. Coppinger died next day in Bridewell, and Arthington made a publick Recantation. Thus the Curse of Hacket happened to him according to his Wish. Beards Theatre.

XX. In the City of Astorga, a Mother in her rage cursed one of her Sons with detestable Maledictions, wishing. The Devils in Hell to take him; and that they would fetch him out of her presence, with many other horrible Execuations: This was about ten a Clock in a dark night; the Boy for fear went into a little Court behind the House, from whence he was hoisted up into the Air, by Men in appearance with grim Countenances of large Stature, and were indeed evil Spirits, who carried him away with such swittness, (as he confessed) that it was impossible for any Bird in the World to fly so fast; and falling down amongst Bushes, he was drawn thorow the thickest of them all over torn and rent both in his Cloaths and Body; he then began to call on God for help, upon which thefe cruei Fiends brought him back thorow the Air, and put him thorow a little Window, in a Chamber in his Fathers House, where after much search he was found in this pitiful Condition, and almost distracted with fear: And thus tho they had no power to deprive him of Life, yet God suffered them to afflict the Parents in the Son for such horrid wickedness. In a Town of Missia in 1552. A passionate Father observing his Son to be flack in his business, wished he might never stir from the place, which he had no fooner spoken but his Son stuck fast indeed, nor could by any means be removed, no not to fit or bend his Body, till by the Prayers of good Christian, his pains were mitigated tho not remitted; three years he continued flanding with a Post at his Back for his ease, and sour years site ting, and then died, nothing weakned in his underflanding, and not doubting of his Salvation, through Christ: When he was demanded how he die, his Anfwer usually was, That he was fastned of God, and that it was not Man but the Mercy of God only that must release him. Clarks Examples.

XIX. A young Gallant, that was a monstruous Swearer, riding in Company of divers Gentlemen, out of Cornwall in the days of Ed. VI. he began to curfe and blaspheme horribly, whom Mr. Hains a Minister with mild words reproved, telling him, He should one day answered for it, the Gentleman being in a fume, bid him, 'Take no thought for him, but prepare for his own winding sheet; Well (saith the Minister) Ae mend for Death gives no warning, as foon comes the Lambs Skin to the Market, as the old Sheeps: Gods wounds (said he) care not thou for me, still raging worse and worse, till going on their Journey they came. to a great Bridge over an arm of the Sea, in passing: of which, this swearing Gallant spurred his Horse with fuch fury, that he leaped clear over the Bridge with the Man on his back, who as he was falling, cried out, Horse and Man, and all to the Devil. This terrible flory, Bishop Ridley delivered in a Sermon at Paulsa Cross. Acts and Mon.

XXII. A Man in Lincolnshire, used to swear by Gods pretious Blood, and would not take warning, at length falling Sick, he was perfuaded by his Friends to Repent, whose Counsel he rejected, and hearing the Bell-Toll, in the very pains of Death he flarted up, fwearing God's Wounds the Bell tolls for me, but he shall not have me yet; whereupon the Blood issued from all the Joynts and Parts of his Body, as Mouth, Nose, Wrists, Knees, Heels, Toes, &c. & so he miserably ended his wicked Life. Mr. Perkins. Another had a wicked custom of swearing by Gods Arms; in the end his own Arm being hurt with a Knife, was incurable, but rankled and festered, and at last rotted and fell away peicemeal, and himself through anguish and pain died. Mr. Philip Stubs.

XXIII. One bearing Perjury condemned, and how it feldom escaped punishment, he in a bravery said, 'I have often for sworn my felf, and yet my right Hand is ono shorter than my Lest; which words he had scarce uttered, when such an inflamation arose in that Hand, that he was forced to have it cut off, whereby it foon became shorter than the other. Clarks Examples, p. 1.

A young Lady of a confiderable Estate in Saxony, promised Marriage to a young Man of a mean Fortune, he foresceing that wealth and inconstancy might alter her mind, freely discovered his thoughts to her, whereupon the made a thousand Protestations; of her Constancy; wishing, 'That if ever she married another, the Devil might take her away on the Wedding-day : yet a Person of more wealth making his Addresses to her, the was married to him: A great Feast was provided, and while they were at Dinner, two Men on Horseback came to the House, and as Strangers, were invited to the Feast; after Dinner one of them defired to lead the Bride a dance, and taking her by the Hand, led her a turn or two, and then in the prefence of the Bridegroom and all her Friends, he caught her up in his Arms, crying in vain for help, and hoisted her up into the Air, vanishing away with, his Companions and Horses, and was never seen more. Sword for Swearers.

XXV. A Noble-man in Silefia, having invited many to a costly Feast; it happened, that instead of his Friends, he only received their Excuses for not coming; at which in great rage he broke out into these words, Since all these people have thus failed me, I wish so many Devils of Hell, would feast with me to day, and eat up my Provision made for them; and so in fury left his House and went to Church: He had not been there long, when a great Troop of Horse-men arrived at his House, Black and of extraordinary Afpect and Stature, who alighting in the Court, called a Groom to take their Horses, and bid mother of the Servants to run to his Master, and tell nim his Guests were come: The Servant amazed, runs o the Church, and with short breath, and the little ence he had left, gave his Master an account of what had s allen out: the Nobleman calls to the Preacher toreak off his Sermon, and help him with his Spiritual-Counsel and Advice; who orders all the Servants to epart the House. In the mean time the Nobleman ith the whole Congregation, came within view of the louse, which the Servants in great affright had forsaen, but for halle had left behind a young Child, the

16 Dreadful Judgments upon Atheists,

Nobleman's Son, fleeping in the Cradle. By this time the Devils were revelling in the Dining Room, and making a great noise as if they had saluted and welcomed one another; they looked through the Calements, one with the Head of a Wolf, another of a Bear, a Cat, a Tyger, oge, taking Bowls and quaffing as if they had drank to the Malier of the House. The Nobleman seeing his Servants safe, remembred his Son, and asked what was become of the Child; these words were fearce spoke, when one of the Devils had him in his Arms, and shewed him out of the window. The Father at this fight, being almost without Life, spying an Old Servant of his fetched a deep figh, and faid, Ah. Me ! What shall become of the Infant ? The Servant replied, Sir by God's help I will enter the House, and fetch the Child out of the Power of that Devil or perish with him; to whom his Lord said, God prosper thy Attempt & strengthen thee: The Minister bleffing him, he goes into the House, and coming into the next Room where the Devils were rioting, he fell on his Races, and commended himself to God : Then presfing in, he beheld them in their horrible shapes. force fitting, some standing, some walking. They all came and asked him, what bufiness he had there; He in a great Sweat and Agony, yet refolved in his purpofe came to the Spirit which held the Infant, and faid, In the Name of God deliver this Child to me, who anfwered, 'Let thy Master come and setch him, who hath most Interest in him: The Servant replyed, I am now come to do that Office and Service to which 6 God hath called me, by virtue of which, and by his Power, lo I fieze upon the Innocent; and fo fnatched him from the Devil, and carryed him out of the room; at which they called aloud after him, "Ho thou knave, leave the Child to us, or we will tear thee in pieces; but he unterrified with their Diabolical Threatnings, brought away the Infant and delivered it to the Father. After some days the Spirits left the House, and the Nobleman returned to his Ancient

Perjured persons, Blasphemers, &c. 17

Peffettion. Now though the Devils had no power to hurt any, but only definoted the Victuals, yet it may be a warning to avoid wicked and rash Wishes and Cur-

fis. Hey wood of Angels.

XXV Goodwin Earl of Kent, fitting at Table with King Edw. the Confessor, one of the Cup bearers stumbled but did not fall, whereat Godwin laughing faid, 'That if one Brother had not help'd another, (meaning his Legs) all the Wine had been fpilt : At which the King calling to mind his Brother death who was flain by Godwin, answered, so 6 should my Brother Alfred have helped me, had it onot been for Godwin. Godwin excused himself and faid, If I be any way guilty of Alfreds Death, I pray God I may never swellow down a worsel of Bread " more; but he swore falsly, and was choaked in the presence of the King before he stirred one foot from the place. Beards Theatre. In the days of Q. Mary, John Cooper a Religious Man, was falfly accused by one Grimwood, for Treasurable words against the Q and was put to death; but this perjur'd Villain being after about his labour in the Harvest, and in good health. his Bowels fell out of his Body, and so he miserably dyed. Afts and Monuments. XXVI. Naiceffus, Bishop of Jerusalem, though famous for his Virtues and Faithfulness in Reproof of Vice, was failly accused of Incontinency by three Suborned Variets, who bound their Accusations with Daths and fearful Imprecations. The first at the dose of his Testimony, added, if I say not the truth, I pray God I may perish by hire: The second said, If I speak any thing of fasthood. I pray God I may be consumed by some filthy and cruel Disease: And id the third, If I accuse him faistly, I pray God I may lose my sight and become blind. This wicked harge was not believed by such as knew the great ingrity of the Bishop; yet the good Man, partly for rief of such a scandal, and partly to retire from couldly Affairs, left his Bishoprick and lived privately:

18 Dreadful Judgments upon Atheists,

But his fortworn Accusers escaped not: For the first had his House set on fire unknown how, and himself and Family burnt to Ashes. The second languished away under a loathsome Disease. The third, seeing the world ends of his Companious, confessed all the completed Villany, and lamenting his Grime, continued weeping till he lost his fight; and thus God said Amen to all that they had presumptuously wished upon themselves. Euseb. lib. 6. XXVII. Uladiflaus, K. of Poland and Hungary had unfortunately fought against the Turks at the Mountain Hæmus, and taken Carambey the General of their Army; by which Victory, he occasioned Amusath, Emperor of the Turks, to make Peace; which was folemaly fworn to, by the King of Poland upon the Holy Evangelists, and by Amuraths Ambassadors upon the Turkish Alcoren. But the Pope and other Christian Princes said, It was unreasonable, unprofitable and dishonourable; so Cardinal Julian is sent by the Pope as his Legate, to break the Peace; and to absolve the King from his Oath: The young King by their perswasions breaks the League, and undertakes the War with greater vigour than ever, advancing with his Army to Varna, doing all the mischief he was able, to the Enemies Country. The great Turk returns out of Cilicia and enters Battle with the Christians. At first the Turks were beaten, with great saughter and ready to fly : Amurath seeing all in danger, beholding the Picture of Christ Crucified in the displayed Enligns of the Christ stians, he pluck'd the late League out of his Bosom, and holding it in his Hand, with his Eyes cast up to Heaven said, Behold thou Crucified Christ, this is the League thy Christians in thy Name made with me, which they have without cause broken, now if theu be a God, as they say thou art, and as we dream, revenge the wrong done unto thy Name, and me, and they and thew thy Power upon thy perjured People, who in their deeds deny thee their God. After this, the

for-

fortune of the Battle was quite changed, for King

Uladislaus was slain, his Head cut off by a Janizary, and fastned to the end of a Launce, and Proclamation made, that it was the Head of the Christian King, by which the rest daunted sled; Julian the Legate who exhorted to this War was slain, and his Body exposed to the scorn of the Souldiers; who being a Priess, had contrary to the Law of Nations perswaded to break the Peace. This Battle was sought in the Year 1444.

Turkish History.

Burghard A. B. of Magdeburgh, tho' he ought to have punisht Perjury in others, yet he thrice broke his Oath to the Sociate and People of Magdeburgh; for first he belieged them with a great Army, and though they redeemed their liberty with a fum of Money, he swearing not to besiege them any more, yet without regard to Faith or Honesty he returned anew to the Siege; but his Perfidiousness did not prosper, for he was taken prisoner at the next assault; yet he so appealed them with his humble demeanour and repeated Oaths never to trouble them any more, that they freed and restored him to all his Dignities. Yet the Arch-Bishop procured a Dispensation for his Oath from the Pope, and began to vex and murder the Citizens whom he had vowed to protect: but Vengeance overook him, for being catcht once again and Imprisond, while his Friends were treating for his Liberty, he Jaylor beat him to Death with an Iron Bar, and fo t last his Perjury found its desert. Beards Theatre

In 1661. A Woman in Derbyshire having couzened Boy of some Money, was charged with it, but she tiffly deuied it, and prayed God, That the Earth night open and swallow her up quick if she had it, and mediately the Earth under her opened, and she tak into it, and being digged was found nine foot noder the Earth, and that very Money in her Pocket, larks Exam. 2 vol.

In 1551. Five Drunken Men in Bohemia prophaned to Name of God with horrible Blasphemies, and the 20 Treadin fudgments upon Atheists

Picture of the Devil being painted upon the will, they caronied healths to him, which the Devil pledged foon after, for next morning all five were found dead, their neeks being broken and quashed to pieces as the a wheel had gone over them, blood running out of their Months, Noffrils and Ears, to the aftenishment of the Spectators. John Fineel.

XXVIII. At Estings in Germany, a Nobleman having lost much Money at Play fell into horrible Execrations, commanding his Man to bring his Horse to ride home in a very dark night; his Servant diffwaded him, affirming how dangerous the way was by reason of the Waters and Fens, whereat he began to rage and swear the more, and resolved to go; but as he was riding along, he encountred with many evil Spirits, who befet the Nobleman, and threw him off his Horse; now there was in his Company a virtuous and valiant Gentleman who fet him again on his Horse, and held him on one fide, whom when the Spirits durst not attempt, by reason of his innocence, they vanished, the Nobleman was carried to a Monastry, where he lay three days and died. Loicernus. A Vinter accustomed to Blaspheming, swearing and Drunkenness, and to entertain such as were like himfelf to fwallow his Wine, upon the Lords Day, slanding at the door with a Pot in his hand to-call in more Guests, a violent Whirlwind carried him up into the Air in the fight of all, and he was never icen more. Beards Theater.

XXIX. In Hol'and in 1681. Theo. Paludamus, a Protestant Minister at Lewarden in Priezland, writes that Dowee Sirses, a Mason in that Country, being reported to be in a desperate condition, he accompanied a Gentleman, sent to him by Order from the Lords of the Provincial, where they found two Chirurgions and their Servants besie in making Plaisters, and dressing the Patient, and he in a most immentable, condition, his Hair was burnt off his Head to his Ears; his whole face burnt except his Eyes, his Arms perjonen sunjonemers, QC. 21: burnt in several; Places, his Hands to the end of his Fingers were burnt like a roafted Fowl, but could move all his Fingers; his Breast and Back burnt in feveral places, and yet his thirt whole; his Belly under the Navel, the breadth of an hand was black, in which place the Chirurgions made several Incisions, and he felt it not; his Privities, Hips, Thichs and Legs were terribly burnt, yet not his Stockings; his Feet was also burnt, and indeed no part was free. After he was dreft, and had got a little Breath, both he and his Wife gave the following account upon Oath. That June 15. at night this Dowee Sirses careed unk into a Tavern, where he with the Man of the House and another, drank three Quarts of Wine, and coming home at ten at night, he lay down to fleep on Cuthions in the Kitchen, and fell into a dream of a lory he had read in a Book of Simon de Uries, of a Company that danced in Masquerade, with every one lighted Torch in their hand and burnt one another. de awaking stood up, thinking to go into the Yard to aske Water, and of a sudden found himself of a ght flame in the midfl of the room, which burnt im thus dreadfully, and some part of his Cloaths, pon which he cryed out for he'p, but none came; en he began to faint, and in this diffress crying out, God be gracious to me a poor fin, er, the flame ased in the twinkling of an Eye, but he growing int, laid his head upon a Cushion in the room; about yo in the Morning his Wife came down and found m in this sad condition, and felt something under r feet like a parcel of burnt Rags, and taking hold her Husband, had only a burnt piece of his fleeve her hand, whereupon the cries, O Lord, Dowe, ou art grievoully burnt : He answered, the Devil hath ought me in this Case; upon which she called in the ighbours and Chirurgions; his Wife faid he was en to Drunkenness, and often reproved in vain, the drank much Brandy and flrong Liquors, tho had often sworp against it, Wishing that if he were drunk again, the Devil might tear h m Limb from Limb, fo God made the Devil the Executioner of his Judgment to bring this miserable Mans own curse upon him, not one Limb or Member being left upon him.

23 Dreadful Juagments upon zitueijis,

Drunkard forewarned. XXX. John Duncalf of Kings-Swingford in Staffordthire, in January 1677, coming to the House of Humphrey Baby at Grangwell, He begged of the Woman Victuals and Drink, who knowing and compassionating his Condition freely gave it him; but while the was stooping to draw him some Drink, he stole her Bible, and fold it for three Shillings to a Maid not far off. whereby the Woman came to hear of it, and paying the Moneŷ received it again, but could not hear what was become of the Man: A while after John Duncalf hearing it discoursed that he stole a Bible, grew angry and gave out threatning words against a young Man that reported it : but being severely charged, he denied it fiercely, wishing his Hands might rot off if it were not true, which he had no sooner uttered, but by his own Confession to divers that came to see him in his miserable condition, 'He immediately had an inward horror and trembling upon him, and a dread and fear of the Divine Majesty and Justice of God, which fear and working of his Conscience continued many days after; and being asked, Why he did not confess his Wickedness, and endeavour that the Bible might be restored to the Owner, he answered, The Devil and his own Heart would not suffer him, but that within a few days after his Curfing himfelf, his flesh began to look black at the Wrists of his Hands, and so continued divers weeks before it did sensibly rot; when he finding himself weak and faint, and fearing an Ague, was going to his acquaintance, but not being able to go further laid himself down in a Barn, and there continued two days and nights before he was found, from whence he was removed to another Barn near Wolverhampton. His flesh began first to rise in great Knots and Lumps at his Wrifts and Knees, and to break

Perjured perjons, Blajphemers, &c. 23 break and run, and after to thrink from the Bones swhite putrid matter came out abundantly, caufing exquilite pain and torment, and the smell was so offensive that those who came to visit him (who were many thousands) were not able to stand without Door, except they had Herbs and other things to fmell to: After this, many little Worms came out of his rotten flesh, and both his Legs fell off at his Knees, and then both his Hands; he constantly acknowledging it to be the just Judgment of God, for this fearful curling of himself, and for all his other fins, desiring the Prayers of some Reverend Divines, who came to visit him in his Misery, 'That God would give him Repentance, and pardon his Sins of Idleness, Stealing, Lying, Curfing, Swearing, Drunkenness, Unclean Thoughts, and constant Prophaneness, and that he would save him for Christs sake, and give him Patience in the mean time. Thus he continued a dreadful Spectacle f Divine Justice for some Weeks, and then died. hus the Sentence against every evil Work is not alays executed speedily, yet God leaves not himself ithout witness in this, as well as in former Ages, as anifestly appears by the foregoing dreadful Exam-

CHAP. II.

not on her have a do there a shirter a some he miserable Ends of Magicians, Conjurers, and Witches; with an Account of Apparitions, Possessions and other wonderful Feats and Illusions of the Devil.

Hat there are really Magicians, Conjurers and Witches, who have Commerce and Familiariwith evil Spirits, is so clear from Holy Scripture, nois, Cannons and Civil Laws, that none but Abelifs theifts who would perswade themselves there are no Spirits, and consequently no other Life after this, deny it; but fince the reality of this Converse with Demons, and their Appearances, and Possessions, has been so clearly demonstrated by Persons of acute Learning and Judgment, who have fully answered all Obi ctions, I shall not engage in the Controversy, but give an account of the miserable Deaths of some Persons concerned in these cursed Arts, and of some remarkable Apparitions, and Actions, of evil Spirits, and their possessing of the Bodies of Persons, and tormenting them; with other strange Feats and Husions of Satan. Collected from approved Authors; with the danger of being vainly curious, in knowing future Events, or to enquire of these Secrets, which is so first. ly forbid in the Law of Moses.

24 The miserable Ends of Magicians, Witches,

I. Saul, the first King of Israel, being much disturbed for fear of the Philistines, would by all means know the iffue of this doubtful War, and whereas whilft he obeyed the Commands of God, he had cleanfed his Realm of Witches and Inchanters, yet is now fo sense less, as in his extremity to ask Counsel of them, ad ding this wickedness to the rest of his Sins, that the measure might be full: So he went to a Witch to know his Fate, who caused a Devil to appear in the snape of Samuel, and foretel Gods just Judgment up on him in the final destruction both of himself and Family.

II. An Example not unlike this, was Natholicus K. o Scots, who, after he had usurped the Crown, by muc bloodshed, endeavoured by the same means to esta blish it; and as guilt is accompanied with suspicion an fear, he fent a trufty Servant to a Witch, to enquir how long he should enjoy the Crown, and how man years he should live; the Witch answered, 4 That he should not live long, but be murdered, not by his i was earnest to know who should kill him, she answe ed, He himself should do it ; the Man at first hear this with deteffation, abhorring the thought ofit, but confidering it was not fafe to discover the Witches anfwer; and on the other fide, that it could not be long concealed, he refolved rather to kill the Tyrant with the favour of many, than to let him live with the hazard of his own Head; so he defired to speak with the K. in private, about the Witches answer, and there slew him. Let all that run to Witches, either for folk Goods, recovery of their own, and Friends Health, or other Occasions, remember this Example, Euchan. Hiff. Scot.

nemy, but by his familiar Friend : The Meffenge

III. Dirers Authors record the manner of their entring into that curled Profession, and the Ceremoies thereof, discovered by those who have renounced hose detestable practices. The Witches and Wizards eing met at a place and time appointed, the Devil ppears in Humane shape, admonishing them to be uthful, and promifing them long Life; then those resent, recommend the Person who is to be Entred; he Devil requires him to renounce the Christian aith, and worthip and give himself to him, Body, nd Soul for ever, as bring as many as possible, into te same Society; so with certain Oyntments he is conmed therein. Manlius writes, that in 1553, two litches stole a Neighbours Child, cut it in pieces, and it it into a Kettle to Boil, when the sorrowful Mother oking for the Infant, came by chance into the House, d found the Limbs thereof; for which abominable it they were burnt, having confessed their Villany. vo other Witches killed abundance of Children: And Germany, eight Witches confessed they had murder-145 Children in making their Oyutments. They are reported to have each a Spirit or Imp, to affift and ey them in all things, and to give them notice of ir Meetings; at which time they separate themselves m Company, and night being come, firip and anoint inselves, and then are carried out of the House cir by the Window, Door or Chimney mounted on r timps to their meeting place, which cometimes is many hundred miles off, where they find great numbers of Wizards and Witches, who all reverence Lucifer on his Throne, proclaiming him their Lord and King; this folemply finished, they sit at Table, where no delicate Meats are wanting to please their Appetites after which they dance, and the Incubusses in the shape of proper Men satisfie the Lusts of the Witches, and the Succubusses serve for Whores to the Wizards sometimes the Devil commands each to tell what wickedness he hath done, and according to the detestable mess thereof he is Honoured and Applauded. These and many other wonderful things, are mentioned by Authors of Credit; and many Persons have made confession thereof.

26 The miserable Ends of Magicians, Witches

IV. In 1545, Rebecca Jones being suspected for a Witch, was brought before Sir H. Grimston and Si T. Bows Justices of Essex, to whom she voluntarily consessed, 'That about 25 years before, living with Iohn Bishop in that Country, there came one morn sing to the Door, a handsome young Man as she though but now thinks it was the Devil, who asked her how the did, and defired to fee her left Wrift, and then he took a pin from her Sleeve, and pricked it twice, and there came out a drop of Blood, which he took upon his Finger and departed: And going a while after to * St. Olyths, the met a Man in a ragged Suit with fuc s great Eyes as much affrighted her, who came to he and gave her three things like Moles, each having . feet but no tails and black, and bid her nurse ther till he defired them again; she asked what she mul give them, he answered Milk, and that the would not hurt her, but avenge her on her Enemie and bid her Murther some but not too many and h would forgive her, and then went away; after which the faid, the fent one of these Imps to kill a Sow of on Ben. Hows which was done, she then with one Joyc Bones, fent each of them an Imp to kill one Thom Brunstead of St. Ofyths, who died about three weel after, and the believes the two Imps killed him; if confest likewise that she sent another Imp toBrunsteads house to kill his Wise, because they beat her Son upon a small occasion; this Woman was Arraigned at Chelmsford, and upon her own Confession Condemned and Hanged. Infor. of Witches.

V. A Conjurer at Saltzburg in Germany, who boafted he could gather all the Serpents half a Mile round about into a Ditch, and feed them there, being about the Experiment, behold the Old and Grand Serpent came, which, whilft he thought by force of his Charms to make enter into the Ditch amongst the rest, he set upon him and clofing him like a Girdle, drew him into the Ditch with him, where he miferably died; and so this lugler was conzen'd by the Devil, who was more cunning then himself. Beards Theatre. The Governor of Mascon a Magician, was by the Devil snatcht up while he was at Dinner, and carried into the Air, three times round the Town of Mascon in the fight of many Spectators, to whom he cryed out, Help, Help, my Friends, so that the whole Town stood amazed thereat. It was reported, this Wretch had given himfelf to the Devil, and had provided store of Holy Bread (as they called it) which he did always carry about with him, thinking to fecure himfelf, but it feryed to little purpose, as the sequel declared.

Dr. John Faustus of Condigen a German, had learned the Black Art in Poland, and meeting one day at the Table with some that had heard of his Magical Tricks, was earnestly entreated to shew them some port, being overcome by their importunity who were well armed in the Head, he promised to shew them whatever they would have, who with a general content require him to bring into the place, a Vine laden with ripe Grapes, for they thought because it was in December, Faustus could not shew them that which was not, yet he condescended, saying, That before they stirred from the Table they should see the Vine they desired, upon condition they should not speak a word nor rise from their places, but should

. B 2

2 104 majeravio Enus of Ivlayucians, vi wenes all tarry till he bid them out the Grapes, and tha whoever should do otherwise was in danger of hi Life: having all promifed to obey him; Faustus se charmed the Eyes of these drunken Revellers, that they faw (as it seemed to them) a curious Vine, with so ma my Bunches of Ripe Grapes as there were Men fitting at the Table, who being inflamed with fuch rare dain ties and dry with drinking, every Man takes his Knife in his Hand, looking when Faustus would give the word and bid them cut the Clufters; he holding them in suspence, about this vain piece of Witchcrast, beho'd the Vine and the Bunches of Grapes in the turn of an Eye vanished, and every one thinking he had a Cluster of Grapes in his Hand, was feen to hold his Nofe in one Hand, and the sharp knife in the other, ready to cut it off; to that if any had forgot the Conjurers Leffon, & had been too forward, instead of a Bunch of Grapes he had whipt off his own Nofe. This Wretch, is reported to have led about an Evil Spirit, in the likenels of a Dog; and being at Wittenburg, an Order was fent from the Emperor to seize him, but by his Magical delusions he escaped; and being at Dinner at Noremberg, he was sensible by an extraordinary sweat, that came upon him, that he was befet, so he paid his reckoning and went away; but was hardly out of the City Walls e're the City Officers came to apprehend him; yet Vengeance followed him; for coming into an Inn in a Village of Wittenburg he fat very fad, and his Landlord demanding the Cause, he answered, 'That he would not have him affrighted, if he heard a great onoise and shaking of the House that night; in the Morning he was found dead by his Bedfide, with his Neck wrung behind him, and the House wherein he lay was beaten down to the ground. Wan. Hift. Man.

VII. A Sicilian called Lyodor, a notorious Magician got great repute in the City of Catania by his wonderful illusions, for he seemed by his Charms and Spells to transform Men into Beasts, or into what form he pleafed; and drew to him as soon Persons distant many days Journey, as those that were in the same place; he did many Injuries and Outrages, so that the People, bewitched with a false Opinion, sell to worship him; and when, for his wicked Deeds he was condemned to dye, he by his Charms escaped out of the Hangmans Hands, causing himself to be carried in the Air by Devils from Catania to Constantinople, and after, back again from thence into Sicilia. This made him admired, and the People imagining a Divine Power was in him, offered him Divine Honour: But at last, Leo Bishop of Catania, laid hands on this Devilish Magician before them, and caused him to be cast alive into an hot burning Furnace, where he was consumed to Ashes. Schouts. Hist.

and of Strange Apparitions, QC. 19

VIII. Two Magicians met together in the Queen o Englands Court, and agreed, that in any one thing they would infallibly obey one another; so the one commands the other to thrust his Head out of the window, which he had no sooner done, but a large pair of Stags Horns were feen on his Forehead; the Spectators joaking upon him with a thouland abuses, and mocks; he refenting the difgrace, with a Charcoal drew the Lineaments of a Man on the Wall, and commanded the faid Magician to fland under that l'isture, the other being apprehensive of the extream Danger, began to befeech him to ex use him, but he abfolutely refused; so being compelled, he standing under it, the Wall feemed to open, and he entring. therein, was never feen more. A notable Conjurer for trial of his skill, out of the Head of the Inkeepers Servant where he lodged, and when he was about to fet it on again, he was hindred by the presence of another Magician that chanced to be by at the same time; fo he belought him not to oppose him, but the other not regarding his request, the first Magician caused a Lilly to spring out upon the Table, and when he had chopped off the Head with its Flowers, on a fulden, down falls the Magician that hindred him Headlels to the ground; that done, he fets on the

B 4

30 The miserable Ends of Magicians, Witches.

Head of the Servant again, and flies left he should be questioned for the murder of his Rival. Delrio. Disquares Section in pomerania, a young Student on discon

Kent gave himself to the Devil, and made a Bond upor

the Contract, which he laid up in one of his Books but some time after, another Student wanting that Book he remembred fuch a one had it and borrowed it of him; the young Man forgot that he had put his Bond tato it; when the other began to turn over the Book, he there met with the Bond, and reading it, was much offrighted; So he went to Dr. Cramerus Professor of Divinity in that University to ask his advice, who wished him to keep the Bond; the other replied he durft not, then faid the Doctor bring it to me, and I will keep it. Some few Nights after, as the Doctor was in his Study, the Devil came rapping at his Study Door, saying, Cramer, Cramer give me my Bond for it belongs to me, and thou hast nothing to do with it; To whom the Doctor answered, Satan, 4 Satan, thou shalt not have the Bond, thou hast nothing to do with it, I have put it where thou can't onot fetch it; for it is in my Bible at the third Chapter of Genesis, where those words are, The Seed of the Woman shall break the Serpents Head : Upon this the Devil went his way taking the Chamber Window with him, and the young Man never heard of him afterwards. Beards Theatre.

kept short of money by his father, was tempted by the Devil to yield himself Body and Soul to him, upon condition to have his Necessities supplied, which he being pinched with want consented unto, and consistent it with a Bond written in his own Blood; presently after he began to decay in Health, and being brought to Martin Luther, and being examined he consessed the whole matter to him; Luther assembled the Congregation, who all joyned together & prayed for him, whereby the Devil at last, was forced to bring the Bond and throw it into the Window among them, bidding the young Man take it again. Luther writes, That being lodged in the Castle of Wittenburg in a Chamber far from Company, he was many times molested by noises made by the Devil, But I (faith he) Encountred him with that Sentence, Omnia subjection under his Feet; and so I laid me down and slept in safety. Another German Divine in Luthers time, as he was sitting at his Study, the Devil came and looked over his shoulder, which the Minister perceiving, he took a piece of Paper and writ in it, The Son of God came to destroy the Works of the Devil, and so holding up that Paper he vanished. Luther Collog.

XII. In the Life of Mr. Richard Rothwell, a famous Preacher at Mansfield in Nottinghamshire, in 1627.we have this remarkable Account. One John Fox about Nottingham, who had no more Learning than ensbled him to Write and Read, was possessed with a Devil, who would violently throw him down and take away the use of every Member, which was changed as black as pitch while those Fits were upon him; and then spake with an audible Voice out of his Belly, Throat and Mouth, his Lips not moving; many Prayers were put up to God for him, and great refort was made unto him by several Ministers, between whom and John Fox, there paifed many Papers in Writing, he discovering his Temptations, and they writing him answers because he was struck dumb : Among the reft, Mr. Rothwell went to fee him, but before he came the Devil said to all in the House, Youder comes Roth-well, but I will make a Fool of him before he goes; the People looked out and faw him coming about a quarter of a Mile from the House : As soon as he entred the Room, the Devil faid, 'Now Rothwell is come, adding, Thou sayest there is no possession, What thinkest theu now? Here is a Man opens not his Lips and yet speaketh: And after a while he faid, Say nothing to me of this Man, for I tell thee he is. damned, adding many fearful Blasphemies.

Rothwell

32 The miserable Ends of Magicians, Witches,

Rothwell, 'Thou art a Lyar and the Father of Lyes, one art thou fo well acquainted with the Mind of God concerning this Map, which makes me thus to torment him; therefore I believe thee not: I be· lieve he shall be faved by Jesus Christ. -

Devil. He is a Murderer, and thou knowest no Mur-derer must come into Heaven.

Rothwell, 'Thou Lyeft again, for David murdered, and is in Heaven; and the Jews, with wicked Hands 'crucified the Lord of Glory, yet Christ prayed for them; and St. Peter exherted them to Repentance, that their fins might be blotted out.

Devil. But this Man hath not, cannot, shall not Re-

Rothwell. 'If he had not repented, thou wouldst not have told him so: but if he have not, I believe

God will give him Repentance, and thou shalt not be able to hinder it.

Devil. Thou art a Murtherer thy felf, and yet talk-

Rothwell. 'Thou lyest again, I have sought the Lords Battles against his known Enemies, the Idolatrous, and Bloody Papifts in Ireland, Rebels to Q. E-

Iizabeth my Soveraige, by whose Authority. I bore Arms against them, otherwise I have killed no Man.

Then the Devil Swore and Blasphemed, saying, thou didst murther one this Day as thou camest hither, and there is one behind thee that will Justifie it; upon which, Mr. Rothwell looking over his Shoulder, the Devil set up an hideous Laughter, that nothing could be heard for a great while, and then said, look ye now, did not I tell you, I would make Bothwell a Fool? and yet it is true, thou didst murther one this day, for as thou cau est over such a Bridge, (which he named) there I would have killed thee, and there thy Horse trod upon a sty and killed it. It seems Mr. Rothwelis Horse stumbled at that place, the Devil having power to cause it, though without hurt either to Horse or Men.

Mr

Mr. Rothwell then faid, Thou hast often beguiled me, I hope God will in time give me Wisdom to discern, and power to withstand all thy Delusions; and he it is that hath delivered me out of thy hands, and I doubt not also will deliver this poor Man: The Devil then blaspheined and quoted many Scriptures out of the Old and New Testament, both in Hebrew and Greek, cavelling and plating the Critick, and backing his Allegations with fayings out of the Fathers and Poets in their own Language; which he quoted fo readily that the Company trembled to hear fuch things from one that understood no Learning, and neither moved Tongue nor Lip all the while: but Mr, Rothwell was wonderfully enabled by Divine Power to detect the Devils Sophistry, upon which the Devil faid, What stand I talking with thee, all Men know thou art bold Rothwell, and fearest no Body, nor carest for words therefore I will talk to thee no more. This Name he carried to his Grave, for the People would say, This is he whom the Devil called bold Rothwell.

Mr. Rothwell turning to the People faid, Good people you see the Goodness of our God and his great Power, tho the Devil made a Fool of me even now, through my weakness, yet God hath made the Devil dumb now, do but observe how the Manlies, therefore let us go to Prayer, and that God who hath made him dumb, will, I doubt not, drive him out of this poor Man.

The Devil hereupon raged, blasphemed, and said, and wilt thou then go to Prayer? if thou doff, I will make fuch a noise that thy Prayer shall be distracted, and thou knowest God will not hear a distracted Prayer; but thou hast got a device because thou wilt not be distra-Ated thou shuttest thy Eyes in Prayer, (for so he always did) but if thou pray, I will pull out thy Eyes?

Rothwell. Ilook to find thee as great an Enemy, in this duty now, as I have done heretofore, but I fear not thy threats, I know thou art limited, God heareth the Prayers of the upright, and hath promised to give his spirit to supply insirmities, therefore in confidence of his promised powerful assistance of his Spirit, and in the name and intercession of his Son Jefus fus Christ we will go to Prayer; and accordingly they did; fo, Mr. Rothwell kneeling by the Bedfide where the poor Man lay, the Devil for a quarter of an hour made an horrible noise: however Mr. R's voice was louder, and a while after the Devil roared at the very face of Mr. R. wherewith the Man's Body moved and the hand was held up, which was the first time he stirred; Mr. R. took the hand and held it down with much ease, two men being scarce able to hold the other hand, yet Prayers were still continued, and at length the Devil lay filent in the Man, and foon after departed out of him, the Man then fetched several deep fighs, so that they thought he had been dying, but his Colour suddealy returned, with the use of all his Members, Seufes and Understanding, and that at the next Petition, to the Glory of God, and the Amazement but Comfort of all the Company, he faid Amen; and to continued to fay Amen to every Petition: So Prayers are turned into Thankfgivings.

34 The miferable Ends of Magicians, Witches,

After which John Fox said, good Mr. Rothwell leave me not, I shall not live long, for the Devil tells me, he wilt chook me with the first bit of meat that I est. Mr. R. answered, Wilt then believe the Devil that seeks thy destruction before thon wilt trust in God through Jesus Christ, who seeks thy Salvation? bath not God by his Almighty power disposed him? had he had his will thou hadst been in Hell before now; but he is a Lyar, and as he is not able to hinder thy Souls Life, so shall not he be able to destroy the Life of thy Body, wherefore get me semething (saith he) ready for him, and I will see him eat before I go, and I will beg a Bleffing upon it.

When it was brought, Eat (saith Mr. R.) and fear not the Devil; and urged him to eat, as being a means appointed by God to preserve Life, and quoted the example of Javius's Daughter, whom our Saviour after he had reflored to Life, Commanded to give her Me.t, St. Luke 8. 55. With much aco and great trembling he at last took and eat, look you (says Mr. R.) you all see the Devil is a Lyar, the fust bit had hoot cleaked him, nor shall the rest. Mr. R. then left him; after which he was firuck dumb for three years together, and continued to be tempted though no longer possessed: At length by Prayer which was instantly put up to God for him, his Mouth was opened, and his Speech restored at that very instant when a Minister was praying for him in the Congregation where he was present, used this expression. Lord open thou his Mouth, that his Lips may thew forth thy Praise; to which he answered Amen; and so continued to speak, and live Religiously to his dving

Day. Clarks Martyrol. 2. p. r. XIII. In 1523. Frederick D. of Austria, who was chosen Emp. against Lewis, was overcome by Lewis in Battle, and kept Prisoner in a strong Castle. A Magician coming to Leopold his Brother, promised by his Art & the affistance of his Spirits to free Frederick, and within an hour to bring him into his presence if he would give him a good reward; the Duke replyed, That if he performed his Promise he would worthily reward him. The Magician places himself and Leopold in a Circle, and by Conjurations called up that Spirit which was wont to obey him, who appearing in the shape of a man, he commanded him speedily to go and free Frederick, and to bring him to him into Austria without hurt, the Spirit answered, I shall willingly obey thy commands if the Captive Prince will come with me; this said. the Spirit flew into bavaria, and in the form of a ffranger came to the Prince, to whom he faid, If thou wilt be freed from thy Captivity mount this Horse and I will carry thee Safe into Austria to Leopold thy Brother: Who art thou faid the prince : Ask me not (faid the Spirit) who I am, for that is nothing to the purpose, but do as I desire and I will perform what I fay: Which heard, a horror feiz'd the Prince, tho a man of a bold Spirit, To that bleffing himself the Horse disappeared and returned to the Conjurer, by whom he was chid for not bringing the Prifoner, who told him all that had passed : At last Frederick was freed out of Frison, and confessed that upon the same Day, the same thing happened to him. But that a while after he died. Comerapius Hor Subcef.

26 The miserable Ends of Magicians, Witches, Leopold was so affrighted with the Spirit he had seen,

XIII. An old Witch very famous for inchantments, kept a Jackdaw, which at a certain time spoke, at which the Woman let fall her Knife as the was at Dinner, grew pale, and after many fight and groans faid, This Day my Plough is come to its last period, and I shall suffer some great evil: Whilst she thus spoke, a Messenger brought word her Son was Dead; upon which News the fell nok, and fending for her other two Children, who were a Monk and a Nun, she with Tears spake thus to them, I have by my wretched Fate, followed Witchcraft these many years, and have given my self Body and Soul to the Devil, who, as he was the Author of this my wickedness by persuading one to it, so he will be the punisher thereof, I defire you would not cease to pray for me while I am alive for I doubt the destruction of my Soul is irrecoverable; you shall also fow up my Body, in a Buck-Skin, and put it into a stone Coffin fastning it with Lead, or bind it with three great Chains, or if I lie securely three Days, the fourth you shall bury me: Moreover let there be sung for me, Prayers for fifty Nights. All this, her Children performed: The first two Nights when the Monks began to fing Hymns about the Body, the Devils opened the Church Doors which were that with a great Bar, and broke two Chains; the third Night the noise of those Demons who came to fetch the Body was fo great, that the Foundation of the Church was shaken: But one Devil more terrible in shape than the rest, broke open the Door, and went to ward the Coffin commanding the Body to rife, which answered, It could not for the chain, Thou shalt be delivered (replied he) from that hindrance, and going to the Coffin broke the third Chain, and with his Foot thrust off the covering, then taking the Woman by the hand he led her out of the Church in the Presence of them all, to the door, where flood a black Horse neighing, on which the Woman was placed, and all the Company of Devils went away with her through the Air, their noise being so great that the Inhabitants thereabouts were = onished, Spe. Hist. lib 26.

XIV. In 1544. the Lord Grandison a Scotist Nobleman dwelt at Berwick; the Steward of his House was a Religious Man, but much afflicted in mind; Mr. Robert Ballom a zealous Minister in those Parts, came to vifit him, and for the prefent somewhat satisfied him : but two or three days after, being again forely afflicted Mr. Ballom was fent for, who finding him much weakened by this distemper of Mind, began to speak comfortably to him, but perceiving he could faften nothing upon him, he whispered in his Ear to this purpose. I doubt there is something within, which you would do well to discover: The Mans Tongue swelled immediately and came out of his Mouth, so that he was not able to speak, Mr. Ballom continued to discourse with him, till to the aftonishment of all in the Room (who were many, and some Persons of Quality) a shrill voice was heard as coming out of his Throat without any motion of his Tongue, I ying, What dost thou talk to him of free Grace. and Promises? He is mine, Mr. Balsom apprehending it to be the voice of the Devil, replied, No Satan thou dost not know any Man to be thine while there is Life in him.

Satan. But this is a notorious wicked Wretch, and therefore he is mine.

Ba form. Tet the Blind of Jefus Christ cleanseth us from all Sin.

Satan. If God would let me loose upon you, I should find enough in the best of you to make you all mine.

Ba som. But thou art bound Satan; and so turning himself to the standers by, he said with a chearful countenance, What a gracious God have we, that suffers not Satan to have his will upon us! The Devil hereupon began to curse, swear, and to biaspheme the Biessed Trinity, to whom Mr. Balsom said, The Lord rebuke thee Satan.

Satan But this Man is mine, for he hath given himfelf to me, and fealed it with his own Blood.

Ballom. I do not believe that the Father of Lyes speaketh Truth, of I do not believe how consident seever thou art, but that thou wilt lose thy hold before to morrow morning: The Devil then continued to curse and swear, and said, How canst thou endure to hear thy God thus blasphemed? I will never give over blaspheming as long as thou stayes in the Room.

Balsom. I will pray for the Man.

Satan. Wilt thou pray for a Man that is damned ? Balfom. I will go home and pray for him, and get all the force I can in the Town to joyn with me. After this there being no voice heard, Mr. Balson went home about a Eleven at night, where he found divers Christian Friends, which he intended to have fent for waiting for him, and upon the fight of them he spoke to this purpose, Friends I wonder at the Providence of God in bringing you hither at this time, for otherwise I must have sent for you; and so declaring what had befallen the afflicted Person, he defired them to joyn their Prayers with his on his behalf; which they continued for some part of the night : And next morning, Mr. Balsom found him in a very comfortable Condition, and asking him how he did, he aniwered, Through the Goodness of God I have overcome Satan, and am now as full of Comfort, es I was before of trauble: Thus he continued cheerful (tho' very weak) all that day, and the next morning died, nodisease being apparent on him. Clarks Mar.

XV. Strange is the Relation of the Devil of Mascon in France, as it was translated by Dr. Peter du Moulin, at the Request of the Honourable Robert Boyle Esquire, who was inly satisfied of the reality thereof; that in 1612 one Monsteur Perraud a Protestant Minister, being from his own House one night, his Wife being in Bed and in her first sleep, was awakened by the noise of her Curtains drawn violently, her Maid lying in the same Room arose and went to see what was the matter, but could discern nothing: The night following, the maid lying with her Mistress, after they were in Bed, they felt something pull off their Blankets; the Maid arose intending to go into the Ritchen, but found the Chamber boated on the outside, so she called a Boy that lay near, to unbolt the Door, coming into the Kitchen en and lighting a Candle, the found the Pewter and Brass about the Room, which both that and the night following made a great confused noise: Mr. Perreaud coming home was told all this, and before he would go to Bed fearched every corner of the House, and set Bolts and Barricadoes to all the doors and windows, flopping every Cat-hole, and left nothing to cause suf-picion of Imposture, and so went to Bed; scarce was he in his Bed, when he heard a great noise in the Kitchen, as the rowling a Billet thrown with great firength, a knocking against a Partition of Wainscot, things thrown against it; Musick was made with a brass Cullender: Upon this Mr. Perreaud rose, took his Sword and went into the Room where the noise was, but found nothing. Next morning Mr. Perreaud made it known to the Elders of the Church, and to Mr. Tornus a Notary Royal, after which the Notary and some others fat up with him every night till midnight during that offliction. The first night they came all was quiet, but Sep. 20. about nine a Clock in presence of them all, the Devil began to whiftle three or four Tunes with a loud and shrill tone, and spake somewhat hoarse, which seemed to be about three or four fleps from them, fluging a little tune of five notes which Birds are taught to whistle, and often repeated this word Minister, Minifter; then faid Mr. Perreaud, get thee from me Satan, the Lord rebuke thee; but continuing to repeat the word Mmisser; Mr. Perreaud said, 'Yes indeed I am a Minister, a Servant of the Living God, before whose Majesty thou tremblest; the Devil replyed, I say nohing to the contrary; Mr. Perreaud faid, I have no need of thy Testimony; yet did he continue to reseat the same. Then he endervoured to transform himelf into an Angel of Light, saying over very loud the ords Prayer, the Creed, the Morning and Evening rayer, and the X Commandments, but he always eit out fome part; he also lung with a loud and audible oice the 81 Pialm. Then he related many things oncerning Mr. Perreauds Family; as, that his Father

1 100 mojernote Enas of Magicians, Witche. was poisoned, naming the Man that did it, and th reasons why, and the place and manner of it; he ful ther said, That very night he came from Paris de Vaux and paffel through ehe Village of Allancogne; that at the deor of Mr. Perreaud's eldelt Brothers House, he had ses him with Mr. du Fa 1 Minister of Thoiry, who were reas to go to Supper together, and that they were Neighbours an Friends, that he had faluted them and asked them whether they would command him any Service to Mr. Perreaud, be cause he was going to Mascon; that they were very kind t bim, and defired him to remember their love to Mr. Perfeaud and invited him to drink with them; to this Mr. Perreau replied, Thou wicked Fiend if they had known thee the had not been so kind unto thee; Mr. Du Pau afterward told Mr. Perreaud that he remembred very well that at that very time a Man of a strange shape came riding on a lean Horse that bung down his Head, and spake to them to that purpose.

The Devil also told them of another Brother of Mr. Perreauds living in the Vale of the Lake de Joux, who one day, when some of their Kindred came to visit him, to give them some divertisement, carried them upon the Lake, upon a float of Wood, and that a fform arose which overturned the float, and almost drowned them all; which he affirmed to be of his raifing: also that the Man and his Wife, who had lived formerly in Mr. Perreauds house, being fallen out, the Wife took her time when her Husband was going down into his Shop, and pushed him with such violence, that her Husband fell down Stairs flark dead, that the going down a back pair of Stairs called her Servants, who finding their Master, judged him to dye of some sudden disease. Another time the Devil told one present such secret things, that the bian never told to any one, and judged that the Devil knew his thoughts; then he began to mock at God & all Religion&faid Gloria Patria, but skipped over the second Person, and made a horrible and desestable equivocation upon the third Person of the Bleffed Trinity; He defired them to fend for Mr. Du

Chaffin

and of Jurange Apparitions, &c. 41

Chaffin the Popish Priest of St. Stephens Parish to whom he would confess himself, and that he would not fail to bring Holy Water along with him, for that (faid he) would send me packing presently, and there being a fierce Dog in the House, the Devil said, You wonder that the Dog barks not at me, when I make all this noise, it is because I made the Sign of the Cross upon his Head.

Then he fell a scoffing and jearing, saying, That he was one of those who scaled the Walls of Geneva, and that the Ladder breaking, he fell from the Wall into the Ditch, where he was like to have been eaten up by the Frogs, and then he imitated their croaking; he faid alto, that Father Alexander a Jesuit, stood at the foot of the Ladder, encouraging the Savoyards to go up boldly, affaring them that they should take the City, and thereby win Paradise; and that when the Thirteen that were upon the Wall were taken by them of Geneva, and were led to the Gallows, the Women of the City faid to the Hangman, Courage Tabascu, thou shalt have money to drink. Then speaking of Paris du Vaux, he said, it was a Country where they made goodly Carbonadoes of Witches, and that he laughed at, very loud.

He jested much with one Michael Repay, and told him he should go with him, and be a Souidier under the Marquiss of St. Martins; what (sais Repay) should I go to War with a Coward as thy felf, who confesses that thou didft fly at the Scalado of Geneva; the Devil anwered, And do you think that I would go to be hanged vith my Comrades; no, I was not fuch a Fool: At another ime, he told them in a faint and mournful tone; that e had a mind to make his Will, for he must needs go o Chambray where he had a Law suit, and that he night dye by the way, and bid the maid go for mr. ornus the Notary, and declare to him what Legacies e would leave, and to one present he said, He would equeath five hundred Pound, but he answered, I will ive none of thy Money, thy Money perish with thee; he naied another to be his Heir General, who answered, bat he would not accept of the Inheritance, the Devil re-

42 The miserable Ends of Magicians, Witches, plied. I will free thee from it for fix pence and a piece of Bread. As he was once speaking, a Man who used to be present, susht into the place whence the voice seemed to come, and searched it strictly, as many had done before; but found nothing except feveral odd things, and a small Bottle; at which the Devil lauthing, said, I was told long fince that thou wast a Foot, and I see thou art one indeed, to believe that I am in the Bottle, I should be a fool my self to get into it, for so I might be catched by stopping the Bottle with ones Finger. He was once angry, because Mr. Perreaud said to him, Go thou cursed into ever-lasting Fire prepared for the Devil and his Angels, he replied, Thou lieft I am not curfed, I hope yet for Salvation

by the Death and Passim of Jesus Christ.

He then threatned Mr. Perreaud that he would pull off the Blankets & p'uck him out of Bed by the feet; Mr. Perreand answered, I will lay me down and Sleep, for the Lord maketh me to dwell in safety; thou canst have no power over me, but what is given thee from above, whereupon he said, it is well for thee it is well for thee. The Devil at last confessed. That he could not prevail against them, because they did too much call upon the Name of God; and indeed it was observed, as often as they kneeled down to Prayer, the Devil left talking, and often said, While you are at your Prayers I will take a turn into the Street, but Prayer ended he used to begin as before, urging them to talk with him, which course he continued, till Novemb. 25. At which time he fpake these his last words. Alas, Alas, I shall speak no more: After which he never uttered a word more. " It a the ...

. A grave Divine hearing the Devil speak profanely, rebuked him fharply, the Devil answered, Minister you are very holy and zealous in this Company, but you were not fo when you were finging such a Baudy Song in such a Tavern; and then the Devil fung the same Song before them all; the Divine faid, Its true Satan. I have been licentious in my younger years, but God of his Mercy hath given me repentance and Pardon; but for thy part thou art hardened in fin, and shast never have Repen-

Mance

and of Itrange Apparitions, &c. 43

tance nor Pardon. He said also of the Protestants, O poor Hugonots, you shall have much to suffer within a few years, O what mischief is intended against you?

A Popish Lawyer came out of curiofity to Mr. Perreauds House, and hearing the Devil foretold future things would needs question him; Mr. Perreaud desired him to forbear, representing the fin and danger of it; the Lawyer rejected his Counfel with scorn, bidding him teach his own Flock, and to let him govern himself, and so propounded several Questions to the Devilabout absent Friends, private Buliness, News, State-Affairs, to all which the Devil answered, and then added, 'Now Sir I have told you all you demanded of me, I must tell you next what you demanded not; that at this very time you are propounding these questions to the Devil, such a Man (whom he named) is doing your business with your Wife, and then discoe vered many secret and foul practices of the Lawyer, and in the conclusion, Now faid he, Sir let me correct o you for being so bold as to question with the Devil. you should have taken the Ministers safe Counsel. Then upon a fudden the whole Company saw the Lawyer drawn by the Arm into the midtle of the Room, where the Devil whirled him about with great swiftness touching the ground only with his Toe, and then threw him on the floor with much violence; and being carried home he lay fick and distracted long after.

It feems Satan was now let loofe in France, for the Devil appeared at Lions like a fine Gentlewoman to the Lieutenant of the Watch, called La Jaquiere, and two of his Companions who had all carnal knowledge of her and came to Tragical ends. A Person of Quality at Paris had Cohabitation with the Devil in the shape of a beautiful Lady, who being visited by Physicians was sound to be the Body of a Woman hanged some days before. And the Prisons in Moson were filled with Men and Women, young and old, all indicted of Witchcraft; who appealed to the Parliament of Paris; as they went thither under a Guard, a Coach met them, and in it one like a Judge who asked the Captain what Prisoner he conducted; he having fatisfied him, he called to one by Name, faying, How now! Art thou one too ? Fear nothing, for neither thou, nor any of thy Company (hall suffer; This proved true, for foon after they were all released. A Girl at Masen of about thirteen, Daughter to a Citizen, lying with the Maid, perceiving the absented her seif many times in the Night, asked her whence she came ? the Maid answered, That she came from a place where was good Company, good Dancing, and all kind of Sports and Merriment: The Girl defired the Maid to bring her thither, so she anointed her, and made her do the Ceremonies prescribed by Witches: after which the Girl was carried into the Air, but seeing her self above the Convent of the Capuchin Fryars, she called upon God for help, who caused the Devil to lay her down in the Fryers Garden about midnight: The Capuchins hearing her lamenting voice, went to her, to whom she related these passages, so two of them secretly conducted her to her Fathers House. Also, the Devil haunted the House of a Woman-Baker in Mascon in the shape of a Man with a Red Cap on his Head, and would often look out of the Window by Moon-light,& was feen by many. He kept a great stir in St. Stephens Church in Mascon, overturning divers Graves, &c. He did the like also, in the Church of St. Alban, and in a Widdows House near Mascon, he did much damage for three Months together, letting out the Wine in the Cellar, and beating several Persons : A Lock-Smith coming drunk into the Houle, gave many ill, and threatning words to the Devil, who with the Andiron grievoully beat him, till he run out of the House.

44 The miserable Ends of Magicians, Witches, one like a Judge who asked the Captain what Prices

The ten or twelve last Days, the Devil threw stones about Mr. Perreauds House from Morning to Evening, in great Quantity, some of three pounds weight: One of those last Days, Mr. Tonrus went to Mr. Perreaud's House, to know whether the Devil was there still; and whistling several Tunes, the Devil answered him in the same Tune; then the Devil threw a stone at him, which falling at his Feet he took it up, marking it with a Coal, and threw it into the back-fide, and prefently the Devil threw it at him again; he found it very hot and said, That he believed it had been in Hell since he handled it first. December 22. The Devil went quite away, and next day, a great Viper was feen going out of Mr. Perreand's House, which being discovered by some Nailors, they fiezed it with long Pincers; and carried it all over the Town, crying, Here is the Devil that came out of the Ministers House, and lest it with an Apothecary, and it was found to be a True and Natural Viper, a Serpent rarely feen in those Countries. All the while the Devil haunted Mr. Perreaud's House, God suffered him not to do the least hurt either to their Persons or Goods.

This Narrative was drawn up at large by Mr. Pereand a Divine, and attested by many credible Witreffes. Confidering then the many notable Pranks of the Devil and his Disciples, it is strange there is no nore hart done in the World; did we not remember that their power is so limited by God, that they cannot perform what their malice would prompt them to, ind for those who are resolved not to believe there are spirits, Apparition or Possessions, it is because they lave neither seen nor been sensible of any such matter. shall conclude with this short but true Account.

XVII. In 1599 at Loin in Gulick, a damsel called Helena, was possessed by the Devil, whom the Popish Surate of the Parith undertook to eject, but when he ad used many Charms to no purpose, being in a great age, he said to the Devil, If thou hast any Power to ener into a Christians Body, depart out of the Damsel and nter into me; To whom the Devil answered, What need tempt him whom, by good right, I shall be sure to enjoy at be last day? Chasson Loci Commun.

CHAP. III.

Remarkable Predictions and Passages of approaching Death; and how the Evens has been answerable: With an account of some Appeals to Heaven in case of Injustice from Men, and what hath followed thereupon.

Inforians observe there have seldom been any remarkable Revolutions in the Fortunes of considerable Places or Persons, but there were certain previous Presages thereof: And though some may be only accidental and adapted to the occasion by the Ingenuity of others; yet many may seem sent on purpose from Heaven with no obscure intimations of what Divine Providence was about to bring to pals.

It is observable that when men who sit in the place of God, shall through Corruption or Malice oppress the Innocent, in such Cases the supream Judge of reserves the decision of the Causesto be made at his own Bar, and hath inspired the Injured to give Oppressors a summons of Appearance, which they have not been able to avoid, tho sometimes told the affixed days wherein their Destiny should happen: Of both which we shall recite several Examples.

I. Josephus sets down this as a Prodigy presaging the Destruction of the Jews; There was saith he, one Jessus the Son of Ananias, a Country Man of mean Berth, who for four years before the Siege of Jerusalem when all was in a deep Peace and Security; coming up to the Feast of Tabernacles, began upon a sudden to cry out and say, A Voice from the East, a Voice from the West, a Voice from the four Winds, a Voice against Jerusalem, and the Temple, a Voice against Bridegrooms and Brides, a voice against all the People; Thus he went about crying night and of Appeals to Divine Justice.

and day; and being apprehended and scourged, he fill continued the same, even under the very stroaks, without any other word; fo they supposing it some Divine motion brought him before the Roman Prefect, and being by his command again whipt and his flesh torn to the Bones, he neither shed one tear nor entreated for Mercy, but to every blow in a mournful tone he cried out, Wo, Wo to Jerusalem: This he conrinued to the time of the Siege even for feven years together; and at last to his common saying of Wo to the City, the People, the Temple, &c. he added, Wo ikewise to my self, and immediately a stone from the Sattlements fell upon him and killed him. Josephus lift. Tews.

II. The Duke of Buckingham had some ominous refages of his End being to take his leave of Laud A. lishop of Canterbury, My Lord (faith the Duke) I know your Lordship hath worthily good access to the King, pray put his Majesty in Mind to be good (as I no ways distrust) to my poor Wife and Children; at hich words the Bishop somewhat troubled, askt him hether he had any secret presage in his mind; No aid the Duke) 'But I think some adventure may kill me as well as another man. The Day before he was in feeling some indisposition, K. Charles I. gave him a lit in his Bed, where after much private conference Duke at the Kings departing imbraced him in a veunusual manner, and also his friend the Earl of Hold, as if his Soul had divined he should see them no he. On the day of his Death the Countels of Denhis Sister received a Letter from him, whereunto the was writing her answer she bedewed the Pawith her tears, and after a bitter Paffeon (whereof could yield no reason, but that her Brother was e, fell in a swound, her Letter ended thus, I will ay for your happy return which I look at with a eat Cloud over my Head, too heavy for my poor art to bear without torment, But I liope the great od of Heaven will blefs you: The morning after his

murther

8 Remarkable Prejages of Death,

murther the B. of Ely, her devoted Friend, came to vifit her, attending till she should awake, which she did with the affrightment of a Dream, 'her Brother seeming to pass thro' a Field with her in her Coach, where hearing a sudden thout of the People and asking the reason was answered, it was for joy that the Duke of Buckingham was fick, which she had scarce related to her Gentlewoman before the Bishop entred her Bedchamber, as a Messenger of the Dukes sudden Death. His Picture fell down in the High Commission Chamber at Lambeth, the same day that Dr. Lamb his great Fav ourite was flain in the City of London for a Conjurer ; also the Lady Davis, reputed a great Prophetels. had foretold that the Dukes fatal time would not come till August; and Lastly, Mr. Towerson an Officer of the Custom-house was charged by a Phantasme or Spirit like the Dukes Father, to tell him, 'That if he changed not his Courses he would shortly become a great Fairing to the City of London, which was thought accomplished by his Death. Aug. 23. The Day before Bartholomew Day Jon Felton at Portsmouth gave him a deep wound in his left fide by a back blow with a Dagger, which the Duke himfelf pulling out, funk under the Table in the Room and expired; one thing (faith Sir Henry Wotton) is to me beyond all wonder, That not many minutes after the Dukes fall, and removal of the Body into the first Room, there was no a living Creature in either of the Chambers near the Body, whereas commonly in fuch Cases, a sudden conflux of People crowds to the place to hearken and fee but it seems the horror of the Fact stupified all curio fity. Relique Wottoniana.

Merchant of London was failing from Palermo in Sicily wherein dwelt at that time one Antonio, firnamed The Rich, who had at one time two Kingdems mort gaged to him by the King of Spain; Mr. Gresham croffed by contrary Winds was confirmined to Anchor ut der the Island of Strombolo, where was a burning Mountain Mountain: Now about Mid-day, when for a certain space the Mountain used to forbear sending forth its flames, he with Eight of the Sailors ascended the Mountain approaching as near the Vent as they durst, where amongst other Noises, they heard a voice cry aloud, Dispatch, Dispatch, the Rich Antonio is coming; terrified herewith they hafted their return, and the Mountain presently vomited out fire, but desiring to know more of this matter, they returned to Palermo, and inquiring for Antonio found he died about that vesy instant when that voice was heard by them; Mr. Gresham at his return into England, reported this to the King, and the Mariners confirmed the same on their Oaths. This wrought fo deep an impression upon Mr. Gresham that he gave over Merchandizing, and distributed his Estate to his Kindred and good uses, retaining only a competency, and spent the rest of his days in a solitary Devotion. Sandies Travels, lib. 4.

IV. James IV. K. of Scotland intending War with England, an old man of a venerable Afpect in a long Blew Garment, came to the Church of St. Michaels at Linlithgow; while he was at his devotion, and leaning over the Canons Seat where the King sate, said, I am fent unto thee O King to give thee warning not to preceed in the War thou art about, for if thou do, it will be thy Ruine: And having thus faid, withdrew back anong the multitude: The King after Service ended nquired earnestly for him, but he could not be found, either could any perceive how, when, or where he affed from them, but no warning could divert his estiny. His Queen also acquainted him with the vions and Affrightments of her sleep, that her Chains nd Armlets were turned into Pearl; that she had ft one of her Eyes: he answered, ' These were but Dreams arifing from the many thoughts and cares of the day; fo he marched on and fought with the Enth, and was slain in Flodden Field, with a great maof his Nobility and Souldiers, Sept. 9. 1513. Bars Chronicle.

V. The Lord Haftings was arrefted by Richard III. because he would not joyn with him against the young King Edward V. and in making Richard King, who was already Protector: And being charged with High Treason, Richard wished him to make hast to be confessed, for he swore by St. Paul (his usual Oath) That he would not touch Bread or Drink till his Head was off, to he was led forth to the Green in the Tower, where his Head was laid upon a log of Timber and ftricken off. In this Man's Life we may observe how inevitable destiny is, for the night before the L. Stanly fent a fecret Messenger at midnight to acquaint him with a dream he had, that a Bore with his Tulhes so goared them in their Heads, that the Blood ran about their shoulders; And because Richard gave the Bore in his Arms this Dream made such a fearful impression upon his Heart, that he resolved to stay no longer, and had made his Horse ready, desiring the L. Hastings to go with him, thereby to be out of danger before day-light: But the Lord Hastings answered the Messenger, Good Lord! doth your Mafter lean so much on such trifles to put such Faith in Dreams, which either his own Fear fancieth, or else do rife in the nights rest by reafon of the Days thoughts ; Go back to my Mafter and commend me to him, and pray him to be merry and have no fear, for I affure him as I am as fure of the Man he thinketh of, as of mine own Head: The Man he meant was Catesby who deceived him, and was a the first mover to rid him out of the way : the same : morning his Horse stumbled twice or thrice with him almost to falling, which tho' it happen to such to whom no mischance is towards, yet hath been oft observed a token of some great misfortune. Bakers Chronicle.

VI. An Italian called David Rifio, followed the Ambaffador of Savoy into Scotland, hoping to better his Fortune & attended on Q. Mary in Quality of a Mufician, after growing into favour, he was admitted to write her French Letters, and then to be Secretary of State, had the Queens Est. Seemed all Affairs at Court;

rea

Yea grew to that excess of Pride as to outbrave the K. in his Apparel, Household Furniture, number and forts of Horses, and every thing else. This Man had warning oft given him by John Damiot a French Priest, thought to have skill in Magick, to do his business and be gone, for he could not frand against those that opposed him, he answered disdainfully, the Scots are given more to brag than fight. Some days before his Death, being warned, by him to take heed of the Baftard, he replied, that whilft he lived he should not have Credit nor Power enough in Scotland to do him hurt's for he thought the Earl of Murray to be the Man, but one day in the Queens Bed Chamber, the first stroke was given him by George Douglas base Son to the Earl of Angus, after whom every man inflicted his wound till he was dispatched in 1565. Spotwood Hist. of Scotland.

VII. A. B. Laud had strange Presages of his fall and death. Decemb. 27. 1629, happened fuch a violent Tempest that many Boats at Lambeth were broke to pieces, the shafts of two Chimneys were blown down upon the Roof of his Chamber, and beat down the Lead and Rafters on his Bed, in which ruin he must have perished if the roughness of the Water had not forced him to keep his Chamber at Whitehall. The same night at Croyden one of the Pinnacles fell from the Steeple beating down the Roof of the Church above twenty foot square. And at the Cathedral at Canter bury, one of the Pinnacles upon the Belfry Towewhich carried a Vane of this Arch Bishops Arms upon it, was carried a great distance from the Steeple and fell upon the Roof of the Cloister, under which the Arms of the Archbishops See were engraven in stone; which gave one occasion to say, That the Arms of the present Archbishop of Canterbury breaking down the Arms of the See of Canterbury not only presaged his own fall but the ruin of the Metropolitical Digmity by the weight thereof. On St. Simon and Judes Eve, a week before the beginning of the Parliament, C 3

1640. which drew him to his fatal ruine, going to his Study to fend fome Manuscripts to Oxford, he found his Picture which was at full length fallen on the floor flat on its Face, the string being broke by which it hung; at the fight whereof he began to sear it to be an Omea of Ruin coming toward him, and occasioned him to look back on what chanced Septemb. 19. 1633. the day of his Translation to the See of Canterbury, when the Ferry-Boat transporting his Coach and Horses, with many of his Servants in it, sunk to the bottom of the Thames. Heyins Life A. B. Laud.

VIII. Duncan K. of Scots had two principal Favorites, Mackbeth and Banquo, who travelling thro' a Forrest were met by three Witches or Wizards, the first Witch making obeysance to Mackbeth, saluted him by the name of Thane or Earl of Glammis, the fecond faluted him Thane or Earl of Cauder, the third King of Scotland. This is unequal dealing faid Banquo, to give my Friend Mackbeth all the Honours and me none; one of the Witches answered, That he indeed should not be King, but out of his Loins should come a Race of Kings to rule the Scots; and having thus faid they all vanished : upon their arrival at Court Mackbeth was created Earl of Glammis, and foon after Earl of Cauder; feeing then how happily the Predictions of the three Wizards fell out in the two former, he refolved not to be wanting to himself in fulfilling the third, so he called to mind the Prediction about Banquo, suspecting whom as his Supplanter he killed, with his whole Posterity, only Fleance one of his Sons escaped with difficulty into Wales. Mackbeth thus freed from fear of Banquo and his iffue built Dunfinan Castle, but on some new sears consulting of his Wizards of his future State, he was told by one, 'That he should never be overcome till Bernane Wood came to Dunfinan Caffle, and by another that he should never be flain by any Manthat was born of a Woman; secure then from all future dangers, he gave himself up to debauchery & cruelty eighteen years, but then Mack-duff Governor of Fife with other Patriots of their Country met privately one Evening at Bernane Wood, and taking every one a bough in his Hand to keep them from discovery, they marched early in the morning towards Dunfinan Castle; which they took by ftorm; Mackbeth escaping was pursued by Mackduff who overtaking him, urged him to the Combate, the Tyrant in scorp answered, 'That he in vain attempted to kill him, it being his Fate never to be flain by any Man that was born of a Woman: now then (said Mackduff) is thy fatal end drawing fast upon thee, for I was never born of a Woman, but cut out of my Mothers Belly; which so daunted the Tyrant though otherwise valiant that he was easily slain. Fleance being in Wales gained the affection of the Princes Daughter of the Country, and by her had a Son called Walter, and they flying out of Wales returned into Scotland, where his descent being known he was restored to the Honors of his House, and preferred to be Steward to Edgar King of Scotland, the name of Stewart growing hence hereditary to his Posterity; from this Walter descended Robert Stewart, who succeeded David Bruce, the Progenitor of 11 Kings of the name of Stewart, which reigned successively over that Kingdom. Heylins Cofmography.

IX. The D. of Biron, a Peer of France, when only Baron of Biron, being in trouble for the death of the Lord Cerency, and others flain in a quarrel, went difguised like a Carrier to La Brosse a great Mathematician held skilfull in Nativities, and shewed his Nativity frawn by some other, pretending it was a Gentlenans whom he ferved, that defired to know what end hat Man should have; La Brosse having erested this figure, faid he was of a good House, and no oldererson than he, asking him if it were his, the Baron nfwered, I will not tell you, but pray let me know vhat his life and end shall be; The old Man who was hen in a little Garret, which served him for a Study aid unto him, 'My Son I fee that he whose Nativity this is shall come to great honour by his Industry and Military Valour, and may be a King, but that there is a Caput Argol which hinders it : The Baron askthim what that was? La Brofs reply'd, Ask me not what it is: I must needs know it, said the B. In the end he answered, 'My Son it is this, that he will commit such things as will make him lose his head. The Baron beat him, and left him half dead, carrying away the Key of the Garrot door with him, as he bragg'd afterwards. Likewise one Cæsar a Magician at Paris told him. That only a back-blow of a Burgonian would hinder him from being King; He remembred this Prediction being a Prisoner in the Bastile, and hearing the Hangman of Paris was a Burgonian, he faid, I am a dead Man, and soon after he was beheaded for Conspiring against the King. Hist. France.

mouth, a Man much admired for foretelling many Ages before the Union of England and Scotland in the minth Degree of Bruces Blood, with the succession of Bruce to the Crown being yet a Child, and many other things which the Event made good. The day before the Death of K. Alexander, he told the Earl of the arch that before next day noon, such a Tempest frould blow as Scotland had not fall many years be

X. In 1279. There lived in Scotland one T. Ler-

Fround blow, as Scotland had not felt many years before. The next morning proving clear, the Earl challenged Thomas as an Impostor, he replied that noon was not yet past; about which time a Post came to inform the Earl of the Kings sudden Death; then said Thomas this is the Tempest I foretold, and so it shall prove to Scotland, as indeed it did. Spotswoods Hist.

Scotland.

XI. Two Gentlemen intimate acquaintance travelled to the City of Megara, when they were arrived, one went to lodge at a Friend of his, the other at an Inn. He that was at his Friends house, saw in his sleep his Companion beseching him to affish him, for he was set upon by his Landlord, and that by his speedy coming he might deliver him from a very imminent danger, being

being awakened he leaps from his Bed and intends to go to the Inn, but by an unhappy fate desists from his compassionate purpose, and believing his Dream had nothing in it, returns to his bed and sleep; when the Person appears the second time all bloody, and requested him earneflly, That feeing he had neglected the prefervation of his Life, yet he would not be wanting to revenge his Death, That he was murdered by his-Landlord, and at this very time was carried in a Cart toward the Gate of the City, covered with Dung; the Man overcome with these intreaties of his Friend. runs to the Gate, finds the Cart he had feen in his Dream, which he seizes, and finds the Body of his Friend, and drags the Innkesper to his deserved punishment. D. More Immortal Soul.

XII. Mr. Morison an English Gentleman, gives this-Relation; whilst I lived at Prague, early in the morning the Sun Beams glancing on my Face in my Bed, I dreamed that a shadow passing by, told me my Father was dead, at which awaking all in a sweat, and affected with this Dream, I arose, and wrote the day, hour and all circumstances in a paper Book, which with many other things, I put into a Barrel and fent to England : And being at Nuremburch, a Merchant well acquainted with me and my Relations, told me my Father dyed fome Months past; when I returned into England four years after, I would not open the Barrel, nor look into the Book in which I had writ this Dream, till I called my Sisters and other Friends to be witnesses, where my self and they were astonished to see my dream answer the very day of my Fathers Death. Morifons Travels.

XIII. The night before Henry 2.0f France was flain, Q. Margaret his Wife dreamed, That the faw her Husbands. Eye put out; there were Justs and Turnaments at that time, into which the Queen belought her Husband not to enter because of her dream, but he was refolved, and there did great things; when it was almost done he would needs run a Tilt with a Knight who refused him, named Montgomery, but the King was bent upon it, so breaking their Launces to Shivers in the encounter, a splinter breaking struck the King to full into the Eye that he received his deadly wound. It is to be observed of this King, That Ann du Bourg a Councellor of fingular understanding, making a Speech before him a little before his Death, in defence of the Protestant Religion and against Persecution, he therein ' rendred thanks to Almighty God for moving the Kings Heart to be present at the decision of so weighty a Cause as that of Religion, and humbly entreated him to confider thereof it being the Cause of Christ himself, which of right ought to be maintained by Princes, &c. But the King instead of hearkning to his good advice, was so incensed that he caufed him to be apprehended and carried to Prison, protesting to him in these words, These Eyes of mine thall fee thee burnt, fending a Commission to the Judges to make his Process; mean time great Feasts were preparing at Court, for the Marriages of the Kings Daughter and Sister: The day being come the King imployed all the morning in examining the Prefident and other Councellors of Parliament against du Bourg, and others charged with the same Doctrines; intending to glut his Eyes in feeing his Execution, but that very afternoon he received that fatal blow in his right Eye, which so pierced his Head that his Brains were perished, and killed him in eleven days, whereby his hope of feeing du Bourg burned, was frustrated. Clarks Martyr.

XIV. One dreamed he was bitten to death by a Lyon of Marble, that was fet at the Entrance of the Temple; and next morning going to that Temple, and beholding the Marble Statue of the Lion, he jeftingly told his Dream to those with him, and putting his hand into the Lions Mouth faid laughing, Bite now my valiant Enemy, and if thou cansit, kill me: He had tree spoke the words when he was stung to death with a Scorpion that there lay hid, and unexpectedly found the truth of his Dream. Crescentius the Pope Legate at the Council of Trent, being busy a writing. Letters till late in the night, saw a black Dog of a vast bigness, flaming Eyes, and Ears almost to the ground enter the roum directly toward him, who laid himself under the Table; frighted at the fight, he called for his Servants to look for the Dog, but they could find none. The Cardinal hereupon fell fick, crying out upon his Death-bed, drive away the Dog that leaps upon the Bed. Wanly Hift. of man. XV. In 1154 Henry Archbishop of Mentz, a pious and peaceable Man, not able to endure the diffoliste manner of his Clergy determined to subject them to tharp censure: but while he thought of this he himfelf was by them aforehand accused to Pope Eugenius 4. The Archbishop sent Arnoldus his Chamberlain to Rome, to make proof of his Innocency, but the Traitor deserted his Lord, and instead of desending him traduced him thither. The Pope fent two Cardinals to Mentz to determine the Cause; who being bribed by the Cannons and Arnoldus, deprived Henry of his Bishoprick with great scorn and ignominy, and substituted Arnoldus in his stead. Henry bore all patiently without appealing to the Pope, which he knew would be to no purpote, but openly declared, That from their unjust Judgment he made Appeal to Christ the just Judge; there (said he) will I put in my Aufwer, and thither I cite you: The Cardinals jeffingly replied, When thou art gone before we will follow thee. - About a year after the Archhishop died; upon which the Cardinals faid, Lo, he is gone before and we shall follow after. But their jest proved earnest, forpoth died the same day, one in an house of Office, end the other gnawing of his own Fingers in the madress of his Distemper. Arnoldus who was accessary was affinited in a Monastry, butchered, and his Carcals hrown into the Town-Ditch. Chetwind Col.

XVI. Philibert Hamlin a Popilh Prieft in France, vas in 1557, converted to the Protoftant Religion, and went to Geneva, where he was made a Minister of the Reformed Religion, preaching with good fuc-cess at Alenart, and other places: At last the with his Landlord whom he had instructed in the Protestant Religion were cast into Prison at Burdeaux; whilst they lay there, in came a Priest with his Accoutrements to fay Mass; But Philibert inflamed with zeal against fuch ridiculous Fopperies, pluckt the Garments from his Back, and overthrew the Chalice and Candlesticks, laying, . Is it enough to blaspheme God in the Churches, and not to pollute the Prison also with your Idolatry. The Jaylor seeing this fell upon him, beat him and removed him into a Dungeon, loading him with Irons which made his Legs swell, where he lay 8 days; his Landlord terrified with the fear of death renounced his Religion, and was set at Liberty, whereopon Philibert faid unto him, Ounhappy and more than miserable Man! is it possible you should be so foolish, as for faving your Life a few days, to deny the Truth? know therefore that tho you hereby avoid corporal Fire, yet your life shall be never the Ionger, for you shall die before me, and yet have not the honour to dye for the Cause of God, but shall be an example to all Apostates. The Landlord going out of the Prison was flain by two Gentlemen, who had a quarrel against him; Philibert hearing it. protested, that he knew of no such thing before, but spoke as it pleased God to guide his Tongue : Philibert being condemned and carried to execution they drowned his voice by founding of Trumpets, yet in the midst of the Flames, praying and exhorting the People to Constancy in the Truth, he rendred up his Soul to Gcd. Clarks Martyr. p. 228.

XVH. When by the perswasson of Philip King of France, Pape Clement had condemned the Order of Knights Templers, and put many to death; a Neapolitan Knight being brought to suffer, espying the Pope and King of France; at a Window, he with a loud voice said, Clement thou cruel Tyrant, seeing there is none left among Mortals to whom I may make my Appeal, as to that grievous death whereto thou haft unjustly condemned me, I do therefore appeal to the just Judge, Christ our Redeemer, unto whose Tribunal, I cite thee and King Philip, to make your Appearance within a year and a day; where I will then open and defend my Cause. Pope Clement died within the time, and King Philip soon after, in 1214. Lipfius Mon. l. 2.

XVIII. A Master of the Teutonick Order, propofed a Match between a young Merchant and a Woman of doubtful Fame: The young man refused the overture, because he that perswaded the Marriage, was supposed to be no hater of the Woman; the Master refented this refusal so ill, that he contrived the young Man should be accused of Thest, and being condemned he commanded him to be hanged; prayers and tears were of no avail; so the Innocent as he was led to Execution. faid with a loud voice, I suffer unjustly, and appeal to the supream Lord of Life and Death, to whom he that hath fo unjuftly condemned me, shall render an account thirteen day after this very day. The Master scoffed at this, but that very day being taken with a sud-den sickness, he cryed out, 'Miserable Man that I am, behold I dye, and this day must I appear before the All-seeing judge; and died presently after. Wanly Hift. of Man.

XIX. A poor Labourer at Calice, who had been an hearer of Mr. Adam Damlip (a famous Protestant Preacher at Calice, when in the hands of the English) faying among some Company, That he would never believe the Priest could make the Lords Body at his pleasure, he was condemned by one Harvey a Commissary there, who railed upon him, calling him heretick, and saying he should die a vite death; the poor man answered, I am no Heretick, but hold the true Faith of Christ, and whereas thou sayes I shall die a vile death, thou thy self shalt dye a vile death, and that shortly: The Man was burnt, Harvey in half a year was hanged and quartered for Treason. Clarks

60

Martyr. p. 427.

XX. In Sweden Johannes Turfo, sentenced a man to lose his head, who when all other defence was denied, fell on his knees and with great earnestness said, Behold I dye unjustly and cite thee unjust Judge, to Gods Tribunal, there to answer for my head within this hour. These were looked on as frivolous words, but scarce was the Man beheaded when the Judge himself fell down dead, Delrio. Otho Emp. of Room being reprehended by his Son William then Bishop of Mentz. for his Marriage with Adelaida, the Emp. was so offended that he fent him to Prison; the Bishop cited his Father Otho to the Tribunal of Christ, And (said he) upon Whitsunday both of us shall appear before the Lord Christ, where by Divine Judgment it shall appear who hath transgressed the limits of his Duty; so the Emperor died on Whitfunday, and his Son the Bishop some short time before, Drexel Op.

XXI. Rodulphus Duke of Austria, being offended with a Knight, caused him to be thrust into a Sack and thrown into the River; the Knight being in the Sack, as yet not sown up, espying the Duke looking out of a Window to behold the Spectacle, cryed with a loud voice, Duke Rodulph, I summon thee to appear at the dreadful Tribunal of the Almighty God, within the compass of one year, there to shew cause wherefore thou hast undeservedly put me to death. The Duke received this Summons with laughter, and said, Well go thou before and I will then present my seif; the Year being almost spent the Duke fell into a light Feaver, and remembring the Appeal, said, The time of my Death doth now approach, and I must go to Judgment, and died soon after. Dinoth lib. 8.

XXII. Ferdinand II. of Spain, was a great. Man, but rigid in Judgment, feeming to incline to cruelty. About 1312 he commanded two Brothers, Peter and John of the Noble Family of Garvialii to be thrown headlong from an high Tower, as being suspected guilty of the Death of Beneridius, a noble Person, tho' they with great constancy denied it; but finding the King had no regard to any defence they could make, they appealed to the Divine Tribunal, and turning to the King, bid him Remember to make his Appearance there, within thirty days at the farthest; Ferdinand made no reckoning of their words, but upon the thirtieth day after, his Servants supposing he was alleep, sound him dead in his Bed, in the slower of his Age, being but twenty four years old. Wanly Hist. Man.

XXIII. Burchardus Bishop of Halberstadt, in 1050. had an unjust controversie with the Abbot of Helverdense about some Lands in Saxony, which the Bishop by force fought to make his own; it was to no purpole to refift to powerful an Adverfary; but the injured Abbot some days before his Death sent to Frederick Count Palatine, and intreated him to bear these his last words to the Prelate, That being too weak to contend (tho' the Law was on his fide) he gave place, and was departing his Life, but that God would be the Judge to whom he made his Appeal; and that both of them should prepare to order their cause before his Tribunal, where favour and power set aside only Justice should prevail. In a short time the Abbot died of a Fever, and the Bishop as he was mounting his Horse, fell down as if ftricken with a Thunderbolt, whose last words were, That he was hurried away to the Judgment Seat of God, there to be Judged. Deltio. Difquisit. lib. 4.

XXIV. Francis D. of Britain, cast his Brother Ægidius into Prison, and falsly accused him of high Treason. Ægidius almost famished, perceiving his fatal hour approached, called a branciscan out of the window of the Prison, and made him promise to tell his Brother, that within 14 days he should stand before the Judgment Scat of God: The Franciscan found the Duke in Normandy, and told him of his brothers Death, and of his appeal to the Tribunal of God; the Duke terrified with this Message, gre x ill, and expired upon the very day appointed. Drexelius

Oper.

XXVI. Patrick Hamilton of an honourable Family in Scotland, went into Germany, and became acquainted with Luther and Melancthon at Wittenburg, from thence he went to the University of Marpurg, and for his Learning and Integrity of Life was had in Admiration; however he could not rest till he returned into his own Country, where the Reformation began to break forth, as well in publick, as private, which so disturbed the Popish Clergy, that J. Beaton, A. B. of St. Andrews fent for Hamilton, and after conference he had his Liberty, the Bishop seeming to approve his Doctrine, and that there needed a Reformation in the Church; but the rest fearing their Kingdom of Darkness should be endamaged, perswaded the King, then young & led by him, to go on Pilgrimage to St. Dothefs in Ross, that no application might be made to him for faving his Life, who not suspecting their malice, remained like a Lamb among Wolves: The K. being gone, Mr. Hamilton was seized by the Bishops Officers, and carried to the Castle, and next day was brought forth into Judgment, and condemned to be burnt upon several Articles about Pilgrimages, Purgatory, Prayers to Saints, &c. After dinner the fire was prepared, and being tyed to the Stake, he cried with a loud voice, Lord Jesus receive my Spirit! how long shall darke ness overwhelm this Realm, and how long wilt thou fuffer the Tyranny of these Men? The fire was slow, and put him to great Torment; but that which most troubled him, was the clamour of fome Friars, who cried, Turn thou Heretick, call upon our Lady, fay, Salve Regina, &c. To whom he answered, Depart from me thou Messenger of Satan; and speaking to Cambell a Friar, (with whom he had conferred about Religion, who informed and roared against him to recant) Mr. H. with great vehemency faid, Wicked Man, thou knowest the contrary, and liast confessed the contrary to me, I appeal thee before the Tribunal of Clus

Tefus Chrift. After which he refigned up his Spirit to God in 1527. Cambell was troubled at these Words, and from that day was never in his right mind, dying mad. Clarks Martyr.

Thus though the Fool hath said in his Heart there is no God, and because Justice is not presently inflicted upon Sinners, Men hardens themselves in Rebellion against Heaven, yet we here find that the Lord is known by the Judements which he ezecuteth.

CHAP. IV.

The Wicked Lives and Woful Deaths of Several Popes, and likewise of Apostates and Persecutors.

A Fter the Bishops of Rome had tasted the sweetness of Power, Wealth and Prosperity, they lost heir Humility and Purity of Religion, and affumed 'olitick and Tyrannical Principles, laying afide the word of the Spirit, defiling their hands with the lood of Emperors, Kings, Princes and all forts of 'cople 3 and hereby apostatizing from Christianity. and the Popes their Successors wallowed in all kind f wickedness, and from being poor persecuted Bi-10ps, became Persecutors of others: But Divine Juice inflicted severe Vengeance both on them and heir Instruments; since Apostacy is thought to be the o of the Holy Ghost, Heb. 6. 4, 5, 6. And God ath not lest himself without witness, but hath made em Examples of his Severity, as the following Inances will demonstrate, both as to wicked Popes, Aoffates and Persecutors.

I. Pope John 13. was accused of Witchcraft, Magick, ebauchery and Perjury; he dismembred divers Cardinals for taking part with Otho against him, plucking out the Eyes of some, cutting off the Hands, and Gel ding others: He made Deacons among his Horses, and for Money made Boys Bishops; deflowed Reynor, and Ann her Neice; put out the Eyes of his Ghoftly Father Benedict, brake Windows in the Night, fe Houses on fire, drank an Health to the Devil, would fay Mass and not communicate; for which and other intolerable Rogueries, he was deposed by Otho in a Council, and Leo the 8th put in his place; but his Whores and his Friends (as foon as the Otho had turned his back) got him in again: From this Gallant our St. Dunsten with a round fum, purchased a Prohibition of Priests Marriages, which caused diffurbance in England at that time; At last being taken in the Act of Adultery with a resolute Mans Wife, he received such a deadly wound from the Husband, as in eight days fent him into another World. Prideaux

II. Pope Alexander was a crue! Tyrant, and plagu'd that corrupt Colledge of Cardinals, who had cholen him not for his Vertues but for his Gold. He was void of Faith or Religion, Covetous, Ambitious and barbaroully Cruel, and had a burning defire to advance his Bastards, whereof he had many; He set Benefices to fale: He poisoned the Cardinal of Venice, for his Gold and Treasures: In Magick he was very Learned and very wicked: He poisoned his own Father; and likewise Zemes, Brother to the great Turk for 200 Duckets, after he had fworn to secure him. He procured Aid of the Turk against the French King : He caused the Tongue and Hands of Manrivil, a learned Man to be cut off for making an Oration against his Wickedness: In Adulteries he was abominable, and committed Incest with his own Daughter Lucretia the Wife to three Princes, upon whom these Verses

Lucrece by Name here lies, but Thais in life, Pope Alexanders Child, Spoufe and Sons Wife, And must a Sextus Lucrece always ravish? Curst Name! but here's a Father that's most knavisti. Tarquinius, Nero, this a Sextus too, Sextus was ever born Rome to undo. This Pope never attempted any thing but he first insulted the Devil, to whom he gave himself: he ing accustomed to poylon any whom he disliked, epared poyloned Wine to dispatch some of his Carnals, which his Butler through a mistake put into s own hand, and he drinking it off, with horrible ies and Groans expired. His Son Cæfar Borgia as urdering a Villain as himfelf, drinking of it likese, fell into a very dangerous Disease. Sympson

ft. Church.

III. Sylvester 2. was bred up a Conjuring Friar in e Abbey of Floriack, where Necromancy was an ment peice of Learning; to perfect his skill he es to a Saracens in Sivil, and couzens him of his njuring Book by being inward with the Magicians ughter; then he contracts with the Devil to be olly his, upon condition he would conduct him back France, and promote him to the Popedom: Upon return to France by his deep Learning, he had feral Scholars in the Black Art, by the help of whom became A. B. of Ravenna, and then Pope; in which it he privately practifed his Devilish Mystery; haig a Brazen Head instead of a Delphick Oracle; ifulting with whom when he should die? answer s given he should live till he said Mass in Jerusalem: s made him confident of a long continuance, yet he s couzened by the Devils Equivocation, though he amed of Immortality, and that he should never ; for as he was finging Mass at Rome in a Temple ed St. Cross alias Jerusalem, he heard a great te of Devils, who came to fetch him away in the e of Mass; he being much terrified, is said to have ented, and to request that his Hands, Tongue and Secrets

Secrets might be cut off, wherewith he had offende God, his Body to be cut in four pieces, and laid a a Cart, and the Beafts to draw it whither they would which being accordingly performed, they drew hi to the Lateran Church; and some write that the Body was carried out of the Church by the Devi Beards Theatre.

IV. Gregory 7. without Election of Emperour of Clergy, but by Intrusion got into the Chair, havin poisoned 6 or 7 Popes to get the Popedom: He had trick to shake out sparks of fire from his Sleeve, and be some other ways brought it about that the voice of the People was, Peter the Apostie hath made choice of Hildebrand to be Pope, which was his Name before he changed it to Gregory: He set himself against the Emperory 4. and plotted that when he went to Prayers a St. Maries in Aventon Hill a Villain set a stone to rodown from the Roof to beat out the Emperors Brains but it sell out to the swine of the Executioner, who as killed therewith. He threw the Sacrament into efire, because it did not answer his Demands (as e Heathen Gods did) of his success against the Emtor, whom he Excommunicated, and sent a cown to Rodolphus, Duke of Suevia, with this Verse Petra dedit Petro, Petrus Diadema Rodolpho.

That Grown the Rock did give to Peter,
Peter on Ralph bestows in Meeter.

This Crown was fent to cause Rodolphus to Rebel ainst his Master, wherein he received a defeat and ed by a Womans tumbling down a Stone upon him. he was belieging a Castle in Germany; at last he t the Emperor at such advantage, that he was fain to me to his Castle at Canufium, with his Empress and n barefoot in the Cold Winter; and there to wait 2 ys fasting, till he might have Audience, which he at igth obtained by the mediation of Madam Matilda. e of the Popes Wenches, or St. Peters Daughter, 25 ey called her, who left her Husband to live with this ly Father; when he pronounced Sentence of Exmmunication against the Emperor, the new Seat ereon he fate rent in pieces. He condemned Begarius his opinion against the corporal presencea, nd s against Priests Marriages. He Sainted Liberius : Arrian Heretick, but in a Synod at Brixia he was posed, and died miserably in banishment. Symsons 1. Church.

V. Adrian the Fourth was an English Man, named, the Brakespear: He would not suffer the Consuls of me to have any power, and condemned the A. B. of wia for an Heretick in upholding their Rights: He irrelled with the Emperor Frederick, for not hold-Hossier like, his Stirup, and excommunicated for claiming his Rights, and writing his name ore the Popes: He conspired with his Cardinals to the Emperor, and sent a villain to stab him, and Arabian to posson him; but while this proud Predesigned the murdering of others, he lost his own

68 The woful Deaths of wicked Popes,

Life by a very despicable Creature, being choakt was Fly, which got into his Throat in drinking a G of Wine, he was often wont to say, That there is kind of Life upon Earth more wretched than to b

Pope. Symfons Church.

VI. Alexander III. succeeded, He opposed his s versign the Emperor being chosen among strong F tions, wherein three or four claimed the place. T Emperor coming to Papia to appeale this diford fent for Alexander, who instead of obeying excor municated him and his own Opposites, and by his or favour and the French Kings purse settles himself Rome. The Emperor comes with an Army to corre his Insolency; but Hartman Bishop of Brixia by effe tual perswasions turns him and his Arms from the Pope against the Saracens, where being victorious ar returning homeward, he was furprized by the Pop Treason, who sent his Picture drawn to the Life to the Saracens that he might lay wait for him; being her by apprehended with his Chaplain, they were brough before the Saracen Emperor, and the picture difec vering him to be the Man, he used him nobly, appointe his Ranfom, and guarded him home to Brixia. The Princes of the Empire to revenge this prodigious Tres ion, joyn together; the Pope flyes to Venice when Duke Sebastin protects him: Otho the Emperors Sor is fent with an Army with positive Orders not to figh till his Fathers coming, which the young man ambit ous of Glory, neglecting is overthrown and taken Pri foner: The Father to preserve his Son, is force to fubmit, and in St. Marks Church in Venice, he prof trates himself before the Pope, who setting his Foot of his Neck, repeated that of the Pfalmift, Thou shall tread upon Lions and Adders, the young Lion and the Dragon shalt thou trample under foot; which the Pope applied to the Emperor, who replying, Not to thee, but to Peter this power is given: The Beaft an fwers as well to me as to Peter. The Pope gratified the Venetians, and making what conditions he plea-with the Emperor, returned to Rome. Henry was much vexed by this Pope for the Death of omas Becket, whom he made a Saint for oppo-g his Soveraign, who being killed by fome Pers at the Stairs of the Altar, in the Cathedral at nterbury, the Murder was charged upon the King the Popes Legate; and though he fwore that he no way concerned in his Death, yet he was forto kils the Legates knee, and submit to such mance as he should appoint him; one part wherewas, That he should absolutely submit to the e in spiritual matters. When K. Henry came of France he went to Canterbury, and when he the Cathedral he put off his Shoes and Stockings, went bare-foot to Beckets Tomb, the Stones beso sharp that his feet bled as he passed along; n he came there, every Monk in the Cloister, with od whipt the Kings Back; yet a Popish Historian of this Becket, that he was worthy of death and damna-dampation for being so obstinate against God's M nister his King. Upon this Pennance the Pope gran ed to the King and his Heirs the Title of Kings England: Hence it is observed (saith Platina) that a Kings of England must acknowledge the Pope for their Landlord. In this proud Popes time the poo Waldenses increased, tho all manner of Gruelty wa exercised upon them. To this Pope N. Maniacutiu wrote mad Verses, where he cone udes,

ie

As long as there is Goofe or Gander,

We must remember Alexander.

This Pope plagued the World 21 years, and wa then hurried out of it in the midst of his ambition contrivances. Symfon Hift. Church.

VII. Pope John 23. called a Council at Rome a gainst the Protestants in Bohemia, the Council sel the Mass of the Holy Ghost sung, the Pope placed i his Chair, an ugly Owl came flying in among them with an ill-favoured hooting, and let her self upon ofs Beam, just over against the Pope, casting her aring Eyes upon him, they all began to marvel, and hispering each other, said, Behold the Spirit is come the likeness of an Owl: The Pope blushed at the atter, and began to sweat, fret and sume, and judgg it ominous he dissolved the Council; yet calling nother, when they were met, in came the Owl as bere, still looking stedfastly upon the Pope; who more hamed said, that he could no longer abide the sight her; and commanded her to be driven away; but th all the shouts they could make she would not be reed from her place, till with Clubs and Sticks flung her, she fell down dead among them all. After this Council was by his Confent affembled at Confrance, 14. in which this Pope for divers intollerable Villas was deposed, and died miserably. Acts and Moments.

Ero

VIII. Pope Julius the Second was addicted to War, excommunicated Lewes the French King who did value it, but Coined Money with this Inscription, dam Babylonem, I will destroy Babylon. He is to have thrown St. Peters Keys into the River Tycon of whom this Feire Reys into the River Tycon Manual Region Re of whom this Epigram was written.

When Julius Pope against the French Determined to make War,
As same reports, he gathered up
Great Troops of Men from far,
And to the Bridge of Tyber then Marching as he were * wood;
His Hely Keys he took and cast
Them down into the Flood:
And afterward into his Hand
He took his naked Sword,
And shaking it, broke forth into
This sierce and Warlike Word:
This Sword of Paul, quoth he, shall now Desend as from our Foe.

or Mad.

72 The Woful Deaths of wicked Popes, Since that this Key of Peter doth, Nothing avail thereto.

This Pope breaking his Oath in not calling a Council, the Cardinals affemble a Council at Pife to depot him, which he avoided by a Counter-Council at Lateran He dispensed with K. Henry 8, to Marry his Broche Arthurs Wife: He horrribly abused two ingeniou Youths, who were sent by the Queen of France to be bred in Italy, of which one wrote,

To Rome a German came, of fair aspect, But he returned a Woman in effect.

And this was written of the Pope himself.

He that from Greece and Genoa had his blood, And on the Waves his Birth, can he prove good? The Genoese Cheats, the Greeks Men Lyars call, The Sea perfidious, Julius hath these all.

He Sainted Mother Francis a Roman Matron, for preserving her Chassity by melted Lard, &c. In his time a Cisterian Monk preached at Mantua, that our Savious was not conceived in the Virgins Womb, but in a place near her heart of three drops of Blood: Of these times Maximilian the Emperor used to say, O Eternal God if thou didst not watch over us, how ill would it go with the World which we govern, I being a miserative with the World which we govern, I being a miserations, destroyed 200000 Christians within 7 years: He was hurried away in the midst of his Debaucheries Prideaux Introd.

IX. Pope Julius 3. as soon as Elected gave his Cardinals Hat to a Sodomitical Boy, whom he had abused called Innocentius, at which the Cardinals repining and asking him the reason of it: What reason had you (taid he) to chuse me Pope? Fortune savours whom

th

ne p'easeth. John Casa, A. B. of Beneventum, in this ope's time Printed a Book in desence of Sodomy; by hom also Francis Spira was seduced to Popery and ied desperately. This Pope being sick desired some ork, which being forbid by his Physicians, he said, e would have it in despite of God; and having apointed a cold Peacock to be reserved for him, when e missed it the next meal, grew into a a great rage, and eing requested not to be angry for such a trifle, he asphemously answered, 'That is God was so angry with Adams eating an Apple, why might not he be so for his Peacock? From this Pope we had the Renciliation of Mother Church; submissively taken from the hands of Cardinal Pool in Q. Maries days, which off the Lives of so many Innocents. Walterius deribes the See of Rome under him in these Verses.

hat's Rome? even that preposterousness doth show, hat's that spelt backward, then thou soon may stknow? ckward 'tis Amor, Love; what Love, nay hold, is Male Love, most odious to be told.

And Beza plays upon three evacuating Basons, which s Pope used in his filthiness; and thus by letting fly both ends, his Life went after it. Clarks Ex. X. John 8. otherwise called Pope Joan, was a Lass Mentz in Germany that ran away with an English nk of Fulda, in Mans Apparel, and studied with at Athens: thence this Virago came to Rome, and earnedly truffed her points, that after Leo's Death was advanced to St. Peters Chair; where for two rs and an half the celebrated Mass, gave Orders, s the Emperor Lewis from his Oath to Aldegisus; was Charles the Bald; takes up the Controversies ween the two Hinemars; established the learned tius in the Patriarchship of Constantinople, writ a ned Letter to the Prince of Moravia, and wanted ning requifite for a compleat Pope but the right der; which defect discovered it self in her going to the Latteran, between Coloffes and St. Clement, where without a Midwife she was delivered of a Bastard, and her Life together; for which her Successors have never since gone that unlucky way; and provided a hollow Seat of Porphyry, to search the Popes and prevent Afterclaps. This story of Dame Joan some Popish Writers decry, but we have sifty of their own Authors against them. Prideaux Introduct.

74 The Woful Deaths of wicked Popes,

XI. Pope Urbane 6. was cruel and bloody; at his Election he was much graced by Jane Q. of Naples, and Otto of Brunswick her Husband; but the rude Beast soon forgot it, and was the cause of both their deaths to make good that faying,

None looks to be accounted, More, than a Beggar mounted; He struts with heart full blown, When Honour's on him thrown.

At first he was much for Charles K. of Naples, to make his Roguish Nephew Francis Battillus a Prince; but this Friendship was soon turned into spight; and Battillus after his Uncles Death, was stripped of all, according to that Epigram.

When once the Prelate fails, His Kin may pair their Nails.

This Pope was cruel to the Cardinals, causing one to be stain, five others to be sowed up in Sacks and thrown into the Sea, three to be knockt on the Head, their Bodies dried in an Oven, and carried about in Chests with him, with their Red Hats on the same; but as he was greedy gathering Money, he fell from his Mule, so bruised that he languished twenty seven days, dying by degrees, and suffered the pains which he caused the Cardinals to endure. Symsons Hist.

XII. Pope Sixtus 4. unjustly vexed all Italy with Wars: One of their own Writers faith, That amongst

al

all the Pimps of these latter days that built Baudy Houses, this Pope surmounted them all, for he erected Stews at Rome of double abomination, one for Women another for Boys; he allowed the Family of the Cardinal St. Lucia the use of Sodomy for the 3 hot Months, June, July and August; he caused every starlot to pay a certain Rate, which amounted to forty thousand Duckets yearly, he provided Shoes for his Concubine Tyrisia covered with Pearls, and died in his Filthinels. Symfons Hift. XIII. In short, most of the Popes after the first 600 years, were monsters rather than men, and are numbred by an ingenious Person under the following heads, that is, Usurping Nimrods, Luxurious, Sodomites, Egyptians, Magicians, devouring Abaddons & Incureable Babylonians; many of whom, by Gods jufk Judgments were cut off by Poylon, Stabbing, Plagues, Wars, &c. One Popes name was Bocco de Porco, Hogs or Swines Face, which being ashamed of, he changed it into Sergius, fince which Popes have taken up their names by the rules of contraries, the most cruel being called Clement, or Merciful; the most wicked Innoent; the most cursed Popes Benedict or Blessed; the createst Clowns Urbane or Courteous; and the vilest Wretches Pius. Neither hath Divine Justice less appeard against Apostates and Persecutors, as by the ollowing Examples is evident.

XIV. Judas Iscariot was guilty of this horrible Sin, tho being a Disciple, pay an Apostle of Jesus Christ, noved with Covetonsness conspired with the Enemy, and Traitor like fold his Lord and Master, the Saiour of the World, into the hands of Thieves and lurderers for thirty peices of Silver. After this exerable deed, for which he was called the Son of Perition, he could find no peace in his guilty Conscience, ing horribly tormented with remorse for his wickeds, judging himself worthy of a thousand deaths, for traying that Innocent and Guiltless Blood; if he oked up he saw the vengeance of God ready to fall upon

D 3

76 The woful Deaths of wicked Popes,

upon him and deftroy him; if he looked down, taw nothing but Heli gaping to swallow him up; t light of the Sun was dreadful to him, and he w weary of his Life; so that being plunged into desp he hanged himself, and burst in two, his Bowels gui ing cut; and his Memory is abhorred as a dreadful postate from Christianity.

XV. Lucian having professed the Christian Religion and Trajun the Emperor, fell away and became Prophane and Impious as to mock at all Religion as the Divinity, so that he was sirnamed the Atheist; the Wretch who like a foul mouthed Dog, barked as believed out bitter Scoffs against the Religion of Christecking to-make it ridicaleus and destroy it, was his felf torn in pieces by Dogs. Beards Theatre.

XVI. Julian the Apostate brought up from his Chil hood in the Christian Religion, and a profest Read to others in the Church, when he had obtained t Empire revolted from his Profession, and refisted wi all his power the Faith of Christ, endeavouring eith by force or subtilty to undermine it; he to oblige the Pagans ordered their Heathen Temples to be opene which Conflantine his Predeceffor had thut up: The he took from the Christian Churches and their Ministe those Priviledges Constantine had bestowed on then confiscated Church Revenues, and imposed great Ta es upon all that professed the name of Christ, forb Schools of Learning to teach their Children, and uf many Orders of the Christian Religion in his Heath Worship: After he had thus laboured to beat dow the Scepter of Christs Kingdom, the Scepter of his ov was broken; for making War against the Persians, provided such Gallant Armour, Apparel, and all thin elf-, that he thought to have overcome the whole Worl belching out threathings against the poor Christian whom he determined at his return to have utterly Broyed, as was discovered by one of his Coune र्थ राज्य किंदी के प्रकार में संक्षित अनेत ने देशी करें हाज देशी

His Army was fo great that he doubted not to conquer all Persia, but this great Army seemed in a little space rather a vast and weak multitude of Women and Children, than an Army of Warriors; for by his ill conduct there arose so great a Famine, that their Horses provided for Battel, were killed to fave them from ftarving, yea many hundreds dyed of hunger; fo that when they had any skirmish with their Enemies, they were always put to the rout, and were confirmined after he was flain, to befeech the Perfians to fuffer them to retire, whereby as many as could faved their Lives; and thus this gallant Army was miferably destroyed, to the everlasting infamy of that curled Apostate, who was flruck with an Arrow that was never known whence it came, which pierced through his Armour and wounded him very deep in his fide, and feeling his strength fail by reason of his wound, he took some of his Blood into his Hands, and throwing it up in great pride and malice, cryed out, O Galilean, thou half overcome me-; (meaning thereby our Bieffed Saviour, whom he in foorn fo termed) and fo wretchedly gave up the Ghoft. One of the Treasurers of this wicked Emperor, who to please his Master fersook the Religion of Christ, died miserably, vomiting Blood out of his Mouth, his privy parts being putrified and confumed with Lice, and could find no remedy. Symfens Church History.

XVIII. Henry 4. of France was bred a Protestant, yet after he came to the Grown when he had almost subdued all his Enemies he turned Papist; not long after John Castile influenced by the Jesuits, intended to have stabled him with a Knife; but the King at the same time steeping down to take up one of his Lerds who was on his knees, the blow happened on his upper Jaw, cutting out one of his Teeth and wounding his Tongue. It is reported that a Protestant Minister in private conference said unto him, Sir you have defined God-with your tongue already, and have now received a wound in the same; take heed of denying him in your heart, lest you receive a wound in tallo, which proved a true Prophecy, for riding in Coach thro? a narrow street in Pariot, one Ravillis with a Dagger stabbed him first into the lest pap, a with a second blow struck him between the first first kib, cutting as under the Vein which leads to theart, of which wound he dyed. De Serres Fr. Hist

78 The woful Deaths of wicked Popes,

XIX. Among the Cruel Persecutors of the Profants at Valence in France, was Lambespine a Counc lor of the Parliament, and Porsennas the Kings Atte ney who had been Protestants, but were now acti against them, and were both made dreadful Examp of Divine Vengeance; for Lambespine falling in Lo with a young Woman, was so extream passionate th he left his Imployment to follow her whither-foev the went, and feeing his Love and Labour despised ar flighted he pined away with grief, and grew so car less that multitudes of Lice bred and fed upon him iffuing from all parts of his Body in great numbers; that his own Misery and Gods heavy Vengeance mad him despair of Mercy, and resolved to starve himse to Death; which the Lice seemed to further, for the elustered so thick in his Throat that no sustenance could pass down; and when some resolved to force him to cat Broaths, they were forced to bind his Arm and put a gag into his Mouth, while they poured i food; being thus gagged he died like a mad Beaft, th abundance of Lice in his Throat choaking him; which was so terrible an Example, that the Papists themselve faid, " As he had caused the Ministers of Valence to have Gags thrust into their Mouths, and so to be put to death, so he himself died with a Gag in his Mouth Hift. Fr. Persecut.

XX. As for Porsennas who was a Eutcher to the poor Protestants; he sold his Estate with his Wives to raise Money to buy his place, hoping to get a great deal by his cursed Office, but being disappointed, he fell into despair of Gods Mercy, and also into an unknown Disease; those whom he had put to death still refenting themselves before him; so that as one derived of his reason, he defied the Almighty and caled upon the Devil in a horrible manner, which his Herk hearing he discoursed to him of the Mercies of od out of several Scriptures, but instead of returning o God by Repentance and Prayer, he continued more bstinate and called to his Clerk, saying, Stephen, Stephen, thou art Black, so I am and it please you, quoth he, but I am neither a Turk nor Moor, but a Gafcoigne, with red Hair: No, No, said he, not so, but thou art black with fin, That is true quoth be, but I hope in the bountiful Mercy of God, that for the Love of Christ who dyed for me, my black fine shall not be imputed to me; Upon which he being more inraged, called his Clerk Lutheran Hugonot, Villain, kc. defiring his Friends who rusht in at the noise, hat Stephen should have Bolts clapt on his Legs, and burnt for an Heretick : In brief his Rage so increase ed that he died with horrible outcries, his Creditors carce drawing his Carcass out of his Bed, seized upon ill his Goods, not leaving his Wife and Children a Bed of Straw to lye on; so grievous was the Curse of Tod upon him and his House. Hist. Persecut.

XXI. In Edward 6. Reign, Rich. Denison was a zeaous Professor of Religion, and an Instrument of conrerting a young Man to the Faith: In the Reign of Q. Mary, this young Man was cast into Prison for Religion who remembring his old friend, to whom he always had Reverend Respect, he sent to know whether he was mprisoned and finding he was not, defired to speak with him; and when he came asked his Advice; whe her he thought it comfortable for him to remain in-Prison; and would incourage him to burn at the Stake or his Religion; Denison answered, 'That his cause was good, and he might: with comfort suffer for it ? but for my part (faith he) I cannot burn : But he

ment burned for his Apostacy; for shortly after his

that could not burn for his Religion, by Gods Judg-

Shop *

80 The woful Deaths of wicked Popes,

Shop and House being on Fire, while he was earne to save his Goods, himself was burnt. Acts and Mon ments.

XXII. Francis Spira a Lawyer of Cittadella in tl Territories of Venice, a Man of great Credit and A thority in his Country, who imbraced the true Relig on with extraordinary zeal, teaching it to his Famil and Friends 6 years, whereby he stirred up the malic of the Popish Clergy, so that they complained to th Pope's Legate. When Spira foresaw his danger, a ter he had long debated the matter in his own Confe ence, the Flesh and worldly-Wisdom prevailing, he re folved to go to the Legate, and by doing whatever h should command him, to appeale his anger; and co ming to Venice, he subscribes to a Catalogue of pre tended Errors which the Legate had drawn up, with his Confession annexed, which he promised to declare in his own Town, acknowledging the whole Doctrine of the Church of Rome to be true and holy, and abjuring the Opinions of Luther, and all such Hereticks As he was going home he began to consider how wickedly he had denied Christ and his Gospel at Venice. and what he promised to do in his own Country; and being confounded with fear and shame, he thought he heard a voice thus speaking to him ; Spira what doll thou here? Whither goeft thou? Hast thou unhappy " Man given thy Hand-Writing to the Legate? yet fee thou do not feal it in thy own Country; Doft thou think Eternal Life so mean a thing, as to prefer the present Life before it? Remember Man that the sufferings of this Life are not comparable to the Glory that shall be revealed: If thou suffer with him thou first also reign with him: Thou canft not answer

what thou haft already done, yet the Gate of Mercy is not quite thut, heap not fin upon fin, left thou is not quite that, heap not fin upon fin, lest thou repentest too late. Now was Spira in a Maze, not knowing which way to turn; and when he came home, he acquainted his Friends with what he had done at Venice, and what he had promifed to do

here

there; and now the terrors of God on one fide, and the terrors of the World on the other, did continually torment him; they without more ado persuaded him to it; so going to the Mayor, he offered to do what was enjoyned him by the Legate; but all that night the miferable Man was vexed with restless cares without a minute of sleep; yet next morning he desperately in the presence of the whole Assembly, recited his infamous Abjuration of the Protestant Religion, after which he was fixed thirty pieces of Gold, and fo reftered to his Dignities, Goods, Wife and Children: As foon as he departed, he thought he heard this dreadful Sentence; 'Thou wicked wretch thon haft denied me; thou hast renounced the Covenant of thy Obedience thou hast broken thy Vow; hence Apostate bear with thee the Sentence of thine eternal Damnation: Spira trembling and quaking, afflicted in Body and Mind fell down in a fwound, and from that time forward, he never found any ease or peace in his Mind, but professed That he was captivated under the revenging hand of the Almighty God, that he continually heard the Sentence of Christ the just Judge against him; when his Friends brought him able Phylicians he faid, 'Alass poor Men, how far are you wide! it is neither Plaister nor Drugs, that can cure a wounded Soul call down with the Sense of Sin, and the Wrath of God; it's hrift only that must be the Physician, and the Gospel the Cle Antidote; he was about fifty years of Age, his understanding active, quick of apprehension, witty in discourse above his ordinary manner; he resused nourishment, which his Friends forcing upon him, he was very angry, crying out, You firive to make me tire out in this milery, I would have be at s an end; O that I were gone from hence, that some Body would let out this weary Soul. One asked what he conceived to be the cause of his Discase; upon which he brake out into a lamentable diffourfe of the passages formerly related, and that with such passionate expressions as made many weep, and most tremble;

His Friends minded him of several Promises out of the Scripture, and Examples of God's Mercy; 'My Sin faith he, are greater than the Mercy of God; for am one of those damned Reprobates whom Goo would not have to be faved, fince I willingly, and a gainst my Knowledge denied Christ; and I feel that he hardens me, and will not suffer me to hope: One time seeing a Knife on the Table, he snatched it up to have mischieved himself, but being prevented, he faid, 'I would I were above God, for that he will have no Mercy upon me; in this Condition he lay eight Weeks in a continual Burning, neither defiring not receiving any thing but by force, vehemently raging for drink, ever pining, yet fearful to live long, dreadful of Hell, yet coveting Death, in a continual Torment, yet his own Tormentor; and thus confuming with Grief and Horror, Impatience and Despair, like a living Man in Hell, he represented an extraordinary Example of Gods Justice and Power, and thus ended his miserable Life. Clarks Mirrour.

XXIII. It is observable that most of the Roman Emperors who raised those ten horrid Persecutions against the Christians, came to untimely ends. Neither, hath Divine Justice spared others since, who have destroyed innocent Souls meerly for their Religion, of which are many remarkable Inflances, and among others these following. A Counsellor of the Parliament of Provence in France, was so furious against the Protestants, that to dispatch them to the Fire, he staid in the Hall of Judgment from morning till night, caufing his Meat and Drink to be brought thither; but whilf he was thus wickedly industrious, a little fore role upon his Foot, at first only as if a Wasp had stung the place, yet encreased so extreamly the first day, that his whole Foot was inflamed, and it was judged incurable, unless he would cut off his Foot to save the rest of his Body, which he not yielding to, next day his whole Leg. the third day his Thigh, and the fourth his whole Body was inflamed, of which he died, his Corps being parched as if roafted by a Fire; thus he that was fo hot in burning poor Christians was by the fecret Flame of God's Warth, burnt and confumed to Death. Hist. France lib. 2.

XXIV. John L. of Oppede, another chief Instrument against the Protestants in France, who with his murthering Army committed such Barbarities, as Heathens would blush at; so that abundance of Complaints were made against him, and he summoned to appear before the Parliament at Paris, to answer the Murders, Extortions, and other Villanies laid to his Charge; being Convicted he was not only released but restored to his former Estate; but tho' he escaped the hands of Men yet not the hand of God; for when he was in the height of worldly Prosperity and busier than ever in persecuting Protestants, a Flux of Blood came thro' his privy Parts, which engendring a Carnofity hindred his Urine, fo that with horrible outcries he gave up the Ghost, seeling a burning Fire broiling his Intrails from his Navil upwards, and an Infection putrifying his lower Parts, beginning to taste even in this Life, that Vengeance of Eternal Fire prepared for the Devil and his Angels. Hift. France.

XXV. Felix Earl of Wurtemburg, a Captain to Charles V. being at Supper at Ausburg, with many of his Companions, they breathed out horrible threatnings against the Protestants, and the Earl swore before all of them, that before he died, he would ride up to his Spurs in the Blood of the Lutherans; but the same Night he was strangled and choaked in his own Blood, and so he did not ride, yet he bathed himself, not up to the Spurs, but up to the Throat, not in the Blood of the Lutherans, but his own Blood, and miserably ended his Life. Flaccius Illyricus. John Martin of Piedmont, boaffing he would root out the Protestants, and in Gallantry cut off a Ministers Nose of Angrogue, was set upon by a Wolf which bit off his Nofe, as he had abused the Minister, so he grew mad and died miserably, which strange Judgment was much discoursed of, The woful Deaths of wicked Popes, because it was never known this Wolf had done hurs to any Man before. Acts and Mon

XXVI. Albertus Pighius a great Enemy to the Gofpel, called the Lutherans Scourge, being at Bulloign at the Coronation of the Emperor, to behold the Pomp and Glory thereof, the Scaffold whereon he stood, fel down, and Pighius came tumbling headlong amongst the Guard that stood below, and fell upon the points of their Halberds, which ran quite thorow his Body, the rest of the Company escaping without any great hurt. French Hift. XXVII. In the Reign of K. Henry 8. Adam Damlip a worthy Protestant Preacher, was condemned as a Traitor, only for defending the Christian Religion against Popish Superstitions: Sir R. Ellaker Kuight, Marshal of Callice was to see him executed there, and was so great an Enemy, that he cryed out to the Hangman, Dispatch the Knave, make an end, not suffering him to ciear himself from the Treason he was charged with, but was not proved against him; yea swore, that he would not hir till he faw rhe Traitors Heart out. After a while in a Skirmish between the English and French at Bulloign, Sir Ralph was flain with divers others; after they had firipped him they cut off his Privy Members, and pluckt the Heart out of his Body, leaving him a terrible example to all bloody Men; for there was no cause why they should use him so, more than the rest, but only the Judgment of Heaven upon him. Beards Theatre.

XXVIII. James V. K. of Scotland, by the Instigation of the Popish Eishops was a great Persecutor, and gave Commission to Sir James Hamilton to prosecute all Hereticks, saying, 'None of that fort should expect any favour at his Hands, nay not his own Sons, if found guilty: But this continued not long, for Sir James Hamilton, was accused of a design against the Kings Life, for which he was executed: And a War breaking out with England, the King sound his Nobility averse in affilting him, which much discontented him: These thoughts with some fearful Visions much terrified and altred his Mind from those extremities the Clergy put him upon; for one night as he lav at Linkingow, it feemed that Tho. Scot, Justice Clerk, came to him with a Company of Devils, crying Woe worth the day that ever I knew thee or thy Service, for ferving thee against God and his Servants, I am now judged to Hell torments: Awaking he called for Lights and told his Servants what he had heard and feen : Bext morning word was brought, the Justice Clerk was dead, which fell out just at the time when the King was fo troubled, and almost in the same manner, for he died in great terror of Mind, often repeating thefe words; By the Righteous Judgment of God am I condemned; and the manner of his Death answering the Kings Dream so exactly, made it yet more terrible to him. Another Vision he had which did more affricht him, for he thought Sir James Hamilton came with a drawn Sword in his Hand, and cut off both his Arms. threatning in a short time to return and deprive him of his Life, with which he awaked, and as he lay mufing what his Dream should fignify, news was brought him of the Death of his two Sons, James and Arthur, the one dying at St. Andrews, and the other at Sterling at one and the same hour, The next year 1542, being overwhelmed with grief he died at Faulkland, in the 22 year of his Age; a little before he died, his Queen was delivered of a Daughter, he buift forth into a passion saying, It came with a Lass, (meaning the Crown) and it will go with a Lass, Fie upon it. Spotswood Hist. Scotland.

XXIX Drahomir a Queen of Bohemia, was an implacable Enemy to the Christians, and caused many to be slain; but as she passed over a place where the Bones of some pious Ministers who had been martyred lay buried, the Earth opened and swallowed her up alive, with the Chariot wherein she was, and an in it; which place is to be seen before the Castle of Prague to this day. About 1488. some Popish Eishops in Eche-mia flirred up the Queen who was then with Child, to move R. Uladishus her Husband severely to punish the Piccards or Protestants, the Queen pleased her self in thinking what grateful Spectacles the should have to fee some of them burnt, or beheaded, or drowned in the River: But it pleased God, before she saw it effected she fell in Travel, and could not be delivered, so the Physicians advised, that the Child should be cut out of her Womb, which being done the Child lived, but the Mother died. Two years after the Bishops by their Importunity prevailing with the King to use tharp Remedies against this growing Religion; an Edict was drawn up, That all the Piccards or Protestants, without distinction of Age or Quality, should be murthered. This Edick was brought to the Assembly of the States at Prague, to be confirmed: Many of the Nobility opposed it, but by the Subtilty of the Chansector and his bloody Affociates, it was at last carried by the Major part. The Chancellor as he returned from the Parliament, visited a Nobleman of his Acquaintance, and with great rejoycing told him what was concluded against the Protestants: The Nobleman having a Servant by, who was a favourer of them, asked him how he liked this Decree? The Servant answered, That all parties were not agreed: The Chancellor suspecting some Conspiracy, asked him, who durst oppose the States of the Kingdom: The Servant said, There is one in Heaven, who if he were not Present at your Councils, you have consulted in vain: The Chancellor replied, Thou Knave thou shalt find that, as well as the rest of you; and so rising up in a fury, a Carbuncle arose upon his foot, which turned to a Difease called lenis Sacer, of which he died in much mifery. Clarks Martyr.

by

XLI. Another very forward in prometing this Decree, in his return home alighting out of his Chariot to make water, firuck his Privy Member on a fharp Nail in the Boot, whereby, as he fell forward, he frew out his Guts and Entrails. & gave up the Ghost. Another who promoted this Cruel Decree, as he was lunting, his Horse threw him, and one of his Arrows an into his Thigh, and came out at his Loius, whereby he died a very painful Death. The year after, wo German Tradesmen were apprehended at Prague, nd by the Monks accused of Lutheranism, for which hey were condemned and burnt: One of their perecutors was so violent against the Protestants, that ie wished they were all hanged, burnt, or beheaded ly his hands; but it pleased God that shortly after all hese evils fell upon himself; for being in debt, for rouble and vexation he hanged himself; and when his riends had privately buried him, the People hearing f it digged up his Carkass, and the Magistrates ordered to be burnt, but when the wood was confumed, and he Body only scorched one came and cut off his ead. Clarks Martyr.

XLII. Neither has the Almighty failed to flew displeasure against wicked Persocutors in our o Country, in Queen Maries Reign. Alexander t Keeper of Newgate, used to go to bloody Bonn Story, Choltaly, and the rest, crying out, Rid r Prison, Rid my Prison, I am too much pestred wi those Hereticks; this Wretch dyed a miserable deat his Body being fo fwoln, that he was rather like a Mo her than a Man, and his Intrails so rotten, that no could abide the flink; his Son James, to whom I left a great Estate soon wasted it all, saying in a jeer, I gotten, ill spent; and as he went through Newgat Market he fell down dead. John Peter, Son in La to this Alexander, an horrible Blasphemer, (who use to fay, If it be not fo, I pray God I may rot before Die) was cruel to the poor Christians in Prison, be Divine Justice met with him, for his Body rotted awa by piecemeal and he died miferably. Robert Baulding as he was apprehending William Seaman the Martys being flucken with Lightning pined away and died Ralph Lardin, the betrayer of George Eagels, wa afterwards Arraigned and hanged; as he flood at the Bar, he faid, This is justly fallen upon me, because I betrayed the Innocent Blood of that good and just Man George Eige's, who was condemned by m means, and I fold his blood for a little Money: The , like vengeance fell upon Rich. Petto and Justice Brown, both cruel Persecutors of George Eagels : One Dale, a Promoter and Perfecutor, was eaten up of Lice, and Died. Dr. Berry, Commissary of Norfolk, another bloody Perfecutor, as he was walking with one of his Concubines, fell down with an heavy groan and never ftirred after. A Persecuting Suffragan of Dover having been with Cardinal Pool for his bleffing, coming out of the Cardinals Chamber, tell down flairs and broke his Neck. Acts and Mon.

XLIII. Sir Tho. Moor L. Chancellor of England, was a fworn Enemy to the Gospel, by Fire and Sword, and as if he designed thereby to get renown, he caused a sumptuous Tomb to be erested, to eternize the memory of his Cruelty, whereon was engraven, That with all his might he had perfecuted the Lutherans, but contrary to his expectation he was executed himself for high Treason; his Head was taken off, and his Body found no other Burial but under the Gibbet. Beards Theatre. These and many more such Examples make good that of the Pfalmist, God hath prepared for the wicked the instruments of Death, he ordaineth his Arrows against the Persecutors, Psal. 7. 13. If the Reader defire to know more of the Cruelties of the Papists in all Countries, for above fix hundred years last past, and Gods Judgments upon Perfecutors, he may find it at large in a little Book, called Martyrs in Flames, of a shilling price, and sold where this Book is to be had.

CHAP. V.

Fearful Judgments upon Cruel Tyrants, Murderers, and other notorious and debauched Persons, with the wonderful discovery of several Murders, &c.

T appears in History that a multitude of proud, cruel, and vicious Princes and Governours in former Ages, have thought their Will ought to be their Law, and gloried in Tyrannizing over their Subjects; However it hath pleased God to discover his abhorrence of such practices, by his severe Judgments upon them, as well as that crimson sin of Murther, and to retain in us a horror thereof, hath by strange and mira ulous ways brought to hight deeds of Darkness, and their bloody Authors out of their greatest privacies to condign Punchen ishment. Neither hath Lust, Revenge, and other torious Enormities, escaped Gods Justice, as by tollowing relations remarkably appears.

I. Ptolemæus Pisco King of Egypt, caused his 3 Memphites (whom he begot of his Wife and Sife Cleopatra) to be slain, and his Head, Hands, and Fe to be cut loff, and put into a curious Casket, and fe to his Mother as a present upon his Birth-day; a when he perceived that by his barbarous Tyranny was grown odious to his Subjects, he caused a Scho where most of the Children of the Nobility, and other were educated, to be encompassed with Fire, an Men with drawn Swords affaulted them, whereby the were all destroyed, not one escaping; but what h thought was his Refuge proved his Ruine, for the People were fo incensed with this cruel Act, that they unan moufly fell upon him, and tore him to pieces.

II. In 830. Popiel K. of Poland gave himself over to all manner of debauchery, so that his People scorned and despised him; he fearing they would se up one of his Kinsmen in his stead, by the advice o his Wife, whom he furiously loved, feigned himsel fick, and fent for all his Uncles Princes of Pomeranis (being twenty in number) to come to fee him; whom lying in his Bed, he earnefely defired, That if he chanced to die, they would chuse one of his Sons to be King; which they promised, in case the Lords of the Kingdom would consent. The Queen enticed them all to drink a Health to the King, which as foon as they had done, they were seized with intollerable pains, by the corroding poison in their Drink, and in a short time all died. The Queen gave it out as a Judgment of God upon them, for Conspiring the Death of the King, and caused their Bodies to be taken out of their Graves, and cast into the Lake Goplo, over a City called Crosphitz: But by a miraculous Transformation, an innumerable company of Rats and Mice rusht out of those Bodies, which went and affaulted the King, as he was with great Jollity featling his Pallace: The Guards endeavoured to drive n away with Weapons and Fire, but all in vain. King perplexed with this extraordinary danger, with his Wife and Children into a Fortress, yet be seen in that Lake of Goplo, whether he was used with such a number of those creatures, that Land and the Waters were covered, and they d and hissed fearfully; and entring in at the dows of the Fortress, they devoured the King, his and Children, and left nothing of him remainby which all the Polonian Princes were extinced, and Pyast a Husbandman was Elected King. ins Cosmography.

Letto Duke of Franconia, Abbot of Fulden, chosen Archbishop of Mentz in 968. In which was a grievous Dearth, and the Poor being ready arve, he caused great companies to be put into s, pretending they should receive Corn, but cause Barns to be set on Fire, and the poor people to be miserably burnt therein, saying, That the poor were like Rats and Vermin, who eat up the Fruits the Land. Not long after an Army of Rats gathere together, no man can tell from whence, and fet upo him so furiously, that into what place soever he ret red they would fall upon him; if he climbed int Chambers, they would afcend the Wall and enter i at the Windows; and the more men attempted to de froy them the more they encreased. This wretche Prelate feeing he could find no place by Land fafe resolved to leek refuge on the Waters, and got : Boat to couvey him to a Tower in the midst of th Rhine, near a little City called Bingen; but the Rat in innumerable heaps swam to the foot of the Tower and clambering up the Wall entred therein, and fell upon him gnawing, biting and tearing of him till he died. This Tower is yet to be seen, and at this day is called Rats Tower. It is also remarkable that while the Archbishop was yet alive and in Health, the Rate gnawed and rased out his Name painted on many Walls, Heylins Cofm.

VI. Andronicus was a cruel Tyrant, exceeding in Ambition, Murder, Adultery, Incest and the like. He Traiteroully Murdered the Son and Heir of Emanuel the Emperor, caufing him to be tyed up in a Sack and drowned in the Sea: After which by violence he possessed the Empire of Constantinople: Having attained his desire, he committed all manner of Villa. nies; ravishing Women and Virgins, and after giving them to his Pimps and Ruffians; yea he committed a Rape upon his own Sifter; and to fecure himself in this Tyrannical Estate, he murdered most of his Nobility, and all that had any shew of Civility or Honesty. living by Robbery and Extortion; whereupon his Subjects no longer able to endure his vile outrages rife up, and besieging him, at last got him into their hands, whom they used with as much Cruelty as he had exercised upon them; For having deprived him his Imperial Ornaments, they pluckt out one of his es, and then fet him upon an Afs with his Face to . Tayl, which he held in his hand instead of a Scep-, and a Rope about his Neck inflead of a Crown; d then led him through all the Streets of Conftantiple, the People shouting, reviling, throwing ng, dirt, and spittle upon him, and Women their amber-pots upon his Head; taftly, he was carried the Gallows and there Hanged. Beards Theatre. VII. Alexander a Tyrant in Theffaly was of a cruel polition, cauling some men to be buried alive, others put into the Skins of Bears and Wild Bears, and n fet his Hounds upon them; and one Day as the abitants of a City in League with him, were afibled in Council, he caused his Guard to inclose m round and kill them all. He confecrated the rt wherewith he had flain his Uncle, and crownit with Garlands, calling it the Happy Killer. ng at a Tragedy where Hecuba and Andromache e represented, he could not forbear weeping, and it out, lest it should be observed that he pitied those ned Sorrows, who never had compassion for the titude of Citizens he had cruelly murdered; now this Tyger was guarded with Troops of Souldiers. it and day, and had a furious Dog constantly waiton him, which was tied to his Chamber door every it, yet by his Wives means he was killed, she letting in e of her own Brothers, with whom she had coned to murther him; who finding him fast asleep, took him by the Heels and another by the Head, : wrung his Neck behind him, the third thrust him with a Sword, she all the while giving them light lispatch their Business. The Citizens got the dead

y, which they drew about the Streets, and then w it to be devoured of Dogs. Plut: Lives. . Nero that Monster of Men, was educated under hus and Seneca, and for the first five years behasimfelf very well, fo that Trajan used to say, That Emperors came short of Nero's first five years;

but then fell into all Wickedness and Debanchery. He came into the Publick Theatres, and took delight in the Applause of the Vulgar, and the Crowns which they gave him for Singing and Playing on the Harp; and would not suffer any to depart out of the Theatre while he was Singing, what occasion soever they had fo that Women with Child were delivered in the Theatre, and others being tired with hearing him would get over the Walls, or seem to be dead that they might be carried out; he caused his Statue to be made in the Habit of an Harper, and also on his Coin; he exercifed his Luft, Luxury, Covetoufness and Cruelty at first privately, but after openly; when it began to be dark he would go to the Taverns, and about the Street doing Mischief to many, by beating and abusing them. and if they refisted, throwing them into Privies; he would break open Shops and Rob them, and his Quarrels oft endangered his Life; he was once almost beaten to death, by a Man whose Wife he had abused; after which he had Tribunes following him at a little distance. His Feasts were from Noon till Midnight attended with Whores and Women Pipers: He was gib ven to Sodomy, and caused the Genitals of a Boy called Sporus to be cut off, to have made him a Woman. and to be dreffed and brought to him like a Bride whereupon one merrily said, That it had been well for the World, if Nero's Pather had had such a Wife: He committed Incest with his own Mother Agripping. and caused one Pythagoras to marry him, as he him felf marryed Sporus: He invented such Bestialities between Men and Women as are not fit to be named: He murdered his Wife Octavia, by whom he had the Empire; and married Poppea Sabina, (whom he took from her Husband a Roman Knight) and loved her dearly; yet when the was great with Child, he coming home late one Night from his Charriot-driving, and the chiding him for it, he kicked her on the Belly and killed her: He was of a cruel and bloody Disposition, haftened the Death of Claudius by Poison, which he

ould often boast of and rail against him, tho he reived the Empire by him. Agripping his Mother went an Astrologer, to know the fortune of her Son Ne-, who told her he should be Emperor, but he should the Death of her, to which she replied, Let him kill of the does but Reign: The first part of the Progflication she saw accomplished, and the last now llowed; for having attempted by poison and other tys to take away her Life, which not succeeding, he it a Centurion to murther her; Agrippina feeing m coming with his drawn Sword, took up her cloaths d exposed her naked Belly, bidding him strike that, ce her Womb had brought such a Monster into the orld. After the was flain, Nero came to view her ked Body and her Wounds, and without any concern d, I did not think I had been born of so beautiful a other: He caused her Womb to be ript up, that he ght see the place wherein himself had lain; After nich horrid fact he was continually tormented with ags of Conscience, and protested, That his Mother en appeared to him with burning Torches, lashing n for that cruel Murder; yet he continued his Buteries, murthering his Aunt Domitia, and Antonia Daughter of Claudius, for refusing to marry him s flain; pretending the went to make Innovations in State. He hired Conjurers to lay the Ghost of his ther: He caused Crispinus his Son in law by Popto be drowned: He slew many others, who by od and affinity were near him: He murdered Aulus ncus a young man, after he had by violence comted Sodomy with him: He forced his Master Seneto kill himself, tho' he had often sworn that he uld perish himself, rather than do him hurt; and t poison to his other Master Burrhus. Divers rich ed Men, and others who helped him to the pire he murthered, by mixing Poison in their at or Drink: Neither was he less cruel to others, ecially after two Conspiracies; some of the Conspirators rators confessed the Fact, saying, That they knew no but by his Death how to free him from all that wicked pels wherewith he had defi'ed himself. Nero asking Sulpitius Aper a Centurion, why he conspired against him, he answered, Because I knew not how by any other means to do thee a kindness. After this he fer no bounds to his Cruelty, murthering whom he pleased. He gave not above an hour to any, and had Chirurgions ready, to cut all their Veins if they made any delay: His Profuseness and Prodigality answered his Cruelty; saying often, That those who proportioned their Expences to their Iocomes, were forded and covetous; and that they only who most profusely and prodigally wasted their Estates, were magnificent and praise-worthy. He never put on the same Apparel twice: He was extravagant in Building, and when his Treasury was exhausted, endeavoured by Rapine and Forgery to enrich himself. When he conferred an Office upon any Man, he would say, Thou knowest what I want, Let us make it our Business that none may have any thing but our felves. He took the curious Images of the Heathen Gods of Gold and Silver out of the Temple and fold them; neither did he spare the City of Rome, for being displeased with the Buildings and narrowness of the Streets, he sent some Villains to fet it on Fire, and went up to the top of Moccenas his Tower, to feed his Eyes with that pleafant fight, and in a Players Habit tuned his Harp and fung the burning of Troy. When he heard how ill he was spoken off for this Act, he reported it was done by the Christians, using all manner of cruelty toward them, and exposing them to the Fury of the people, as Burners and Destroyers of Cities, and as Enemies to humane Society. He caused some to be clothed in wild Beafts Skins, and torn to pieces with Dogs; others were crecified, fome he made Bonfires of to light him in his night sports: In brief fuch exquisite Torraents he put them to, as caused their Enemies to pity them and whereas Tiberius used to say, After my death let

e World be destroyed by Fire, Pestilence, Faine, &c. Yea (said Nero) let it be defiroyed in v Life time, that I may be a Spectator of it. But istice at last overtook him, for being adjudged by e Senate to be an Enemy to Mankind, he was conmuned to be whipt to death through the Streets of ome, and his Armies forfaking him, to avoid this nominious Death, he hid himself among Briers and torns, and defired his Attendants to kill him, which ey refusing, he cryed out, I have neither a Friend or an Enemy, miserable man that I am, and so slew mself. Sueton.

XI. Trigellinus Captain of Nero's Guard, was a prinsal Abettor of him in his Tyrannies, and in the Deuth many great Personages in Rome, inriching himself th their spoils: After the Death of Nero, (whom his extremity he forfook) he wallowed in all manr of Debauchery; now though he was worthy of thousand Deaths for his Cruelties toward many Ciens, yet by bribing the chief Favourites of the fucding Emperor Galba, he escaped; but when Otho s installed in the Empire, he to gratifie the Rons, fent to apprehend him, who was then in his nquetting-House in the Fields, rioting and sporting h his Harlots, and finding himtelf furprized, and way to escape, though he had prepared Boats to ry him away in any denger, and not able to bribe

Messenger sent to take him, though he offered at rewards, he entreated only the favour to shave Beard before he went, which being granted, he k a Rasor, and instead of shaving, cut his own

oat. Beards Theatre.

(II. Antonius Heliogabilus, was infamous for crugluttony, luft, and ail wickedness, and his Death answerable to his Life; he had his Name from an l of the sun, whose Priest he had been in Syria, being rich, by his profuse gifts to his Souldiers, chosen Emperor. Such was his Luxurious pomp, he used Balm in his Lamps, and filled his Fish-

E 2

Ponds with Rose-water. His Garments were of fine Gold, and costly Silk; his Shoes glistred with pretious Stones, he was never ferved two days with one kind of Meat, nor wore one Garment twice; he doted upon his Mother, with whom he committed Incest, and did all by her appointment, and was the field that brought a Woman into the Senate, caufing her to fit in the Confuls Seat; he erected a Senate of Women, wherein many ridiculous Laws were made: he exercised all manner of filthiness in his Palace. and exceeded all others in Luft and Uncleanness and being unapt by Nature for the Act of Generation. he would turn himself into a Woman, and sought through the World for those who were most prodigious for Debauchery to exercise their Lust upon him: he had fome days for Dinner the Brains of Estriches. the Tongues of Popinjays, and other finging Birds : when he was near the Sea he would never eat Fish. but in places far diftant from the Sea, he was served with most delicate Fish; his Table was furnished with seven thousand Fishes, and five thousand Fowls at one Supper; in his progress he was attended with fix hundred Chariots; he cruelly Sacrificed young Children, and conferred the best Offices upon Bawds, Fidlers, Players and the like; and was an Enemy to all fobriety; and when he-was foretold by his Aftrologers that he should Die a violent Death, he provided Ropes of Silk to hang himself, Swords of Gold to Stab himself, and strong Poysons in Jacinths and Emeraulds to Poy-fon himself, if he should on a sudden be forced thereto; he made an high Tower, and covered the floor with plates of Gold inlaid with pretious Stones, and underneath the Window the ground was covered with Sands of Gold, from whence he might throw himself down if pursued by his Enemies; but Divine vengeance would not suffer him to Die as he defired, for his Souldiers abhorring him, went to feize him upon which he fled into an House of Office, where they flew him, dragging him through the Streets of Rome eruel Tyrants, Murderers, &c.

Rome, and crying out, behold a Whelp of Cruel and Infatiable Luft, and then threw him into Tyber, fastning a great stone to him; that he might be seen no more. Sueton. Hift.

XIII. Caligula another Roman Emperor, fliewed his Cruelty first to his own Kindred, cifinheriting and flaying Tyberius Coheir with him; he compelled his Father in Law to Murder himself, envying his Nobility, Virtues and Affinity to him: He abused Virgins, Wives and Noble Women; he caused his Grand-mother to kill her felf for reproving him, and accusing his two Sifters, with whom he had committed Incest for Adulteresses and Conspirators, banished them; he caused the head of the Image of Jupiter to be taken off, and his own to be put in the place : He built his Palace to the Market-place, and let up the Images of Pollux and Castor at his Gate, and oft standing between them, would cause all that passed by to worthip him as a God, and some of his flatterers called him jupiter; he caused a Temple to be built for his God-head, and had Priests and Sacrifices ; he used Magistrates scornfully, and would reach forth his Hands and Feet to the Senators to be kiffed, and those who had this favour must publickly thank him for it in the Senate; some of the Senators he privately Murthered, and yet would have them call'd for as it Living, and after would declare they had Murdered themselves; many persons of Quality he would stigmatize, dismember, condemn to the Mettle-Mines, to mend High-ways, to be cast to Wild Beasts, or be Sawa asunder: He compell'd Parents to be present at the Torments of their Sons, and one excusing himself by reason of sickness, he sent his Litter for him; another for asking whether he might not shut his Eyes whilst his Children were tormented, he caused to be flain; another Father he brought home from seeing the miferable Death of his Son, and would force him to laugh, jest, and be merry. A Roman King being cast to the Wild-Beafts, declared he was innocent, upon which he caused him to have his Tongue cut out, as then to be call to them again. It he wanted Crim nals to throw to the Wild-Beafts he caused his C ficers to fieze any that stood near, and throw them. be torn to pieces, having first cut out their Tongu that they might tell no Tales; when he defigued t destroy any of the Senators, he suborned some pe fon to go into the Sonate-house, and there proclain him a publick Enemy, and so Murther him ; neithe would he be satisfied, till his Members and Bowe. were drawn about the Streets, and then laid on heap before him; he would not fuffer any to be slai. presently, but bid the Hangman so to strike that the might feel themselves Die. He had a Horse named Swift, whom he invited to Supper, gave him Pro vender in a golden Manger, and drank Wine to him in Golden Bowls; he Swore by his Horses Health and Fortune, and promifed to make him a Conful, as he had made him a Priest; he caused a Marble-Stable to be built for him, and a Manger of Ivory, with Horfecloaths of Purple, and a Chain of pretious Stones. He gave him a House furnished with costly Housholdfluff and Servants, the more splendidly to entertain those, who in his Name were invited to be his Guests: having by fuch Mad profuseness exhausted his Treas fury, he fought by all oppressive means to supply his wants; he disannulled Mens Wills, beesuse they had not made him their Heirs; he flew Rich Men and fiezed on their Estates, so that it was a Crime to be Rich; he levied unheard of Taxes, he proclaimed that at New-vears-tyde he would receive New-years-gifts, and flood at the door to receive all that were brought him by the People; he fet up a Bawdy-house in his own Pall.es, and profficuted the chief Women and the noble Boys to the bulls of all, and made guin enereby; he was forenamoured with Money, that he caused heaps of Gold to be spread over a large Room, and would walk bare foot, and lometimes would ftrip himself naked and rell himself upon it : He was an

cruel Tyrants, Murderers, &c. 101

horrid Atheist and Blasphemer of the Deity, yet when it Thundred, would wrap his Head and Face in his Garments, and run under his Bed to hide himself; afterward he caused an Engine to be made, to Thunder against Heaven when it Thundred, and to Lighten against the Lightning; and when a Thunderbolt fell, the would throw up a Stone toward Heaven, faying, Either do thou destroy me, or I will destroy thee; and it was not long e're he met with his just reward; he designed a Progress into Alexandria, resolving before he went to Murther the chief Men of Rome, wishing. That all the People of Rome had but one Neck, that he might cut them off at one blow; being fretted that no terrible Calamities happened in his Days, when none could be greater than himself. But in the nidst of his rage and wickedness, two of the Tribunes Conspired against him, and one asking him some questions about his Office, and receiving a harsh Auwer, he gave the Emperor such a stroak between the read and shoulders, that with it, and the blows of the Accomplices who rushed in, he was slain; no man tirring in his defence, though many looked on and night have aided him: The Conspirators slew his Wife Decionia, a Woman of prodigious lust and filthiness; hey took his Daughter, and dashed out her Brains igainst the Walls. After his Death there was found n his Closet two Books, one called his Sword, the other his Dagger, wherein were contained the Names of all those whom he designed to Slaughter; also a reat Cheft fluffed with all forts of deadly Poisons which being thrown into the Sea, po, foned a multiude of Fishes. Sucton. Hist.

XIV. Commodus another Emperor of Rome, was a vicked Son of a good Father, he exceeded if possible less, and Caligula in Lust, Cruelty, & Rapine; he had hree hundred Concubines of the most beautiful Marrons and Whores of Rome, among whom he spent its time in Feasting, Drunkenness, &c. he killed his lifter Lucilla, and ravished his other. Sisters; he used to fight among the Sword-players, and often in fp killed some of them; he fought with wild Beafts, whom he slew many with his own Hands, he came to the Senate in Womens Apparel, where he fat pi lickly and drank unmeasurably; he scraped Money gether by felling Honours and Offices. He would called Hercules the Son of Jupiter, and despising t Roman Habit, went cloathed in a Lyons skin, carryi a Club in his Hand, and fought with wild Beafts, as Men; whereof he killed some with Darts, others G ant like with his Club; yet would this wretch be co led a Pious and Happy God: He commanded Ron to be burnt; and his Souldiers slew multitudes of Peple that were met at the Amphitheatre without ar Cause, with all those of his Bed-chamber. Thus grov ing odious to all, some of his Domesticks and one his Concubines, named Matria, whom he loved above all the rest, and called her his Amazon, conspired t poison him; which they effected.

E. 4

80.

XV. Baffianus Caracalla in his Childhood was of mild nature, fo it was hoped would prove an excellen Prince, but when he grew up became fierce and cruel His Father Severus leaving him such a large Empie as none before him had poffeffed, with a great Arm to defend it, he began to discover his bloody dispuss tion: For first, he slew his Physicians for not killing his Brother in law foon enough: He murdered those who educated him and his Brethren, because they endeavoured to make peace between him and his Brother Geta: He perswaded his Captains to chuse him sole Emperor, his Father having divided the Empire hetween them; and when he could not prevail he goes to his Mother, pretending great love to her and her Son Geta, yet watches his opportunity, breaks into Geta's Chamber, and murthers him in his Mothers Arms, defiling her all over with his Blood, and then runs into his Palace crying out, That he had escaped a very great danger from his Brother Geta. From thence he runs into the Camp, and tells the Souldiers vhat a Coespiracy Geta had made to take away his ife, and how hardly he had escaped by slaying him his own desence: So with Gifts and Promises they huse him sole Emperor. Then began he to exercise is cruelty, killing all his Brothers, Servants, and riends, not sparing their very Infants: He caused the lich Citizens to be flain, and seized their Estates. le murdered Papinian a famous Lawyer, because he sould not defend the murthering of his brother, but lying, That it was easier to commit Fratricide, than o excuse it: He used to commend Sylla and Tiberius wo as bad as himself, and sought to root out all the mperial Family, or any eminent among the Senators. le raged against the Peop'e, causing multitudes to be ain when met at publick Plays: And being conscius of their hatred he went into Germany, and thence o Macedonia; and at Alexandria caused the Schools of ristotle to be destroyed, and his Books to be burnt, ecause said he, Aristotle was of a Counsel to poison dexander: Thence he went to Troy, and fought out he Tomb of Achilles, then to Antioch to Alexanders. omb, which two he pretended to imitate; and was evenged of the Alexandrians for fome Scoffs cast upa him, for having married Julia his Mother in law hose Son Geta he had stafn in her Arms; for Julia tho was very fair, being one time in his Company, as were by negligence, discovered a great part of her aked Body; whereupon Bafffanus faid, i would it rere lawful: Julia replied, It is lawful if thou pleafest: nowest thou not thy self to be an Emperor, and to ive, not to receive, Laws. So he married her; upon thich the Alexandrians called him Oedipus, and her ocasta. To be revenged for this Affront, he pretend-I to choose a Legion of Alexandrians, and when multudes met together unarmed, his Souldiers incompast ad out them all to pieces, so that the River Nilus was : ed with their Blood; From hence he went to the Eaft id pretending to affect the Parthian name, fent Amaffedors to Artabanus R. of Parah, to give him his Daughter in Marriage: Artabanus em' ricing the metion, came to him bringing the Bride, and a multitud of unarmed followers crowned with Flowers; by whilft they were offering Sacrifice to their Gods, giver the watchword to his Army he flew them all, the Kin himfelf hardly escaping: At length as he was easin nature, Marcinus, Prefect of the Pretorian Souldier stabled him with a Dagger into his Bowels and slevens.

him. Suctonius Hist.

XVI. Aulus Vitellius being chosen Emperor Rome, used no Government either in his Family c among his Souldiers, fo that all places were filled wit Rapine, which he turned into fport : when he cam into a Field where a Battle had been fought, and hi Followers were offended with the french of the dea Bodies. he faid, That of all smel's he liked best the sme of a flain Enemy, but much more of a flain Citizer He facrificed to the Ghost of Nero in Mars his Field to shew what an excellent pattern he would follow and there prepared a folemn Feast, and tent for a Mu fician to fing Nero's Verfes, which he much applauded He governed the Common-wealth by base Players, an Charriot-drivers, and upon every small occasion dell vered men over to death: He spared not Usurers, wh ealled to him for their Debts, nor Publicans who ha exacted Tribute from him: One of them coming to talute him, he caused him to be flain in his presence faying, That he would feed his Eyes with his Death Two Sons of another, coming to interceed for their Fa ther he caused to be killed: He banisht all Mathemati class out of Rome, because they had given out he we born under unhappy Planets : He was suspected guilt of his own Mothers Death: Neither was he only crue but extreamly given to luxury and Excess: He feat ed four times a day, after each of them disburtheoin his Stemach by vousing : He used the most coll delicates, from remote parts at excessive charges bot from Land and Sea; so it was commonly said, That i he had lived longer, he would have undone the Ro cruel Tyranes, Murderers, &c. 105 an Empire with his Luxury and coffly Table: He as fo given to Gluttony, that he eat while he was crificing or in a Journey: His whole Life was spent Gluttony, Drunkenness and Cruelty, whereby he ew so hateful, that the Army chose Vespasian then Judea Emperor, whereupon Vitellius forced Flaus Sabinus, Vespasians Brother, and his Kindred to fly to the Capitol, which he fet on Fire, and Burnt nem in it; and himself being at a Feast, sed his Eyes ith that pleasing Spectacle; for he was resolved to at and Drink well, that he might not Die without is Dinner, nor be afraid of Death or Disgrace: Then News was brought that Vespasian his Enemy rew near, he fought out private Corners to hide himof io, all Men forfaking him but his Baker and ook: When his Enemies entered the City, some of se Soldiers that knew him not, finding him, he deied his Name; and when others that knew him came, retended he had fomething to reveal to Velpafian that oncerned his fafety; but this prevailed not, for callig a Halter about his Neck, they dragged him half aked into the Market-place where he received many: eproaches; they then fet a Dagger under his Chin, nat he might not hang down his head to hide his Face. nd threw dirt at him; at last carrying him to Tyber, nev cut him in pieces; and threw his Trunk into the iver. Suet. Hift.

Domitian Son of Vespasian was wicked in his Child-oed and Youth; when he came to be Empetor, he etired every Day for an Hour as if upon secret Aftirs, but spent that time in catching Flies and pickag out their Eyes with a Bodkin, so that one asking as Chamberlain whether any body was with the Emeror, he wittily answered, No, not so much as a lie; he entertained the People with costly Shows therein he sate as one of the Heathen Gods, and companding himself to be called Lord and God, and in its Edicts he used this Phrase, Our Lord and God ommands this to be done; one while he set himself to reform abuses, and enact good Laws, but quick returned to his former Cruelty, caufing many Sen tors to Die; one, because he had a Map of the Wor in his Chamber, and read the Orations of Kings ar Princes, recorded by Titus Livius; he banished a Philosophers and Mathematicians, and sought or new ways to eurich his Coffers; his Cruelty was no only great, but crafty, and unexpected; he wou fend some away merrily, and with assurance of safet and presently send men to Murther them; and to: bule mens patience, he would never pass any hard o unjust Sentence, without a Preface to set forth h Clemency. His Treasury being exhausted, he re cruited it by Rapine and Oppression, suborning som to accuse both the living and the dead, that he migh ficze on their Estates: he was extream cruel again the Christians because they would not Worship him; a God, or his Idols at least; pretending he was Bro ther to the Sun and Moon; and adorning his Shoo with Gold and pretious Stones, he commanded th People to kiss his feet; he ordered all the Churche of the Christians to be pull'd down; and the Hol Scriptures to be burnt, with all the contempt the could be; displacing all Christian Magistrates, an imprisoning such as would not abjure Christianity then were Edick fent out for Imprisoning Elders and Bishops, and constraining them by Torments to Sa crifice to Idols; upon which there followed all manne of Cruelty against the Christians by all kind of Tor tures. Among others, Romanus a Nobleman of And och, was cruelly Martyred with many barbarous Tor ments, together with a young Boy, who with wonder tal Constancy suffered Dearh with him. Two Nob's Virgins named Eulalia and Agnes, for the Profession of the Faith of Christ, endured likewise the utmol Genelties the Tyrant could invent, and at length Death it felf ; with a multitude of other young

· Eut of those I have given a particular account, in

Book called, The Young Mans Calling, or, The whole Duty of Youth; with Remarks upon the Lives of feveral excellent Young Persons of both Sexes who were eminent for Piety and Vertue in their Generations: To which I refer the Reader.

Gordius a Centurion, acknowledging that he believed in Christ, and valued not what they could issisted on him for his Profession; the Sherist called for Scourges. Gibbets, and all manner of Torments; to whom Gordius said, that it would be a loss and damage to him if he did not suffer Torments and Punishments for Christ and his Cause; The Sherist more incensed, commanded Torments to be inflicted on him, with which Gordius was nothing disturbed, but sung. The Lord is my helper, I will not fear what Man can do unto me: Then he blamed the Tormentors for favouring him, provoking them to de their utmost; the Sherist not prevailing that way, sought to seduce him by promising Preferment, Riches and Honour, if he would deny Christ; but Gordins derided him as foolifily Mad, laying that he looked for greater preferment in Heaven than he could give him on Earth : He was then carried to be burnt, multitudes followed, some Kissing him entreating him with Tears to pity himself; he answered, 'Weep not, I pray for me, but Weep for the Enemies of God, who fight against the Christians, Weep, I say, for them, who prepare Fire for us, purchasing Hell Fire thereby for themfelves in the Day of Vengeance; and cease, I pray you, thus to molest my setled and quiet Mind, fince for the Name of Christ, I am ready to suffer a thoufand Deaths. Others perfwaded him to deny Christ with his Mouth, and keep his Conscience to himself: My Tongue, faith he, which by Gods Goodness I have, cannot be brought to deny the Author and Giver of the same; for with the Heart we believe unto Righteoulnels, and with the Tongue we Confess unto Salvation. And thus encouraging the People to Die in the fame Caufe, with an unappaled Countenance, he gave up his Body to the Flames. Aces and Mon. p. 1.

Menes a Soldier forfook all, and went into a Defart, giving himself to Fassing, Prayer, Meditation and Reading the Scriptures; at last returning into the City of Crotis, when the People were at their Passines, he with a loud Voice proclaiming himself to be a Christian, was carried before the President; and being demanded concerning his Faith, he said, 'It is convenient that I confess God, in whom is Light and no Darkness: For with the Heart we believe to Righteousness, and with the Mouth Confession is made to Salvation: Then he was Tormented which he regarded not, saying, 'There is nothing in my Mind that can be compared to the Kingdom of Heaven, neither is all the World, if it were weighed in a Ballance, comparable to the Price of the Soul: 'Who can separate us from the Love of Christ? Can

Tri ulation or Anguish? &c. And again, I have learned of my Lord Christ, not to sear them that can

cruel Tyrants, Murderers, &c. 109

kill the Body, and have no power to kill the Soul-After many Torments, he received Sentence of Death; at the place of Execution he faid, 'I give thee thanks' my Lord God, who hast accepted me to be a partaker of thy pretious Death, and hast not suffered me to be devoured of my sierce Enemies, but hast made me constant in thy True Faith unto the End: And so he lost his Head, but found a Crown of Glory. Acts and Mon.

Among others, forty young Gentlemen that were Souldiers, freely confessed themselves to be Christians to the Marshal, who amazed at their boldness, with flatteries and promises of Preferment perswaded them to confider their Youth, and not to change a pleafant Life for a painful and untimely Death : But they couragioully replyed, 'They neither defired Money, 'Honour nor Life, but only the Cæleftial Kingdom of Christ, for the Love of which they were ready to endure the Wheel, Cross, Fire or any other Torment: The Marshal offended herewith, devised a new Torment, for espying a Pond in the Street open to the North-Wind, it being in Winter; he caused them to be put into it all Night. But they being joyful, comforted one another as they put off their Cloaths, laying, We put not off now our O'd Cloaths and our Old Man. (corrupted with the deceits of Concupilcence) for which we bleis and praise God; for by means of the Serpent we once put on the Old Man, but by Jefus Christ we now put him off. Then they were brought naked and put into the cold Water till Morning, fo that all their Members were numb'd; and when it was Day, they having Breath yet remaining, were brought to the Fire, and confumed to Ashes; which were thrown into the Flood. But one of the Company being more lively, and not so near Death as the rest. the Executioners pitied him, and delivered him to his Mother; who flood by to fave his Life; but the led him to the Piles of Wood, where the other flarved Cieatures lay ready to be Burnt; exhorting him to accons-accomplish his Blessed Journey, which accordingly he did, and was burnt with his Companions. Acts and Monuments.

Domitian by his Cruelties, at length grew terrible & hateful to his Priends and Servants, yea to his own Wife. An Aftrologer boatting that by his Art he could foretel what should come to pis: Domitian asked him if he foresaw his own end, he answered, he should be torn in pieces of Dogas Domitian to prove him a Lyar commanded him to be main, and his Body to be burnt to ashes; but as the were about to do it, so violent a shower barrent or pieces; this much increased the sear of Dogastan, who had been told by a Chaldean, when and tow he should die, which soon nappened, and the vengeance of Heaven fell upon nim for all his Tyranny: For Stephanus one of his Officers, defiring to speak with him in private, preented him with a writing, which whill he was looking ipon, he stabbed him with a Dagger into the Belly, nd felented his own freed Men can't in and Dispatch-d him. A while below the Arth a Chough spoke Freek from the Tarpeian sock, crying, All shall be well, which could not be till the Tyrants Death, and Apollonius Tyaneus being af Eshefus in Afia, reading Lecture in a Grove many hundred Miles from Rome, te on a fudden began to speak low and flowly, and trait looked Pale, and flood filent, at last stepping aftily some paces, he cryed out as one transported, Obrave Stephanus, firike the Tyrant, kill the murderer, thou haft ftruck him, thou haft wounded him, thou has flain him; this being spoke in publick was aken notice off, and the time when it was spoken diliently observed, and it was found that Domitian was abbed in Rome that very day and hour, by Stephanus

f his Bed-chamber. Lipfins Monit. lib. 1.

XX. John Cameron Bishop of Glasgow, who was ery cruel to his Tenants and Vasfals, made a fearful nd. For in 1446. as he lay afleep in his House near lafgow, he heard a voice furnimoning him to appear fore the Tribunal of Christ; he awaked greatly terfied, calling to his Servants to bring lights and fit by m; he took a Book and began to read, but the voice ing again heard, struck the Servants with amazeent; the same voice calling the third time far louder e Bishop after an heavy groan was sound dead in the ed, his Tongue hanging out of his Mouth. Spotsoods Hift.

XXI. Bothwell the chief Actor in the Murther of Henry of Scotland, Father to K. James I. fled in-Denmark, where being discovered he was ared, and dispairing of his Liberty, fell me ded his Life miserably. The Archbishop, ews also who had a hand therein, beir

the Castle of Dumbarton, was carried to Sterling an XXII. Sir John Tyril, John Dighton and Miles For rest, who were procured by the Richard the Third, t murther K. Edward s. and his Brother in the Towe by entring their Chamber about Michight, and wran ping them up in the Cloaths, keeping down the Pillow upon their Mouths the they were smothered. The three Murderers did not Jong escape Vengeance. Fe Miles Forrest rotted away piecemeal. Dighton I ved at Calice to hated of all that he died there in muc mifery: And Sir J. Tyrif was beheaded on Tower Hill for Treason. Act. and Mon. The Cardinal Winch, called the Rich Cardinal (who procured th Death of the good Dake of Glocester, in K. Henry Time,) was struck with an incurable Disease; who re repining thereat cryed out, Sie, Will not Death b hired? Will Money do nothing? Must I die that has fo great Riches? If the whole Realm would fave m Life, I am able either by Policy to get it, or by Rich to buy it: but all would not avail, for he die foon after. Speeds Chron.

XXIII The Duke of Suffolk did not long escape, for in Parliament he was accused as a Traitor, a Murd rer of the Duke of Glocester, and a Robber of th Kings Treasury, for which he was banished five year He took Shipping in Suffolk, intending for France, bu being encountred by a Man of War belonging to the Tower, on the fide of a Ship Boat one cut off his hea in 14 to. Speeds Chron.

XXIV. In 1618. A Man at Peurin in Cornwal w bleffed with ample Poffessions and a fruitful Islue, un happy only in a younger Son, who growing Extr vagant, went to Sea in a small Vessel with several lil himself, where they made Prize of all they cou Her, and at last venturing into the Streights, I

Turks Man a War which they took, and g ty; but their Powder by chance taking Fir he Ship, and our Gallant being a skill cruel Tyrants, Murderers, &c. wimmer got ashoar upon the Isle of Rhodes, with the est of his Jewels; where offering some to sale to a ew he knew them to be the Governours of Algiers, he was seized and condemned to the Gallies for Pyrate among other Christians, whose miserable avery made them use their wits to recover their berty, and effected it by killing some of their Ofcers: After which, this young Man got aboard an nglish Ship, and came to London, where the skill e had got in that Art, preferred him to be Servant a Chirungion, who fent him to the East-Indies; ere by his Industry he got Money, with which he turned home; and longing to fee his own Native ountry Cornwal, he sailed in a small Ship from Lonon; but e're he attained this Port, he was cast away on that Coast, where once more his skill in Swimming ought him fafe to shoar: But having been fifteen ars absent, he understood his Father was much deyed in his Estate, and had retired to a place not far , being in debt and danger : His Sister he finds arried to a Mercer, to whom he at first appears as a or firanger, but afterward reveals himself, shewing r what Gold and Jewels he had concealed in a Bowle about him; to they concluded that next Day he ould appear to his Parents, yet keep himself unknown his Sifter and her Husband should come thither to n, to make their Joy compleat: He then goes alone his Fathers House, where his humble behaviour, table to his poor Cloaths, melted the old couple into h compatition, as to shelter him from the cold untitheir outward Roof, and by degrees the Relation his Travels and Sufferings told with so much passion the Aged People of the him stay so long by the

Swimm

nod Nich-

chen fire, the went to rehe we

d,

Bed, he shewed her his Wealth that was girded ab him, which he told her was sufficient to relieve Husbands wants, and to spare for himself; and so ing weary fell affeep: The Old-Woman be Tempted with the Golden bait which she had reco ed, and greedily. Thirsting after the rest, went to Husband, and awaking him, told him the News what further she intended to do, and though w horrid apprehensions he often refused, yet her s ling Eloquence moved him at last to be Master of that Wealth by murdering the Owners which t effected, and covered the Corps till they had oppose nity to convey it away. The early Morning haff the Siffer to her Fathers House, where with fign great Joy, she enquires for a Sailor that should Lo there the last Night. The Old People at first der they had feen any fuch, till she told them it was Brother, her loft Brother, whom she certainly k to be so, by a sear on his Arm cut with a Sword in Youth, and that they had resolved to meet there n Morning and be merry: The Father hastily runs into the Room, and finding the mark with the ho regret of this monstrous Murther of his own Son, his Throat with the same Knife wherewith he had c mitted that execrable deed: A while after the Mot going up to consult with her Husband what to do, being confounded to fee him weltring in his blood, the takes up the same Knife, and rips up Belly, so that the guts tumbled out: The Daug wondring at their delay in coming down, goes. and found too foon this Bloody Tragedy, the Mo having time only to relate the forementioned part lars, gave up the Ghoft - The Daughter was fit with fuch ! Destruction. of that

XXV. A Nobleman lived happily with his Wife. o had a Chamber Maid very beautiful, yet not taxwith the least incivility or wantonness; however Lady was jealous of her, and when her Husband s gone from home, the railed a quarrel with her letting a Child flip out of her Arms, which tho it s not hurt, yet the pretended it was lame, past overy, and being implacable committed her to a ep dark Dungeon in the bottom of a Castle, which many years had been shut up, wherein were abunace of Snakes, Toads, Adders, and other Serpents, o which the worst Malesactor in the Memory of n had not been committed; yet into this noisom adful place the poor innocent Virgin was forced to er, and the Doors were that upon her: She was fooner in, but the venomous Vermine came from corners of the Vault with horrible hissings, and seizon all parts of her Body, which with loud, doleful es and shricks, she endeavoured to strike off, but all in vain : At Noon a Servant who had a kindnel for her, goes to his Lady and defired her as the was : Christian, to have some pity upon the lamentable cries of the poor Creature, but the reviled him wit! boldness and sawciness, and gave him blows to boot At length Evening came and her woful Clamours stil continued, able to have foitned Flint or Marble, wher the Young Man falling upon his Knees before his Lad. was more importunate than before, but the grew the more furious and kickt him out of her presence : Night coming on the young man could not fleep, but rifing at Midnight went to the Dungeon Door, where hearing no noise; nor so much as a figh or groan, he thought the was dead, and called boldly at the Ladies Chamber Door, and awaking her, told her, That she had now executed her cruel Revenge, for he doubted not but the poor Virgin was dead, fince all was filent: At which words being startled, she arose and calling for Lights caused the Dungeon to be opened, where she beheld a terrible Spectacle, the Maiden fallen flat on the ground, and four great Serpents wrapt about her. one of an extraordinary bigness about her Neck, another round both her Legs, a third like a Girdle imbraced her wast, a fourth stuck upon her Jaws, firetching it felf to its utmost length, which when taken off was fo gorged with blood, that it built in furder; at which dreadful fight the Lady was ftruck with fuch horrour that the grew into a deep melancholy, which turned into Madness, and so in a raging fit died. Beards Theatre.

XXVI. In the Reign of Q. Elizabeth, there dwelt an Old Man and Woman in Honey Lane near Cheapfide, the leaft of them 70 years of Age, who lived privately without any Servants, and having yearly Means were thought by the N ighbours to be ry rich, their House being well furnished; which a Villain having notice of, he procured a false Key to the House, and entring at midnight murthered the two old People in their Leds, and then broke open their Chesis, and trying away what he was able, shutting the Doors on the dead Bodies. The next day neither of them ing feen by their Neighbours, they began to suspect ittle, but the second day when they found the Door ntinue shut, neither heard any noise in the House ey broke it open, and found all things out of Order, d going up stairs, the Trunks and Chests were broke , but looking toward the Bed they discovered the in and his Wife murthered; great search was made, d many taken upon fuspition, but nothing could be oved against them. At length a poor Vagabond retch was seized and examined, who could give no od account of himself, and being observed to haunt reabout two or three days before, he was upon ofe presumptions committed to Newgate, and next fions arraigned, and for want of making a discreet fence was condemned and hanged for this supposed rther. But the real Malefactor escaped into the w-Countries, where he fet up a Trade, got Money, was confiderable in the place where he lived. Aftwelve years continuance there he could not rest. must needs visit England, for no other business but see London, and buy a piece of Plate in Cheapside carry over with him: To a Goldsmith he comes, l in a Shop near the Standard cheapens a Bowl; ilst he was bargaining, a Gentleman was arrested at w-Church, who drawing his Sword ran up Cheapthe Serjeants and People crying, stop him, stop a. All looking that way, the murderer thought that was discovered, and so begins to run away; the Peofeeing him run, ran after and ftopt him, asking cause of his flight, who in great affright and terof Conscience said, He was the Man, they asked what Man? The same Man that committed such a ody Murder so many years fince: Upon which he apprehended and arraigned by his own Confession, idemned and Hanged at Milend in Chains. Beards atre.

XXVII. A young Gentleman of good Parentage, being a Cambridge Scholar, of great Spirit and Rout Body, could not contain himself within his allowance; but being a Fellow-Commoner spent much above it; so that to preferve his Credit, he having a good Horse, would many times ride out upon the Highway. Thus he continued a year without the least suspition; at length his quarteridge not being come from his Father, and wanting Money to Supply his Riot, he puts himfelf into a difguife, and riding over Newmarket-Heath, discovers a Serving-man with a Cloak-bag, and seeing him fingle he made up, and bid him stand and deliver, the other unacquainted with that Language, answered He had but little Money, which he was loth to part with; Then thou must fight for it (said the Scholar) Content faith the other; they both drew and fought floutly, but the honest serving-man was unhappily flain, the other being only fightly wounded took the Cloak bag, rid to the University, and carried the Port mantle to his Chamber, where he found a Letter from his Father, fignifying that he had fent him his quarterly allowance by his own faithful Servant, whom he had lately entertained upon the commendation of a Friend wishing his Son to treat him kindly, which when he had read, and confidered all the wicked Circumstan ces of his Adventure, he fell into a deep melancholy in short, the Robbery and Murther were both discovered; Judge Popham then riding that Circuit (whole near Kiniman he was) he was condemned at Cambridge Affizes, and though great Intercession was made for his Pardon, yet the Judge forgetting all Alliance caused him to be hanged among the common Malefact ors. Beards Theatre.

XXVIII. A malicious Servant, having taken a virulent spleen against his Master for some rough usage, resolved to be revenged; and when the Master and the rest of the Servants were abroad, he barricadoed at the Doors in the House, and then broke open the Chamber upon his Mistress, and after he had abused here.

boun

and her hand and foot and so left her upon the ound. Then this limb of the Devil took her three ildren, the eldest not being above seven years old. 1 carried them up to the Battlements, and when espied his Master coming stome he called to him. i first threw down one Child and then another m the top of the house to the pavement, whereby ir Bodies were miserably dashe to pieces; and then d up the other in his Arms to do the like; at which at the miserable Father fell upon his knees and ubly belought the bloody Villain, to spare the e of the third; and he would pardon him the Death the two former: The barbarous Wretch replied, ere was but one way in the World for him to rem its Life; The indulgent Father with Tears and eaties defired to know what it was, who replyed, t he should instantly with his Knife cut off his Nose, for there was no other runsom for the ld: The possionate father, who dearly tendred fafity of his Child, having now no more left, agrees to the condition, and disfigured and dishonoured his face according to his desire; which was no soone done, but this inhumane Wretch sell into a loud and scorasul Laughter; at which while the Father stoom amazed, he flung the Child which he held in his Arm after the rest, and then desperately cash himself after preventing a worse Death; and such was the end of this arch limb of Satan, and the fruits of Malice and Revenge. Beards Theatre.

A Noble and Virtuous Lady had a Chamber-Maid of a passionate disposition, and a very ill Tongue on some great provocation, her Mistress struck her Box on the Ear, at which she sell down as if she had been flain, and using many despiteful words against her Lady, told her, It should never be forgotten nor forgiven; and the Devil took occasion from hence to tempt her to accuse her Lady of Adultery; so taking an opportunity when her Lord was in private, the began thus, Noble Sir, Pray pardon my bold nels, I have a great fectet to acquaint you with, were I affured you would not reveal it, and thereby that punishment should fall upon me, which is deserved of others; wherewith this Crocodile wept : Her Lord defirous to know what it was, vowed feerecy; I know Sir (said she) that you are satisfied, of the Modelly and Chastity of your Lady, but to my great sorrow speak it, she violates your Bed, and that not with Gentleman of any fashion or quality, but with one or the Grooms of your Stable; but I humbly befeech you Honour to keep it private till I make you an Eye-wit ness thereof: And here she broke off abruptly, as i Tears had prevented her Discourse. The Nobleman was strangely surprized, having observed nothing bu Tenderness, and Affectionate Kindness in his Ladv nor could he tax her with the least wantonness yet he remembred when he went out early to Hum Hawk, or Survey his Grounds, he found her many time hardly up, when he came back, and his Jealoufie fug gested that in this time this wickedness might be com nitted. The Wench, or Devils Agent, let flip no och afion to profecute the mischief she had begun, and er Lord coming toward his House from his sports arly one morning, and knowing her Lady was then in Bed, she ran to the Stable and told one of the frooms, That he must run into his Ladies Chamber, or she had extraordinary business with him; the froom runs up as if it had been for Life and Death, s indeed it proved; and finding his Ladies Door open, ushes in, wherewith she was so offended, that she lung the Bedstaves at him, and would not let him peak: In the mean time this wicked Woman calls er Lord, and tells him now he may find them toge-her, who running up to the Room with his Sword rawn, met the Groom just coming out of the Door, nd ran him thro', fo that he fell down Dead in the lace: He then enters the Chamber, and without sking one question, ran his Sword thro' his Ladies leart as she lay in her Bed, and sent her Chast Soul ito a better place. Now as he flood leaning on his word, fo late imbrued in the Blood of two Innocents, te Author of this Villany seeing the horrible Slaugh-ir, could keep her own Devilish Counsel no longer, ut burst out into these words, ' Alass! my Lord, what have I done? never was Lady more Chaft or Constant to the Bed and Imbraces of her Husband, then the who lies here weltring in her own Innocent Blood; whatfoever I spake of her was false, and meerly suggested by the Devil, in Revenge of a blow the defervedly gave me; I therefore, and only I, am the curled Author of all these Disasters, which have been more Bloody than I expected. These words mournfully and paffionately spoken, filled his Soul ith woful distractions, so that casting his Eyes upon s Honest and Faithful Servant, and then upon his rtuous and Chast Wife, having first dispatched is wretched creature, he fell upon his own Sword, iking up the fourth in this difinal Tragedy. Beards leatre.

XXXIV. If you would hear further of Judgments upon this crying fin of Murder, every Affizes and Sef-fions produces many. I shall now add a few Instances of the wonderful Discovery of Murders, though committed never so secretly: In the Reign of Christian II. K. of Denmark, when 12 of his Courtiers were making merry, there happened a quarrel amongst them, and all the Lights being put out, one of them was flain; when Lights were brought in, and the Body found Murthered, the King required an account of his Dead Subject. The Nobles lay all the guilt upon the Post-Master, who was then a great Favourite: the King thinking they spoke out of envy, would not believe him guilty. They alledge, That he was the cause of that Meeting, and that there had been a former grudge between them, and that when the Lights were brought in, he was found next to the Body; so they defired the Corps might be laid upon the Table, and every one fingly to lay his hand upon the Breast of the Person Murthered, with a deep Protestation that they were innocent of the Fact; This was done in the Kings Presence, and all in course laid their hands, but no alteration was found in the Body: At last the Post-Master came, and first imbracing his feet, kiffed them with many Tears, thinking thereby to pacifie his angry Spirit; at length coming to lay his hand supon his Breast, a double Flux of Blood issued from his Wound and Noffrils, by which finding himself disco. veret, he confessed his Malicious Act, and was by the King deservedly committed to the hands of the Hangman. Beards Theatre.

XXXV. A Min who through rancour had watched his Neighbour, found him in the Woods at a place convenient for such a mischief, and murdered him, escaping without being suspected; but the Body being bought before the Senate, and the Murderer not to be heard of, they commanded one of his hands to be cut off, and banged up over the Table in the common Goal of the Town: It happened the Malefaster ten years after was committed to that Prison, and brought into the same Room, and by accident as he sate at Meat was placed just under the Hand; which tho' it was dried by hanging fo many years, yet now bled afresh, and dropt upon his Trencher; at which the company being amazed, the Jaylor went to inform the Senate, who seat and examined him; who being startled by that Divine Prodigy, acknowledged himfelf guilty of that bloody Murther, and was broke on the Wheel for the same. Beards Theatre.

XXXVI. In 1656: A Woman in Westphalia being near the time of her Travel, went to the next Village to confess her felf, and told the Popish Priest the had found a Purse of Money, destring him to speak of it publickly, that it might be restored to the right owner. The Priest said it was feut to her from Heaven, and that the should referve it to her felf and enjoy it. The Woman thus informed, kept the furfe. In her return home paffing through a Grove, the pains of Travel came upon her. In the mean time a Noble Person who had lost the Purse rid up to her, and demanded if the had not found one; the befeeches him for the Love of God to ride to the next Village for fome Women to affift her, and that the would reflore him the Purfe he fought for; The Nobleman rid as fast as he could to call some Women: In his absence came the wicked Prieft, who cuts off the Womans he ad and seizes upon the Purse; the Nobleman returning with the Women, they are witnesses of this Tragical Spectaele, but who had done it was unknown; Snow lay thick on the ground. and finding some footsteps he purfued them till he overtook the Priest, whom he leized, and found the Purse about him; so he tyed him to the Tayl of his Horse, and dragged him to the Magistrate; his Sentence was to be thrown into a Caldron of boyling Oyl, which was executed fan. 20. 1636. Wanleys Hift, Man.

XXXVII. An Almaign travelling fell among thieves, who being about to cut his Throat, the poor h 3

Man espied a slight of Crows, and said, Oh Crows I take you for my witnesses and Revengers of my Death; about two or three days after, these Murde rers Drinking at an Inn, and a company of Crowslighting on the House, the Thieves began to laugh, and one of them said, "Look, yonder are they which must kevenge his Death whom we lately slew; the Tap sterover hearing them, relates it to the Magistrate, who canced them to be apprehended, and upon their differencing Acswers, urged them so far, that they confesse the Truth, and received their deserved punishment Waply. Hist, Idan.

-XXXVIII Ibyous the Poet, was fet upon by Thiever in hope of a prey; and feeing the Knife at his Throat he cailed to forme Cranes which he then faw flying over his head. That they would revenge his Death Tisefe Munderers afterward fitting in the Market-place a flock of Cranes again flew over them, upon which one of them faid, behold the Revengers of Ibyous; this faying was catched up by fome prefent, upon which they were suspected, examined by Tortune confessed the Fact and were executed. Fitzherbert

Religion and Policie.

XXXIX. In 1605. John Waters of lower Darwen in Laocathire, Gardiner, was by reason of his Trade much whicht from his Family. In his absence his Wife was suspected of incontinency with Giles Haworth; They both contrived his Death, contracting with one Ribel efter a poor man to kill him; and when Waters come home and went to Bed, Haworth and Waters's Wife conducted the hired Executioner in: who feeing him to innocently laid between his two small Children (Twins about haif a year old in Bed) rerented of his Enterprize and refused to kill him; Haworth displeased at his faint-heartedness, takes the Ax and cashes out his Brains, and then buries him in the Cow-Honfe; Waters being long miffing, the N ighbourhood asked his Wife for him, the denied that the knew where he was: So fearth was made in all Pits round about, least he should casually have falen into any. It happened that Thomas Haworth of that Town, was for many Nights troubled with Dreams of this Murther; He revealed his Dreams to is Wife, who laboured to conceal them a long time; Tho. having occasion to pass by the House every Day alled and enquires about Waters; One Day he came o the House, and a Neighbour saying to him, It's said Waters lies under this Stone, pointing to the Hearthtone, Haworth replyed, and I Dreamed that he is inder a Stone not far distant. The Constable of the Town being there, urged Haworth to discover what e had Dreamed; I have (quoth he) many a time vithin this eight weeks (for fo long it was fince the Murther) Dreamed very restlesly that Waters was dorthered, and Buried under a broad stone in the low-house; I have told my troubled Dreams to my Wife alone, but the refuses to let me make them nown; but I am not able to conceal my Dreams any onger, my fleep departs from me, I am prefled and roubled with fearful Dreams which I cannot bear, and hey increase upon me : The Constable hearing this nade search, and found as he had Dreamed, the furthered Body under a flat-frone in the Caw-House; Ribcheft. Fearful Judoments upon

Ribchefler an I Haworth fled ; But Waters Wife bein taken, and brought to the Affizes, confessed the Mur der to the Judges, for which the fuffered according to Law. Webster of Witchcraft.

XL. In 1623. One Fletcher of Rascal in Yorkshin a Yeoman of a good Estate, married a lusty your, Woman from Thornton Brigs: She had formerly been kind to one Ralph Raynard, an Innkeeper within hal a mile of Rascal, his Sister living with him: This Ray pard continuing in unlawful Lust with Fletchers Wife conspired the Death of Fletcher, one Mark Dun be hig hired to assist in the Murther; which Raynard and Dun accomplished, by drowning him as they were traveiling together from Huby, and acquainting the Wife with the Deed, she gave them a Sack to convey his Body, which they buried in Raynards Backfide, where an Old Oak had been Rubbed up, and fowed Muftardfeed in the place to hide it: They then continued their wicked course of Lust, and the Neighbours wondred at Fletchers absence, but his Wife excused it, and faid, he was only gone aside for fear of some Writs being ferved upon him; and so it continued till July 7. after, when Raynard going to Topcliff Fair, the Spirit of Fletcher in his usual shape and habit appeared to him, and said, Oh Ralph, repent, repent, for my revenge is at hand; and after till he was put in the Goal. the Spirit feemed continually before him, whereby he became sad and restless, and his own Sister over-hearing his Confession of it to another Person, reveal'd it to Sir W. Sheffeld in Rascal: So Raynard, Dun, and the Wife, were all apprehended and fent to York, and were Condemned and Executed near the place where Raynard lived, and Fletcher was buried; the Men being hung up in Chains, and the Woman burned under the Gallows. Webster of Witchcraft.

XL, In 1632. There lived one Walker, near Chester in the street, a Yeoman of a good Estate, and a Widdower; he had a young Kinswoman to keep his House, who was by the Neighbours suspected to be eruel Tyrants, Murderers, &c. with Child, and was fent away one Evening in the lark, with Mark Sharp a Collier; she was not heard of, nor little notice taken of ther till a long time after, ill James Graham a Miller who lived two Miles from Walkers house, being alone in his Mill about twelve it Night, the Doors being thut, there stood a Woman before him with her Hair hanging down all bloody, and ive large. Wounds in her Head ; he was much affrighted, vet had the courage to ask her who she was, and what he wanted ; to whom the faid, I am the Spirit of fuch a Woman, who lived with Walker, and being got with Child by him, he promifed to fend me to a private place, where I should be well lookt to till I was brought to Bed, and then I should come again to keep his House; and accordingly I was one Night late fent away with one Mark Sharp, who upon a Moor (naming a place which the Miller knew) flew me with a pick (fuch as Men dig Coals withalt) and gave me thefe five wounds, and after threw my Body into a Coal pit hard by, and hid the Pick under the Bank, and his Shoes and Stockings being Bloody. the endeavoured to wash them, but seeing the Blood. would not walk off he left them there : The Apparition further told him, That he must be the Man to. reveal it, or else she must still appear and haunt him. the Miller returned home fad and heavy, but spoke ot one word of what he had feen, yet eschewed tolay in the Mill in the Night without Company, therey to escape the seeing this dreadfel Apparition; but ne Night when it began to be Dark, the Apparition net him again, threatning him that if he did not reeal the Marther, she would continually pursue and aunt him: Yet he concealed it till Christmas, when fter Sun set walking in his Garden, she appeared again ad so threatned and affrighted him that he promised sithfully to reveal it next Morning. So he went to Magistrate, and discovered the matter with all the ircumstances, and diligent search being made, the ody was found in a Cole-pit, with five wounds in the Head, and the Pick, and Shoes and Stockings ye Bloody, and in every Circumflance, as the Apparition had related to the Miller. So Walker and Mark Sharp were apprehended, but would confess nothing: At the Affizes they were both arraigned, found Guilty and Hanged; but I could never hear that they confessed the Fact: It was reported, that the Apparition did an pear to the Judge or the Foreman of the Jury. XLII. A Merchant of Lucca, Travelling to Roan in France, was murdered by a French Man his Servant, and thrown among the Vines: As the Fact was doing, a Blind Man comes by, led with a Dog, and hearing one grean asked who it was? The Murderer answered, That it was a sick Man easing himself: The blind Man thus deluded, the Vil ain, with his Masters Money, and Bills of Exchange, fets up Shop at Roan. The Merchant was expected at Lucca; and when he came not, a Messenger was dispatched to seek him, who after much enquiry, heard at an Inn that Six Months before, a Luquois Merchant Lodged there, and was going toward Paris; but the Mellenger hearing nothing of him there, suspected he was Murdered, and complained to the Parliament of Roan, who caufed Inquiry to be made if any about that time had let up a new Shop, and finding that this Person had, they caused him to be arrested, but he upon Examination denyed the Fact, till the dead Corps was heard of The blind Man on this enquiry, informed what he had heard about that place where the Corps was founds and what the Murderer answered, saying withal, That he knew that voice from any other; fo feveral Prisoners were ordered to fpeak the fame words to the Blind Man, together with the Murderer; but amongst them all, he owning his Voice, the Villain with horror confessed the Fact, and was deservedly Executed. Beards Theatre.

F :5

XLIII. In Metz a City of Lorrain, the common Hangman in the Night, and in the absence of the Matter, got privately into the Cellar of a Merchants house, where he first slew the Maid, who was sent by her Mistress to setch some Wine, and then the Mistress, who wondring at her Maids flay, came to fee the reason; This done, he fell to risling Chests and Gabinets: The Merchant upon his return, fieding the horrible Murder and Plunder of his House, with a Soul full of grief complains to the Senate, and when there were divers discourses about the Murder, the Hangman got among the Croud, and muttered out such words as thefe, That seeing there had been frequent quarrels between the Merchant and his Wife, there was no doubt but he was the Author of that Tragedy in his house, and said he, were he in my Hands I would foon make him confess it; By such like words it came to pass, that the Merchant was cast into Prison, and being tortured in a cruel manner by this wretched Hangman, he though Innocent, confessed himself the Murderer, and so was condemned to Death and Suffered. Now was the Executioner secure, and seems ed free from danger: But the Justice of Heaven discovered the Villany; for he wanting Money had pawned a Silver Bowl to a Jew, who finding upon it the Coat of Arms of the Merchant newly executed, fent it to the Magistrate; so the Hangman was cast into Prison, and being examined how he came by the Cup, he confessed all, and that he was the only Murtherer. Thus the Innocency of the Merchant was discovered, and the Executioner was punished for his wickedness. Wanley Hift. of Man. p. 29.

cruel Tyrants, Murderers, &c. 129

XLIV. In 1541. A young Woman at Paris had her Brains beaten out by a Man with a Hammer as she was going to Mass at Midnight, and all her Rings and Jewels taken from her; The Hammer being left with the Corps, was known to be a poor Smiths hard by; who being suspected of the Murder, was put to such Torture as utterly deprived him of the use of his Limbs, so that reduced to extream poverty, he ended his Life in misery: For 20 years the Murtherer was unknown, and the memory of the Murderer seemed burisd with the Dead Woman. But mark the Justice of God. One John Fleming being in a Village at Supper, chanced to fay he had left his. Wife at home fick, and no body with her, but a little Boy; there was an old man present, named Monstier, and a Son in Law of his, who both went away that Night, and at ten in the Morning came to Flemings House with a Basket of Chetrics and a Green Goole, as if presents from the Husband; they were let in by the Boy, whom they, murdered; the Woman heard his Cry, and locked the Chamber Door, crying for help out of the Window; the Neighbours ran in and took these two Villains, one in the Funnel of a Chimney, and the otherin a Well in the Cellar, with only his Nose above water: These two being condemned, at the place of. Execution, Monsier desired to speak with the Smiths. Widdow, of whom he asked forgiveness, confessing, he had Rolen his Hammer wherewith he had murdred that young Woman: Thus the Smiths innocency was cleared up, and the Murderer juftly punished twenty years after the Crime. Beards Theatre. p.

XLV. At Tiguri a Vagabond Rogue killed his Companion in the Night in a Barn, and removing the dead Corps out of fight, fled in the Morning; but the Master of the Barn seeing signs of a Murder, soon found the dead Body: The Murderer was got far away, jet by the noise of Crows and Jays which followed and faffan ted him, he was taken notice of by some Reapers in the Field, who were semewhat terrified at the novelty of the thing; The Murderer holds on his way, and feemed almost out of danger when there came pursuit after him, inquiring of the Reapers, if any man had passed that way? who tell him, They had seen a fellow, who as he passed was molested with the Crows and Jays, that they thence conjectured he was some Villain, and if they made haft, they might undoubtedly take him. The wretch was fiezed and broke upon the Wheel: At his Execution

h¢

he with Signs and Prayers, acknowledged the Providence of God in to unusual a Discovery of this Murder.

Montanus de Provid.

XLVI. A Souldier of King. Pyrrhus being flain, his-Dog could by no means be brought from the Dead Body, but fawned upon the King, as if defiring his affistance. The King commanded all his Army to pass by two and two, till at length the Murderers came, and then the Dog flew upon them so fiercely, as if he would have torn them in pieces, and turning to the King ran again upon the Murderers; so being examined, they confessed the Fast, and received the punishment they deferved. Thus God to deter men from shedding Innocent Blood, doth stir up the dumb Creatures to discover this bloody fin.

XLVII. Two French Merchants Travelling through a Wood, one of them flew the other to get his Money, and buried him; but the Dog of the Murdered Merchant would not depart from the place, but filled the Woods with howling and cries. The Murderer went forward on his Journey, and the Inhabitants near the Wood found out the dead Corps, and also the Dog whom they kept and fed till the Fair, to which People were going, was over, and the Merchants returned again; at which time they watched the High ways; he Dog seeing the Murderer pass by, seli upon him without any provocation, as against his Mortal Enemy; o he was apprehended, and consessed the East, and was offly Executed for the same. Beards Theatre.

XLVIII. A young Woman near Paris, was beloved two young Men; one going to vifit his Mistress was illed by the way and buried, and having a Dog with tim, he would not depart from the Grave of his faster. The young man being mist, his Father and rethren diligently sought him, and at last sound his log lying on his Grave, who howled as soon as he with them. The Grave was opened, and the Murdeed Body sound, but the Murderer unknown. Some time after, the Dog (in the presence of his Brethren)

espied

espied, and assaulted him with great fiercenes: Upon which, the Young Man was apprehended and examined, and when by no means he would be perswade ed to confess, the Magistrate commanded the young Man and the Dog to fight together; the Dog was covered with a dry Skin instead of Armour, and the Murderer had a Spear, and a thin Linnen Garment about him, and so they both came out to fight; but behold the hand of Divine Vengeance, the Man offering to firike at the Dog with his Spear, the Dog leapt at his Face. caught him fast by the Phroat, and threw him down, whereat the Wretch amazed cried out, Take pity on me, and pull off the Dog from my Throat, and I will confess all; which being done, he confessed the Murder, for which he was deservedly hanged. Beards. Theatre: p. 216..

XLIX. At Winsheim in Germany, a Man who had committed divers Murders, bought three Calvesheads, and putting them in a Net, carried them along the Streets; As many as faw them judged them, to be Mens Heads all bloody, for so they seemed to them: So some went and informed the Senate, who fent Officers to apprehend him; when he was brought and asked where he had those Mens Heads, He answered, That he bought them in the Shambles; The Rutcher being fent for faid, He fold him Calves not Mens Heads; The Senate amazed at the thing, fent him to Prison, where being strictly examined, he confessed the former Murders whereof he was Guilty, and fuffered for the same: When the heads were taken out of the Net, they were feen to be but Calves Heads.

Clarks Mirrour.

Thus we see it is hard-for a Murderer to escape the Justice of God, though the Justice of Man be, not able to find him out. Neither have luftful Perfons gone unpunished, as examples in all Ages Testifie: And we shall conclude this Chapter with a few Instances of the dreadful Effects, which Lust hath produced upon those that have been overcome thereby.

L. Novellus Cartarius Lord of Pavia, after many Cruel Murders, and Bloody Practices, lying at Vincentia, fell in Love with a Virgin of excellent Beauty, but more excellent Chassity, an honest Citizens Daughter, whom he commanded her Parents to fend to him to have his pleasure of her; but they more regarding the Credit of their Daughter, than the Tyrants command, and refusing to send her, he took her violently out of their House, and forced her to his Lust; after which, to add Cruelty to his Villany, he chopped her in peices, and fent them to her Parents for a Present : Her poor Father astonished carried it to the Senate, who fent it to Venice, defiring them to confider of the Fact, and revenge the Cruelty: The Venetians undertaking their defence, made War upon the Tyrant, and besieging him in his own City, took him Prisoner, and hanged him with his two Sons. Beards Theatre.

LI. One principal motive of the Danes first arrival in England (who after conquered the whole Land, and exercised horrible Cruelties on the Inhabitants) was occasioned by Lust; For Osbright a Deputy King under the King of the West-Saxons, as he was Traveling went into the House of one of his Nobles, who having a Wife of great Beauty, the King dined with her in the ablence of her Husband, and after dinner being alured by her Beauty, took her into a private Chamber and ravished her; the Lady made woful complaint of this outrage to her Husband at his return: The Nobleman studies revenge, and going to the King, he refigned all his Offices into his hands, and then failed into Denmark where he had been brought up, and had great Friends, and making complaint to Codrinus who was ready to entertain any quarrel against this Land: This King raises a mighty Army under his two Brothers, who landed at Holderness in Yorkshire, burnt up the Countrey and slew Men, Women and Children without Mercy; then marching towards York they met wicked Osbright, where he with most of his Army were slain; a just reward for his Villanous Actions. Beards Theatrer.

Eearful Judgments upon

134

LIL A Nobleman of Piedmont, married a Wife of mean Birth and Fortune, who yet abused her Lords Bed with a Gentleman his Neighbour; which he. having notice off, and defigning to take them in the Act, caused a Packet of Letters to be brought him as from his Prince, calling him to Court to fend him in-Embassige to a Foreign Country; Having imparted these Leters to his Wife, and providing all things neceffary, for his Journey, he departed with all his Train; but at Night he stays at a Castle of his own, to the Governour whereof he discovers his misfortune and defign, and being followed by him and a Groom of his Chamber in a dark Night, they came to the Chamber where his Adulterous Wife was in Bed with her Gallant; The Governour called at the Gate and told the Porter he had Letters from his Lord, which he must presently deliver to his Lady. The Porter opens the Gate, and they all enter; The Lord forbids, the Porter to make any noise, but lighting a Torch, he got to his Ladies Chamber, where the Governour knocking, told an Old Woman her Bawd, That he had Letters from his Lord, which his Lady must specdily Answer; The Lady Drunk with Luft, bid the Old Woman open the door, and receive the Letters ; The Lord with the two others ruthing in fiezed upon the two Adulterers naked, and after some furious words commanded his Wife with the help of the old Bawd, to bind the Gentleman hand and foot, and to hang him upon a great Hook, fastned into a Beam to that purpose; Then he caused the Bed to be burnt, and all the other moveables to be carried away, leave ing only a little Straw for this Whore and Bawd to lie upon, and ordered the Dead Body should remain there that up with them, till the flink had choaked them: Having past some Days in this miserable condition, they wretchedly ended their Lives together. Beards Theatre.

LIH

LIII. A Noble Man in Burgundy having in War faken a Gentleman Captive, his Wife being a Beautiful Lady, came to redeem her Husband; The Nobleman promifed to free him if the would let him lie with her, which by the perswasion of her Husband she consented to: But the Adulterous Nobleman the next Day cut off the Prisoners head, and then delivered his Body to his Wife; which horrible Fact being complained off by her to the Duke of Burgundy, he caused this Nobleman to Marry her, but before Night he cut off his Head, and gave her all his Possessions. Clarks Mirror. p. 9.

LIV. A Nobleman in Thuringia, being taken in Alultery with another Mans Wife, the Husband bound im hand and foot, and cast him into Prison, and to quench his Lust, he kept him fasting, and to encrease is misery, he daily set hot Dishes of Meat before him, hat the fight and smell might the more provoke his Apsetite. In this Torment the Letcher continued till he had gnawed off the Flesh from his own Shoulders, and he eleventh day of his imprisonment ended his wretch-

d Life. Luther.

LV. It was unnatural Lust which brought down engeance upon Sodom and Gomorrah, who burning with Fire from Hell, the Almighty burnt them uj with Fire from Heaven, and even in this last Age we find dreadful inflances of Gods Wrath for that horric Abomination; For in the adventures of Mr. T. S an English Merchant taken Prisoner by the Turks o Algiers, and carried into the Inland Countries of A. frica, we find this wonderful Relation. That near Tezrim, a Town in that Country in a Meadow, this Gentleman faw the perfect Statue of a Man buggering his As; which was fo lively that at a little diffance he thought it to be real, but when he came near faw they were of perfect Stone; he enquired why the Moors or Arabs that naturally hate all Representations, should shew their skill by making such beastly Figures, odious to Nature; he was informed that this was never made by Man, but that some person had been turned into that Image with the Ass in the very moment of the Act, by the mighty power of God, the ffeshly substance of the Man and Ass being changed into firm Stone as an eternal Reproach to Mankind. Upon further fearch he found the Stone to represent not only the perfect shape, but also the Colour of every part of the Man and Beaft, with the Sinews, Veins, Eyes, Mouth, in such a lively manner that no Artist could express it better; he endeavoured to move it, but the Company said, some that had laboured to carry away that Monument of Mans shameful Lust could never do it, but either their Persons or Cattle were fruck dead in the attempt upon the place, Divine Justice not suffering that to be hid or destroyed which was placed there for an Example; it being necessary that the Moors should have such signal Testimonies of Gods displeasure al vays before their Eyes, who commit such filthy Actions more frequently than other Nations. This Gentleman was informed that at Tripoly there is a Prodigy of Divine Wrath, five days Journey from that Town, amongst the Mountains of Gubel, more remarkable than this. Some English Merchants had the Cuciosity to go thither, and protest that in the cruel Tyrants, Murderers, &c.

Fearful Judgments upon

place aforefaid, there is a whole Town full of thele Stones in the shape of all manner of Creatures belonging to a City, with Houses, Inhabitants, Beasts, Trees, Walls and Rooms distinctly formed: They entred the Houses, and found a Child in a Cradle of Stone. a Woman in a Bed of Stone, a Man at the Door looking Lice of Stone; Camels in several Postures of Stone; Cats, Dogs, Mice, &c. of perfect Stone, and fo well expressing the several Shapes, Postures, and Passions which the Inhabitants were is at that time, that no Ingraver could do the like. All our Merchants and Traders that have been in Tripoly, agree in the confirmation thereof; the Moors report that this Town was once very Populous and Fruitful, as may appear by the Trees of Stone of several forts of Fruit planted round about it, and in the places that retain the forms of Gardens and Orchards; but the Inhabitants being given to all manner of Vice and Beafily Luft, to the candal of humane Nature, God Almighty in a moment stopped all their Actions, and turned their Bodies into firm Stone, that future Ages might fee and earn to dread his power. At Athens is a Stone, representing two Men buggering one another. I know not why we should doubt of these Relations, if we conider the Almighty power of God, who can change hings as it feems good to his Divine Wildom; Or, if we consider the necessity of such notable Examples of 3ods Justice to perpetuate his displeasure in this dreadul manner to future Ages, especially in this Counry, where the People are addicted to Villanies, which Nature abhors: They being like that of Lots Wife, urned into a pillar of Salt, which some Ancient Histoians affirm to have seen remaining in their Days many undred years after. Adventures of T. S. p. 238.

To conclude, innumerable are the Examples in all ages of Divine Vengeance against those crying sins of ruelty, Murder, and Lust, that Men might fear the ord, because of the Judgments which he Executeth.

CHAP. V.

Admirable Deliverances from Imminent Dangers, and deplorable Distresses both by Sea and Land.

Otwithstanding all these Judgments upon notorious and impenitent Sinners; yet God in good to Israel, even to those of an upright heart; for as he executeth his Severity upon the one, so he of ten desendeth those that call upon him in Truth and put their whole Trust and Considence in him; of which we find many wonderful Instances in all Ages, and especially at Sea; so that they have reall experience of what the Psalmist elegantly expresses at large Psal. 107. 23, 24, 25. And of which I shall give some remarkable Relations.

I. Seven Englishmen being in St. Christophers Island, prepared for a Voyage of one night and took Provisions for no longer, but a Tempest carried them so far off into the Sea, that they could not return in seventeen days; in which time they were so sparing of their one Nights Provisions, that they made it serve to the fifth Day, that past they must wrestle with meer Famine, which was the more grievous in regard the Sun was so extream hot, and dried up their parched Throats. They had now little hope, and so were forced by cruel necessity to cast Lots whose Flesh and Blood should satisfie the Hunger and Thirst of the rest; The Lot fell upon him who first gave the Councel, who unaffrighted at his hard hap, encouraged the rest that had a kind of horror, as to what they went about; telling them there was no possibility of escape, unless they staid their sy-ing Life by Humane Flesh: That he was well content, Admirable Deliverances from, &c. 13, d thought himself happy he could serve his Friends hen dead; with such words he so perswaded them, at one drawn out by Lot cut his Throat, of whose reals each was so desirous of a piece, that it could tree be divided quick enough; They fell to the Flesh th eager Teeth, and sucked out the Blood into their niefty Stomachs; One only being nearly related to e Dead Person, resolved to endure all things rather an pollute himself with the Blood of his Friend; t the next day, Famine drove him into fuch a Mads, that he threw himself into the Sea: His Assotes would not suffer so delicate a repair as his Cars to be instehed from them; but his madness had eady to vitiated his Blood and Flesh, that in the ole Body there was scarce any thing sit to eat, e his Bowels; At last it pleased God to shew them rcy in their Diffres, and brought their small Ship the Island of St. Martins, where they were kindly eived by the Dutch Garrison, and sent back to their Friends

Friends. They had scarce set foot on Shoar, but were accused of Murder, but inevitable necessity pleading on their behalf, they were set free by the Magistrate.

Wan. Hist. Man. p. 638.

II. Manuel Soula Governour of Diu for the King of Portugal, Having long enjoyed great Honour and Happiness in the East-Indies, came to Cochin near Calicut, and imbarqued in 1553. in a great Ship laden with Riches, and 600 persons with him, amongst whom were his Wife, Children, Servants, and Slaves, and a great Retinue bound for Portugal. But the Ship being cast away upon the Coast of Æthiopia, and the Sea having swallowed up all within it, except those who faved themselves ashoar half naked, destitute of all hope to recover their loffes again, they fell at last (so many as yet remained alive, for the greatest part were dead with fear, famine and other miseries) into the hands of a petty King of Æthiopia, who caufed them to be difarmed and fiript, and left flark naked upon the Sands, deprived of all succour; so that they were half dead with Hunger, Thirst, Fear and Shame, casting their Eyes upon the Ground, as Perfons transformed into fo many Images. Eleanor, the Wife of Manuel an honourable Lady, feeing the Barbarians stripping and snatching away the Cloaths from her Husband, her Self, her Children and the Reft, forgetting her Dignity and her Sex, feil upon these Filchers with her Fift, provoking them to kill her but in vain; fo they left her naked upon the Shoar. The Chall Lady seeing her self in such a Case, and the Day-light ministring to her more horror and sorrow than Death it felf, the covered her felf with Sand casting abroad her Hair on her Shoulders, and over her Breafts that were naked; commanding the Mer that furvived of her miserable Company to be gone and shift for themselves; she remained in that case without stirring or speaking a word; if sometimes she beheld her dear Children, the Tears would flow from her Eyes like Rivers, and the fent out deep figh Imminent Dangers by Sea and Land. 141 nd fobs. As for Manuel the Father and Husband, ich extream grief had elosed up his heart, and his bouth, that he held his Eyes a long time fixed on the arth, as one flruck with Thunder; yet the care of is little Ones upon a fulden awaked him; so he goes a Forrest to seek for food; at his return he finds ne youngest of his Children departed, and his Wife, who had been three days without eating any thing) vercome with forrow and tears; his Child he buries ith his own hands, and the next day returns to leek ain, and coming back, finds his Wife and other on dead, and some Women Servants lamenting over eir Bodies: Having put by the Servants, he lays mself on the ground, and stretching out the Right ind of his Deceased Wife, leaneth a while his Head the same, and then calling his Servants again, he deth his Wife and Child within the Sand, without tering a word; That done, he returns into the Forth, where it is conjectured he was devoured by ild-Beatts, for there was never any news heard of m : About fixfcore of these milerable Travellers aping incredible difficulties, at last, recover a Port, here they found opportunity, to return into Portugal, d declared these particulars. Causins Holy Court.

III. Admirable is the Relation of Dr. W Johnson, it by himself concerning a Deliverance at Sea. We not aboard from Harwich, on Michaelmas day, 1648, the William and John of Ipswich, Daniel Morgan ster, and having a fair wind set Sail; I being Seatwent to Bed, but about four in the afternoon Master came into our Cabin with more hast than was wont, which made me ask him whether all so well, who like a tender-hearted Man who is to tell his dying Friend that he is so near his end, lyed, all is well; yet when I saw him shift himin such hast, I rose from my Bed, and crawled upthe Deck, where I saw a sad spectacle, the Ship ing sprung a Leak, or rather a plank, was ready to fink, every Man was affrighted, one was at his Prayers, another was wringing his hands, a third shedding of tears, when he had no need of more fait water; yet they fell to work, but were bufy in doing nothing: The Masters Mate, who went to search the Leak, told us with a fad Countenance, trembling Hands, gnashing of Teeth, a quivering Tongue, and Words half spoken, That the Leak could not be stop, and the Water came in so fast upon us, that we must perish in this moment; we presently cast out our Longboat, and shot off nine Guns to another Ship who came out with us to come to our relief. Then with some difficulty we all got into the Boat, and God be thanked, got c'ear of the Ship, whose Sails now lay flat upon the Water; and now we were roving we knew not whether, for the other Ship came not to our relief, which made us have hard thoughts of them without cause, for we understood that both the Ship and all the Men perished at the same hour. Now were we without all hope, for it blew half a Storm, and we were in a small Vessel, many Leagues from Shoar, without Compass or Provision, being starved with coid, as well as for want of Victuals, having nething in our Boat but a finall Kettle to cast out the Water, and three bags of pieces of Eight of three hundred pound Sterling, which would neither feed us. nor keep us warm; In this diffress we went to Prayers and it pleased God to hear, and send a Ship to us, ever in the moment of Death, which we endeavoured to come to, and he likewife to us, but the florm was fe great we could not reach one another, though when it was dark he hung out a Light, and we to let him know we were alive, ordered, that when a Wav took us up we should give a great shour, which w did to loud that I believe our cry was heard to Her ven, for by Gods miraculous affiftance we got near th Ship, and foon after all fafe into it; The next Day biew fair for Norway where we were bound, an about twelve at noon we faw the Coast, which bein

Imminent Dangers by Sea and Land. 143 ged and full of Rocks, we resolved to stay till next orning before we went in, and then sate down and t heartily, being kindly entertained by the honest orwegian; about ten a Clock at night we laid us wn to rest, after having prayed and set our watch; t immediately this our second Ship ran with full Sails on a Rock, and gave for great a Crack as was able awake the most dead asleep among us, and the trriners cried out, Mercy, Mercy; it pleased God at the Ship struck it self so fast in the Cleft of a Rock, th her Bow over the main Rock, that the former rt of her flood firm, but breaking in the Storm, e of the Sea-men leaped from the Bow of the Ship on the Rock with a Rope in his Hand, which s fastned to one of our Mass, and held it with so ff a Hand, that another flipt down by it, and so all r Company that escaped being Twenty Eight in mber, came safe to the Rock; I was the last that ne down the Ship that way, for in that very moent she gave way, which the Master perceiving, 10 was still aboard; made lamentable moan to us, to p him, which we endeavoured to the utmost, but Ship brake, and funk immediately ; there was s good Man, and four of the Marriners drowned; iw the Master with a hight in his hand fall into the the laddest fight I ever beheld in this World, and reed my very Soul to fee him that faved our Lives, his own. Now were we in the Dark upon the ck, but knew not where, our feet being cut with tharp Stones, at length we happened in a hole in Rock which was a warm shelter against the Winds en Morning came we could fee no Land, only had limple of the Coast of Norway at a great distance; grew hungry, yet had nothing to fish, but our ns, with which we drew up some small Muscles, they we eat heartily; but we burnt with Thirft, I would have given all I had for a Draught of freiher, which would have been more welcome than Gold of Ophir, though nothing is so mean in our

effeem

144

esteem; but we were forced to drink Salt-wate which encreased our Thirst; we now saw a Ship con ing toward us with full Sails, and we waved our Ha to them, but they went off, and never came near u we betook our felves to our old Remedy, Prayer the Danes singing one of Luthers Plalms fell to the Prayers, and I prayed as long as I was able, and the laid my felf down upon the Rock, thinking I shoul rife no more in this World : But I over-heard one the Seamen fay, Let us make a Raft, and venture i Sea. I had rather be drowned then lie here and l Starved; They all concluded of it, though dangerou and the Sea having fallen from the Rock, had left of Sails, Masts and Anchors, with part of the Ship there on, wherewith they foon made a flight Boat, and being a great Calm, past through the Beaches wit four Men; had it touched on them they would have rent it in pieces: But by God's gooduels they arrive safe in Norway, and returned with several Boats, I that we came all once more to Land, and were el tertained in an honest Lutheran Parsons House. After fome Days, with little Money and much Thanks w parted, and came to Frederick-Stat, the People rul ning after us in the Street, with compassionate Ey gave us what we wanted without asking. From thence we went to Offersontd, and got aboard a English Ship; we had not been above three hours Sez, but the Marriners again cry Mercy, Mercy, fe we had almost fallen foul on a Rock under Wate which we did not spy till upon it, but by the mere of God we failed close by it, yet escaped; The lea touch of it had been our Ruin; about Noon we can clear of all the Rocks on the Coast of Norway, and we Sailing for England with a fair Gale, when this thin Ship sprang a Leak, and began to swim within as we as without; So we had no way to relieve our felv but by pumping (for the Leak could not be found which we did Day and Night four or five Days, who it pleased God, we came safe, though in great dange

becau

Imminent Dangers by Sea and Land. 145

becau'e of our Rotten Ship, into Yarmouth Road, for the Wind being high had like to have driven us upon a Scotch Vessel, who cryed out as well as we, but we tappily mist him, and safely arrived in Yarmouth Town, by the wonderful Mercy of God. Deus No-

IV. Two Ships were bound for New-found-Land, om the West of England, but by stress of weather arted; forme Days after, one of the Ships fprang a eak, and foundred in the Sea, where every Soul erilhed except an Old Man, who being lasht on ie main Hatch, committed himfelf to the mercy of od and the Sea, where he floated three Days and three lights. In which time the Devil in the shape of a Meraid flarts up before him and bid him be of good heart, n if he would but make a contract with him he would liver him in Twenty+Four Hours: The Old Man beg sensible it was the Devil, said, Ah Satan if thou off Prophecy deliverance for me, know, my God whom I truft, will deliver me without thy help, but wever know, I will not comply to thy Wiles, avoid tan avoid, upon which he vanished: It happened at the other Ship being in the fame danger, the Ca-Boy dreamed that Night, that such a Ship was cast ay, and all the Men loft, except this Old Man hich he named) who was faved upon a piece of the p, and floating in the Sea; which Dream the Boy fidently tells his Master, affirming it must needs true, and was so impatient that he received a check, he continued reliefs, sunning to the foretop I-head, and then to the main top Mast-head, lookabroad; and at last cryed out aloud, Alvo e, I fee him, under our Lee-bow, who some of Men stept up, and espied somehting at a distance nigger than a Grow floating; the Master stood ato it, and when they came near, found it to be the Man as the Boy had fuid; and hoisting out their took him in, who was speechless and aimoft spent, but by the care of the Master and Chirurgeon. the with Gods bleffing recovered; and gave this Account of his Misfortune and wonderful Deliverance; and the Ship landed him fafe in New-found-land. Re markable Sea Deliverances.

V. Richard Clark of Weymouth was Mafter of Ship called the Delight, which in 1583, went with Si H. Gilbert for the discovery of Norembega; It hap pened that the Ship struck on the Ground, and was cal away: Of those that escaped Ship-wrack, fixteen go into a small Boat of a Tun and half, and had but on Oar to work withall: They were Seventy League from Land, and the Weather foul. The Boat bein overburdened, Afr. Hedley made a motion to cal Lots, that those four who drew the shortest, shoul he thrown over-board, provided if one Lot fell o the Mafter, yet he should be preserved for all the faseties: The Master disavowed the acceptance of an fuch Priviledge, replying, That they would Live an Die together: On the fifth Day, Mr. Hedley and an ther Died, whereby their Boat was lightned. Fit Days and Nights they faw the Sun and Stars but one to that they only kept up their Boat with their fing Oar as the Sea drove it; They continued four Da without sustenance, save what the Weads in the Se and the Salt-water did afford: On the seventh D they had fight of New-found-land, and came to t South part thereof: All their time of their being at Se the Wind kept South, if it had shifted, they had n ver come to Land; but it turned to the North in h an hour after. Being all come to shoar, they ga God praise for their miraculous Deliverance: The they remained three Days and three Nights, maki a plentiful repast upon Berries, and Wild Pease. ter five Days Rowing along the Shoar, they happen on a Spanish Ship of St. John de Luz, who brow them to Biscay, where the Visitors of the Spanish quisition came aboard; but by the Masters favour tome general Answers they escaped; yet searing a Imminent Dangers by Sea and Land. 147

ond fearch, by going Twelve miles one Night, they of into France, and fately arrived in England. Hack oyages Vol. 3.

VI. The Admiral of St. Jago of Portugal in 1585, ailed betwixt the Island of St. Lawrence and the rm Land, by the Coast of Mosambique, in which affage are shallows of Coral, sharp, black, white and reen, and very dangerous. The Pilot thought they vere past the shallows, though many of the Sailors vere against him: So he commanded the Master to nake all the Sail he could to Mosambique. At midight they fell upon the shallows, being of clear white oral, and so sharp, that with the force of Wind and ea the Ship was cut in two pieces, as if fawn afunder, that the Keel, and two Oarlops lay upon the round, and the upper part being driven further fluck ift, the Mast being also broken; whereupon there as a lamentable cry, there being 500 persons in ie Ship: The Admiral Mendoza, the Master, the lot and ten or twelve more entred the small Boat, fending it with their Swords that no more flould enr, faying, They would go fee if there were any y place in the shallows whereon to make a Boat of e pieces of the Ship, which put them that were bend is some small comfort; But sinding none, they erst not return least their Boat should have been erladen; so they rowed toward Land, having welve boxes of Marmalade, a Pipe of Wine and ne Biskets which in hast they had thrown into the at. After they had been 17 days at Sea, and inred great Hunger, Thirst and Labour, they got to nd. The rest in the Ship seeing the Boat not come in, it may be supposed in what trouble they were :: last one side of the Ship burst cut, and the Boat can to come forth; but there was small hope, no. n laid hand thereon, till one faid, Why are you s discouraged, let us seek to help our selves and e our Lives; so he leaped into the Boat with an Inment in his hand, and began to make it clean;

148 Remarkable Deliverances from whereat others took heart, so that there leapt at least 90 Perfons into it, and many hung by the hands upon the Boat, swimming after it, but to prevent its finking, they were forced to cut off the Pingers, Hands, and Arms of fuch as held thereon, and let them fall into the Sea, and many others they threw overboard; which done they fet forward, being followed with a most doleful noise from those they left in the Ship. Having Rowed cortain Days with small store of Victuals, because there were so many in the Boat, which was leaky and ready to fink: They chose a Captain absolutely to obey him, who commanded to throw some more everbrard, as the Lot directed. Amongst these was a Carpenter who helped to dress the Boat, he desired a piece of Marmelade and a Cup of Wine, after which he was willingly thrown into the Sea, and drowned. In this diffress they continued twenty Days, and then got to Land, where they found the Admiral and those in the other Boat; having escaped this danger, they had no fooner fet foot on Thour but they were robbed by the Moors of all their Cloaths, who left them not a rag on their Bodies: In the end having endured great Hurger and Milery, they came to a place where they found a Factor of the Captains of Soffola and Mosambique, and thence went to India. Of those that staid in the Ship, some took boards and pieces of Wood bound together hoping to fave their Lives, but there came only two alhoar, so that of Five Hundred there were but Threescore saved, all the rest among whom were Fifty Women, some Jesuits and Fryars were drowned through the wilfulness and Pride of the Pilot. Linfcorens Voyages.

VII. One Gregory Crow at Malden in Effex, going in his Boat with his Man and Boy to tetch Fullers Earth; by a fform his Boat was driven upon a Bank of Sand, and there funk; the Men were glad to hang upon the Mass, but poor Crow seeing his New Testament in the Water which he highly prized, eatch it up, and put it into his Bosom: The Tyde being gene they were Imminent Dangers by Sea and Land. 149 oft upon the Sand ten Miles from the Land: In this reat diffress they beseeched God to find out a way or their deliverance, for within half an hour it would e Flood. In this little time they found a Cheft, therein was Five Pound Six Shillings and Eight pence; hich honest Crow cast into the Sea again, saying, f God please to save our Lives he will provide s a little food, and fo they went again up to the last, where they hung by the Arms and Legs Ten ours together; the Boy was so weary that beaten ith the Waves he fell off and was drowned; low their fears increase, and they know not what to o; but Crow advises his Man to cut down the Mast, ad when the Flood came again to fit upon it; and so ys he, it may please God to drive us to some Ship; they committed themselves to God upon this Mast, ad thus they continued from Tuesday Night to Wedassday Night, in which time the Man was so Tired ith Hunger, Watching and Cold, that he Died: Now as Crow left alone in this deplorable condition, who raved more earnestly for succour, but durst not sleep ast the Sea should beat him off the Mast, and when is distressed Creature was almost spent, his slesh dden with Sea-water, and his Eyes closed up with. lt: In this Extremity Providence presents a Ship ing for Antwerp, and the Wind not being favourle they were driven out of the way thither, and eying something afar off in the Sea, supposed it a Fishs Buoy, and steered from it; Crow seeing this, held his Cap and shaked it, whereby they were moved go to him, and so they took him in half Dead, t being careful of his New Testament, he pluck'd out of his Bosom, and gave it some to dry. They th great difficulty recovered him, and carried him Antwerp, where the fame of his being fo miracually preserved, drew many to see and relieve him th Necessaries. Acts and Monuments.

VIII. In 1630. Capt. Goodler went Commodore three Ships for Greenland, which arrived there

June 11. The Captains Ship stayed at Belfound, and the Salutation at the Foreland. The Captain having killed store of Whales, made a quick Voyage and sent for the Salutation to take in part of her Train Oyl; in the way meeting with Crofs Winds, the Mafter fent Eight Men ashoar to kill Venison, who taking with them a brace of Dogs, a Firelock, two Lances and a Tinder-Box went on shoar, and killed fourteen Deer; Night coming on, being weary they went to rest, intending next day to end their Hunting and to return to their Ship; But it proved foggy, and much Ice being betwixt the Shoar and the Ship, the was fain to fland fo far off into the Sea that they loft fight of her. They hunted on to Green Harbour, and there found that the Ship was departed; they made all speed with their shallop to Belfound to their Captain, and for fear of delay heaved their Venison overboard; but having no compass they wandred up and down so long, till the Ships were departed; This filled them with aftonishment, knowing that neither Christian nor Heathen had ever Inhabited those desolate Climates, and they had heard, that the Muscovy Merchants had once procured the reprieve of feveral Malefactors condemned to Death here in England, promising them pardon, with rewards and provision of all necessaries if they would Winter there; but when they came and faw the place, they chose rather to return for England and fatishe the Law with their Lives, than to flay in so desolate a Country: They remembred also a more terrible inflance of Nine Men left there formerly by this Master who now left them, that ail died miserably, and whose Bodies were torn by the Bears and Foxes; All which made them frand like Men amazed, looking one upon another, and that which increased their horror was, their want of all necessary Provisions, no Cloths for shift or warmth, no bood, no tiquie for shelter; After a while, considering the danger of de-Jay in extremity, they resolved to go to Green Harbour to hunt for Venison, where they killed Nineteen Deer Imminent Dangers by Sea and Land. 151

nd four Bears, with which they laded their shallop, nd finding another old shallop lated it with the reaves and Fritters of Whales boyled there that year, nd so took their way to Belsound to their Tent where hey intended to Winter; In their passage they had ke to have lost all their Provision, but saved it by unning into the Sea, and by force drawing their shalop ashoar, they then arrived at Belsound, took out heir Provision, and with part of a Tent, pieces of ld Casks and old Shallops made up their House and abine, where they Lodged two and two; and withnarvelous Industry provided Fire, Wood and Shelter gainst the cold ; their Beds were the Deer-skins lied: Having fitted every thing the best they could eptember 12. looking out into the Sound, they espid two Sea-Horses asleep on a piece of Ice, and with n old Harping Iron slew them both, then flead; roassd and eat them; not long after they killed another; ut the Darkness and Cold increasing, and their Proision being too small by half, they fasted Wednesdays. nd Fridays, except from the Greaves of the Whale, loathsome Meat; which they continued three Months: To repair their Cloaths they made Thred of Rope-yarn and Needles of Whalebone; Oft. 10. the lights being long the Sea was frozen over, and thenrief and Fear working upon them, they prayed to od for Strength and Patience in their miseries, and y his affiftance cheered up themselves to use means or their Prefervation. For keeping their Venison: nd faving their Firing, they Roafted every Day half Deer, and stowed it in Hogsheads, leaving as much aw as to ferve every Lords-Day a Quarter. Here nother Trial of their Patience besel them ; their Whale-Fritters which had been in the Salt-water and ay close together, were grown mouldy, and their sear and Venison would not afford them Five Meals week, so they cut off one Meal more, and for Three Months fed four Days on the mouldy Fritters, and hree they feasted on Bear and Venison; Besides the want of Meat, they began to want Light, no Sun appearing from October 141 to February 2, but the Moon thined as here in England; but having found a sheet of Lead in the Coopers Tent, with Rope-yarn and Oyl they made a Lamp, which they kept continually burning to their great comfort : In January, as the days lengthned the cold strengthned, so that it raised Blisters on their Flesh; and if they touched Iron it would stick to their Fingers; if they went out to tetch water, they were fore as if they had been beaten : they Drank nothing but Snow water from January, till May, which they melted with hot Irons, In January finding their Food would last but fix Weeks they had recourse to God for supply, and looking out one bright day, faw a great She Bear with her Cub coming towards the Tent; her they slew with their Lances, but the Cub escaped; they drew her into the Tent, and this Bear ferved them tweaty days: In March the Fowls and Foxes came abroad; they by Traps catche 50 Foxes and 60 Fowls as big as Pigeons, and killed leven Berrs, fo that eating 2 or 3 Meals a day, their strength increased ; May 1. the Weather grew warmer, fo they went out to feek Provision; there carre two Ships from Hull into the Sound, who knowing force Men had been left there the year before, and defirous to know whither they were Dead or Alive, the Master manned a shallop to go near the shoar, and so over the Ice to the Tent When these Men came near they halled them; crying Hey, to which they in the Tent appwered Ho, which amazed them all, perceiving them to be the very Men left there. So with joyful Hearts they imbrace one another, the Men left their Tent and went with them to their Ship, where they flayed till the Londor Fleet came, which was three days after; they went a board Captain Goodler; who made them welcome, gave them Apparel, and after 14 days refreshment they gree all perfectly well. Thus they at last came fafe into the River of Thames, and the Molcovy Merchants deal Imminent Dangers by Sea and Land. 153 cell with them. The Names of these 8 Men were vill. Fakely, Ed. Pelham, that wrote this ftory; ohn Wise, Robert Good fellow, Tho. Ayrs, Hen. ett, John Daws and Richard Kellet. Stows Chronicle,

. 10.

IX. A Ship at New-found-land fishing late in the ear, the Ice came on them; being ready to hoise ail to return home, they fent out 6 Men in the Boat b weigh their Anchor; but a flake of Ice coming beween them and their Ship carried them adrift, fo hat they could not recover it again, but were expoed to inevitable ruin, having neither Food nor Acommodation to keep them warm; after three days hey began to be Hunger-starved, and accounting hemselves to be all dead Men, consulted what course o take; at last tho' with great regret and grief, they esolve one of them must die to become food for the est; each Person desired to die first, to be freed rom that Torment they were in, so that they deternined it by Lot; he upon whom the Lot fell defired to go to the end of the Boat, to recommend his Soulto God by prayer before he died; the rest being in i deep Agony upon apprehension of shedding the Blood of one of their Comrades: But while they were lamenting, and imploring Gods favour to prevent such a Fact, the Person separated by Lot, died on the place where he was praying; which occasioned great Joy that they were prevented from taking away his Life; and judging this a good Omen, proceeded to satisfie their Hungers upon the dead Body: The Boat was still adrift, not being frozen up, so that before their food was spent, they were brought ashore many Leagues North of New-England, where the Five landed, and the poor Indians pitying their Condition, helped them all they could; 3 of them dyed foon after with the misery they had suffered, the other two got to New-England, and fo at last by Gods mercy came to their Habitations in the West of England, State of the state

Admirable Deliverances from

having both loft their Heels with the extremity of Cold

in the Boat. Remarkable Sea Deliverances. X. Great were the Dangers, and Wonderful the Deliverances of William Okely and his Company, the Relation of which I have thus contracted: In 1639. We took Ship at Gravesend, in the Mary of London for the West-Indies; 5 Weeks we lay in the Downs for a Wind, and then fet sail and came to an Auchor near the life of Wight, but by this time all the Beer in our Ship stunk, and we were forced to throw it over-board, and take in Vinegar to mix with water for our Voyage: The 6th day after we discovered three Turks Men of War, who chased us, and at break of Day boarded and took us. Having kept us close Prisoners at Sea 5 or 6 Weeks, they brought us to Algiers, where I was fold for a Slave to a Patron, who told me I must allow him two Dollars a Menth, and live ashoar where I would, and get it where I could though I knew not where to levy the least Mite of it. Wandring up and down I met with an Englishman. in his little Shop who Traded in Tobacco, and a few other things; I became his Partner with a little Money I had referved, and a small modicum my Patron allowed me for my flock; Here I got Money and hired a Cellar to lay up my Goods. Being weary of my Slavery, I formed a delign for my Liberty, and communicated it to John Anthony Carpenter, William Adams B.icklayer, John Jepths Scatsan, John the Carpenter and two others, Men able to contrive the Model of a Boat, which being formed in parcels and then put together, might be the means of our escape: They approved the Proposal, and in my Cellar we began our work, providing first a piece of Timber of 12 foot long for the Keel, and to convey it the better out of the City, we cut it in two and fitted it for joynting at the middle; and then provided Ribs and made the Boat Water-tite; and because Boards would require hammering, we bought strong Canvas to cover our Boat twice over; Upon the Convex of Imminent Dangers by Sea and Land. 155

he Carine; we provided Pitch, Tar, and Tallow to nake a kind of Tarpawling Cerecloth to swaddle the Naked Body of our Infant Boat; Of two Pipeslaves we made two. Oars; our Provision was a little Bread and two Leather Bottles of Fresh-water; we bought Canvas for a Sail, and carrying out these in Parcels, itted them together in the Valley half a Mile from the Sea, whither four of our company carried the Boat on their shoulders, and as far into the Sea as they fould wade, and then all 7 got into the Boat; but inding the Boat was overladen, two of them were content to flay ashoar. Having bid them farewel we anched out, June 30. 1644. The Bill of Lading was ohn Anthony, William Adams, John Jepths, John he Carpenter and William Okely : Four of us wrought the Oar, the Fifth was to free the Boat of that waer which by degrees leaked through our Canvas; our Bread was foon spoiled with Salt-water; our Freshvater flunk of the Tanned Skins and Owze, yet we complained not. Three days with good Husbandry our Bread lasted us, but then pale Famine stared us n the Pace; water indeed we might have, but it must e falt out of the Sea, or that which had been straind through our own Bodies, and that we chose of the wo; but we must not have that after a while, unless ve will accept of the other first; and the misery was, hat it did not asswage our Thirst but increase it; the Wind too for some time was full against us, but God ebuked it, and made it our Friend; a fecond conveience was, that our Labour was without intermission : nd a third, the extremity of the heat by day, the feafon aging hot in July, and we wanted fresh-water; our abour made it insupportable to our Bodies, and our ittle hope made it as grievous to our Souls; one help ve had, a poor one, he that emptied the Boat threw he water on the Bodies of the others to cool them; ut our Bodies thus scorched and cooled, rose up in lifters all over; great Pain we felt, great Dangers e were in, great Miseries we endured, great Wants

we were under and had nothing but a little Hope, Food and Strength. We fleered our Course to Mayorck, by Day by a pocket-Dial, by Night by the Stars and Clouds. Four Days and Nights were we in this woful plight, on the Fifth all hope that we should be faved was perished, for that, we left off our Labour, because we had no strength left, only we emptied the Boat of water; but then God fent us relief, for as we lay hulling up and down, we discovered a Tortoise afleep in the Sea; had Drake discovered the Spanish Fleet he could not have more rejoyced; we took up our Oars, filently rowed to our Prey, took it into the Boat and with great Triumph cut off her Head, and let her bleed into a pot; we drank the Blood, eat the Liver, and fucked the Flesh: It wonderfully refreshed our Spirits, and we picked up some Crumbs of hope: About Noon we thought we discovered Land; its impossible to express the Joy of our raised Souls at this apprehenfion; we wrought hard, and after further labour were fully satisfied that it was Land, and proved to be Mayorck, which we kept within fight of all Day: July 6. about 10 at Night we came under the Island, and crept as near the shoar as we durst, till we found a convenient place to thrust in our Weatherbeaten Boat. When we were come to Land we were not insensible of our Deliverance; but though we had escaped the Sea, we might Die at Land; we had no food fince we eat the Liver and drank the Blood of the Tottoile ? So J Anthony and my felf were fent to fcout abroad for Fresh-water, because we spake some Spenish; we cam to a Watch Tower of the Spaniards, inake to them of the Watch, told them our Condition, earnefily beg ged some Fresh-Water and some Bread; he threw u down an old mouldy Cake, but so long as it was Cake Hunger did not confider its menddiness; then he di rected us to Fresh-water which was hard by; we re membred our Brethren fest with our Boat, and obse ving the Centinels Directions, rame to a Wall, whel was a Pot with firings to draw with; we drank a litt

Imminent Dangers by Sea and Land. 157

Water, and eat a piece of our Cake, but the passage vas fo diffused, we had much ado to force our Throats o relieve our Clamorous Stomachs; we return to our Boat, acquaint them with our good fuccefs, and all prepare to make to the Well; fo tying our Boat fast to he Shoar, we left her to mercy. Now we are at the Well which hath Water and have something to draw, out God must give us a Throat to swallow; for W. dams attempting to Drink, after many Essays was not able to swallow it, but still the Water returned, so hat he funk down to the ground; faintly faving, I am dead Man; but after much striving he took a little: so refreshed with our Cake and Water, we lay by the Well-fide till Morning; when it was clear Day we gain went to the Watchman, intreating him to diect us the ready way to the next House or Town where we might find relief; he civilly pointed us to me about two Miles off, and long it was ere our blifted Feet could overcome the tediousness of that little vay; when we came thither, the honest Farmer moed with our Relation sent us Bread, Water and Olives. nd feeing us Thankful Beggars, cailed us into his House, and gave us good warm Bean Pottage, which eemed to me the most pleasant food that I ever eat n my Life. Thence we advanced to the City of Maybrek about 10 Miles off; that Night we lay by a Wellide, and in the Morning entred the Suburbs; the Vice Roy was informed of us, and we were commandd to appear before him, who after he had heard our flory, ordered we should be maintained at his cost till we could have passage to our own Country. But our English Ships seldom trading thither, we Peticioned him for passage in the King of Spains Gallies then in the Road bound for Alicant, which he graciously granted. We met with contrary Winds, and it was five weeks ere we could reach the Downs, where we arrived Sept. 1644. The Commander of the Ship was Captain Smith of Rotherhith. Mr. Saunders my Wives Brother being in Mayorck not long after, faw our Boat hung for a Monument upon the fide of the Great. Church there; and Mr. Robert Hales in 1671. fawthe Naked Ribs and Skeleton of it then hanging in the same place. Wanley Hist. Man. p. 642.

XI. A Ship of New-England going from Boston to some other parts of America, was by contrary Winds kept follong at Sea, that they were ingreat streights for Provision; and seeing they could not hope for any relief from the Earth nor the Sea, they apply to Heaven in Humble and Hearty Prayers; but no calm infuing, one of them made a forrowful Motion to cast Lots which should die first, to satisfie the Ravenous Hunger of the rest; after many a sad debate the Lot is cast, and one of the company is taken, but where is the Executioner of this poor Innocent? It is Death to them to think who shall act this bloody Tragedy. Before they fall upon this involuntary Execution, they once more go to Prayers, and God answered them; for there leapt a mighty Fish into the Boat which was a double joy, not only in relieving their miserable Hunger, which no doubt made them quick Cooks, but because they lookt upon it as sent from God; and a Token of their Deliverance; but alass the Fish was foon eaten, and their former Exigencies come upon them, which funk their Spirits with despair, for they know not of another Morfel: To Lots they go again, which falls on another Person, but still none can be found to sacrifice him; they again send their Prayers to Heaven with fervency, when behold a great Bird lights upon the Mast, which one of the Company espies, and up he goes, and there she stands till he took her with his Hand by the Wing. This was Life from the Dead a fecond time, they feafted herewith, as hoping this second Providence was a fore-runner of their compleat Deliverance. But they have fill the Same disappointments, they can see no Land; they know not where they are, hunger again increases upon them, and they have no hope to be faved but by a third Miracle. They are reduced the Third time to calt Lots, Imminent Dangers by Sea and Land. 159 and when they were going to their Heart-breaking ork to put him to Death upon whom it fell, they go of God their old Friend in Adversity by Humble and earty Prayers; and now they look and look again, but here is nothing; their Prayers are concluded and othing appears, yet still they hoped and stayed, till that one espies a Ship, which put new Life into all heir Spirits; they bear up with the Vessel, they Man heir Boat, they beg like humble Suppliants to be taken in: They are admitted, and the Commander eing acquainted with one, Relieves them plentifully and sets them all safe ashoar to the great rejoycing of heir Souls. Sea Deliverances.

XII. In 1616. One Pickman a Fleming coming om Drontheim in Norway, laden with Boards, was vertaken with a Calm, during which, the Current of e Sea carried him upon a Rock or little Island toards the extremities of Scotland; to avoid a wreck, commanded his Men to go into the Shallop and to ow off the Ship; coming near the Island, they faw mething more like a Ghost than a Living Creature; Body stark Naked, Black and Hairy, a Meager ountenance and hollow Eyes; he fell on his knees id joining his hands begged relief; which raifed fuch impaffion that they took him into the Boat: There as in the Island no Grass nor Tree, nor ought for flenance or Shelter, besides the ruins of a Boat herewith he had made a kind of a Hut to lay down ider: The Man gave this Relation, That he was an ng'ish-man, and that a year before being to go in the Mage-Boat from England to Dublin, they were ken by a French-Pyrate, who being forced by Temst to let go the Passage-Boat, lest us to the Mercy the Waves which carried us into the Sea, and at I fplit the Boat upon the Rock where you took me in; escaped with one more into the Island, where we dured the greatest Extremities. Of some of the ards of the Boat we made the Hat you saw, we took ne Sea-mews, which dryed in the Wind and Sun

60 Admirable Deliverances from

we cat raw; In the Crevices of the Rocks on the Sea fide we found fome Eggs, and thus we had as much as ferved to keep us froth starving; But our Thirst was most insupportable, for having no Fresh-water, but what came from the Sky, and was left in pits which time had worn in the Rocks, we could not have it at all seasons, for the Rock lying low was washed over with the Waves of the Sea. We lived in this Condition fix weeks, comforting one another in our common misfortune; but awaking one morning and milfing my Companion, 1 fell into such deep Despair that I thought to cast my self into the Sea; I know not whether Despair forced him to that extremity, or that looking for Eggs on the fide of the Rock he might fall into the Sea: I loft with my Comrade the Knife wherewith we killed the Sea-Dogs and the Mews upon which we lived, so that not able to kill any more, I was reduced to get out of the Boards of my Hut a great Nail which I sharpened on the Rock so that it served me for a Knife. Last Winter finding the Rock, and my Hut lo covered with Snow, that it was impossible to get any thing abroad, I put out a stick at the Crevice of my Hut, and baiting it with Sea Dogs Fat, got some Sea-mews which I took with my Hand from under the Snow, and so kept my self from starving; I lived in this solitude, at Months, and thought to end my Days in it, when God sent you here to deliver me out of the greatest misery that ever Man was in: The Seaman having ended his Discourse, the Master of the Ship treated him so well that in a few days he was quite as nother Creature; he set him ashoar at Derry in Ireland, where such as heard what had happened, gave him wherewith to return to England. Mandelees Tra-

XIII. A Ship of Holland being driven against her will, came to Nova-Zembla and the Orange Islands in 76 Degrees of the North Latitude, where she was set fast in a Eody of Ice, which threatned them every moment; at last they resolve to return the same way

the

Imminent Dangers by Sea and Land. 161 ey came, but find the Ship quite Frozen up not far om the shoar, and were forced to winter in Zembla; taking our Boards and Planks, they built a poor shelfor themselves and their stuff, and by Providence e Tyde had thrown up a great quantity of Timber, nich proved of great advantage to them; Here they d continual Fights with Bears, who fometimes were. iven away by great outeries, or shooting of them, t they found their Flesh unwholesome meat; for in at Country the Fishes of the Sea are food to the ild Beafts of the Land; The fat of the Bears they ent for lights in the Night; at last to increase their ifery the Sun left them. Thus were they in a Barn Dark Country, having no Company but Wild afts; vast Mountains of Spow they were forced to move lest their Habitation should be overwhelmed, d if they went forth their jaws were so benummed, ey could scarce recover their former heat. The Bears ing in the Dark and dull of fight, did not venture otius Annal.

XIV. And the same Providence that has appeared inderfully for the Deliverance of Distressed Creatures. Sea, has been Merciful in Preservation from Imminit Dangers at Land; as among many others (reded in the Scriptures and other Histories) is marked in the following instances. In 1839. Near tain Germany, in the time of a great Dearth and mine, a Religious Matron having two Sons, and litute of all sustenance, went with her Childsen to fountain, praying to God, That he would of his Inte Goodees relieve their Hunger; as she was goa Person unknown met and saluted her kindly, ing whither she was going, who consessed, That road to disturb them, but there were a multitude of exes which they catcht in Traps, and made of them od and Raiment. And after all, the A'mighty eserved them, for in the Spring the Ice breaking they t their Ship again, and sailed safe to Amsterdam.

he was walking to that Fountain, hoping to have fome relief from God to whom all things are possible, for (faid she) if he nourished the Children of Israel in the Wilderness Forty years, it will not be difficult for him to bestow a Draught of Water upon me and my Children: when she had spoken these words, the Man (who doubtless was an Angel of God told her, 'That seeing her Faith was so Constant, the thould return home, and should there find six Bushels of Meal, for the support of her self and Children; the Woman returning home, found it according to his Word. Beards Theatre. p. 442.

XV. In 1565. Fell so much Rain in Islebia, that the Waters bore down the House of a Man where a Child lay in the Cradle, which the Father with the hazard of his Life brought forth, and carryed into a Neighbours House; he then endeavoured to save two more of his Children, and took them in his Arms to carry them out, but the Waters were fo firong, that one of his Children fitting upon a Beam, was carried away, and himself and the other carried into the Orchard, where finding some ground, he stood up to the Neck in Water with the Child in his Arms, and looking about for his other Child, he saw it sitting upon the piece of Timber, swimming toward him, which he likewise took in his Arms; and getting upon an High Pile of Wood, continued with them there all Night, none being able to afford him help; next morning when the Waters were decreased, he came down, and looking for two other of the Children, whom he left in the Upper Room of the House, where he found the two innocents fast asleep; he had no fooner taken them thence, but that part of the House fell, which was a visible sign of Gods holy Protection over them. Beards Theatre.

XVI. In the bloody Rebellion in Ireland in 1641.
A Religious Gentlewoman (with fome others in her Company) was forced to fly for her Life. She having three Children, whereof one was at her Breast; but alass! these poor trembling Travellers had not gone far

before

Imminent Dangers by Sea and Land. 163 efore they were stripped Naked by the Irish, who to dmiration spared their Lives; but passing on, they ame to a River where more of these bloody Villains net, and would have Drowned them; this Gentlewonan not in the least discouraged, defired a small time o pray, and as the lay Naked on the frozen Ground. he resolved within her self, not to go voluntarily to so injust a Death; upon her refusal these Miscreants draged her by the Heels along the Ground, with the rest the Company, upon which she turned upon them, nd on her knees faid, 'You should I am fure be Christians, and Men you are; in taking away our Miserable Lives you do us a pleasure; but know as we never wronged you nor yours, you must die also your selves, and one Day give an Account of this Cruelty to the Judge of Heaven and Earth: Upon which says an Irish Priest, Let us not take their Lives, but we will put them into the I and of the Lake; and Boat being in the River, 8 of them who were all then n Company, are put into the Island Naked, and without any Meat; where after four Days some died of Huner and Cold, but not this Woman nor any of her children; for next Day the two Boys found the Hide of a Beaft, which they and the Mother cast over them. ying on the Snow; the next Day a Boat goes by them, whom the poor Woman beseeches for Gods sake to arry her out of that place, but they being Irish resusid it; she then desires a little Bread, but they answer hey have none; then the begs a Coal of Fire, for the and some fuel in the Boat; and thus with some Chips hey made a Fire, and the Boys taking a piece of the lide, laid it upon the Coals, and began to gnaw it: ut alass without Divine Support what could this do! Thus they lived Ten Days without any visible Supplies, nd that good Woman profest, it was by Faith in God he lived; for the had no Bread but Ice and Snow, or any Drink but Water, but she thought God put nore substance into it, for it seemed as it were Clamny. The next Day a Boat carried her out to the fide of the Bandwater, where yet she had been lost, but that she could not indure to see her Children Die in her fight, and though the two Eoys were young, and fo familhed with Hunger that they had no strength, she perswaded them to go out of her fight under pretence of feeking fome Fire; the poor Children had not gone far but they faw two or three great Dogs eating a Man that had been killed; they were afraid of the Dogs, who needed not to have feared any thing, but to Live in such a Condition; but one of the Dogs came ronning and leaped upon one of the Children, without doing him hurt, and would ron a little before, and then tarry till the Children came to him; and so led them to a House where smoke appeared, which was an Irish Mans protected by the English in Antrim, where they were courtebully received, and the Mother fent for; and so were all miract outly preserved.

164 Admirable Deliverances from, &c.

To Concluse, innurierable are the Examples of the Almighties Protection and Deliverance of the innocent, and those that trust in him in all Ages. For as he Punisheth the wicked with severe Judgments, so he Protecteth those that sear him, by the Assistance of his Holy Aggels, to sulfil the Truth of what the Apostle Writes, Heb. r. 14 That they are ministring Spirits fent forth to minister to them who shall be heirs of Salvation.

CHAP. VII. Divine Goodness to Penisents, with the Dying Thoughts of Several Famous Men, concerning a suture State after this Lise: Likewise divers remarkable Instances to demonstrate the reality and certainty thereof.

W E read in the Holy Scriptures, that the Almighty relifieth the proud, but he giveth iveth Grace to the humble; and how compassionatey doth the perswade Men to Repentance and Refornation; Declaring, That who oever cometh unto him. e will in no wife call off; yea, though their Sins re of the greatest Magnitude, yet if they will forake their evil ways, he will have Mercy upon them nd fave them : How vain then are those desperate Men f our Age, who having leng continued in evil courses. re encouraged therein, by perswading themselves hat there is no future Account to be given in another World; which attempt is ridiculous as well as dangeous; fince besides the undeniable evidence of the Joly Scriptures, and the Divine Providence whereby he World was Created and Governed, it is apparent hat some Men of all Conditions, as Emperors, Kings, hilosophers, Statesmen, &c. of all Religions and pinions amongst Christians, and of all Tempers. hether Strict and Serious, or Loofe and Debauched. all Ages have left this great observation bedand nem, 'That upon Experience they have found that what vain Thoughts foever Men may in the heat of their Youth and Luft, entertain of Religion, vet they will sooner or later feel a Testimony which God hath given into every ones Breast; which will one day make them ferious, either by the inexpresfible Fears, Terrors and Agonies of a Troubled Mind. or by the inconceivable Peace, Joy and Comfort of a good Conscience; and of this we have many late well as former Examples; some of which I that inrt to manifest the Truth thereof.

I. St. Austin or Augustin, is a famous Instance of Rentance, as we find very lively described in his Confions: In my Youth, faith he, I even burnt to be tissified in these lower Pleasures, and what was it I lighted in, but to love and to be beloved? yea, I yied over in my Fornications and thou heldest thy ace; then wandred I still further from thee O my y, into other and more fruitless seed plots of sorws with a proud dejectedness, and an untyred wearingels; but didft thou indeed hold thy peace to me No surely, for whose but thine were the Words which my Mother, one of thy Faithful Children sang in m Ears? For I well remember the privately charged me and with much eagerness forewarned me, That should not commit simple Fornication, but especiall that I should not defile another Mans Wife. Th feemed no better than Womans Advice, which would be a shame for me to follow; but they wet thy Counsels indeed, and I knew it not, but ran head long with fuch flupid blindness, that it was ashame amongst my equals to be guilty of less impudence tha they were, whom I heard to boalt mightily of the Debaucheries, and glorying the more, the more beaf ly they had been; Yea, I took pleasure in commi ting Wickedness, not for the pleasure of the Act or ly, but for the praise and credit of it also; What worthy of dispraise if Vice be not? but I made m felf worse than indeed I was, that I might not b dispraised; and when I wanted opportunity to con mit that Naughtiness which should make me as be the worst, I would pretend I had done what I never d, that I might not be counted cowardly in being mocent, nor faint-hearted in being more chast then they : ehold with what Companions I walked the Streets of abylon, and wallowed my felf in the mire of it, as if & ed reposed in a Bed of Spices and most precious Oyntents; and my invisible Enemy seduced me to the very inter of fin, in that I ran into all manner of diffolutees, and practifed whatsoever I affected; a mist in the ean time depriving my fight, O my God, of the ightness of thy Truth. Surely thy Law, O Lord Dusheth Thievery, yea and this Law is so written in our earts that Iniquity it felf cannot blot it out: For what nief does willingly abide a man to fleat from him? not a rich Thief, tho' his fellow be driven to fleil on necessity: Yet had I desire to commit Thievery, d did it, compelled neither by franger nor poverty, t even through a cloyed aefs of well-doing, and a pamreducts of Iniquity; for I feele that of which I had eugh of my own, and much better; nor when I had done ed I to enjoy the thing I had foln, but only rejoycing the Theft it felf: A Pear-Tree there was in the chard next our Vineyard, well laden with Fruit, tho' much tempting either for colour or tafte: To the bing of this, a company of lewd young Fellows of us nt late one night (having according to our idle custom tinued in our Gaming Houses till that time) from ence we came loaden with Fruit, not for our own porishaes, but even to throw to the Hogs; and all we did not because we might do it, but because we ild. Behold my heart, O Lord, behold my heart, ch thou hast pity upon in the bottom of the bottom-Pit: For I most wretched young fellow, was unhapa the very entrance into my youth: It is true ? ed Chastity at thy hands, and said, give me Chastity Continency, but do not give it me yet, for I was d that thou wouldest hear me too foon, and too foon er me from my Difesse of Incontinency, which my e was rather to have fatisfied than extinguished. now was the day come wherein I was to be fit naked before my felf, and when mine own Conscience was to convince me, for I found a vast Tempest in my Soul, which hurried me into a Garden where I might be alone with my felf; at which time I was moti foberly mad, being fenfible enough what a piece of minery I at present was, but utterly ignorant how good I was shortly to grow; I sat me down fretted in Spirit, and angry at my felf with a most tempestuous Indignation; for that I went not about to make my Peace and League with thee my God, which all my bones cried out upon me to do, extolling it to the very Skies; upon which giving liberty to my wars, the floods of mine Eyes gushed out, which was an acceptable Sacrifice to thee, O Lord. and then I cried out, How long? How long, O Lord, wilt thou be angry for ever, fill to morrow, to morrow why not now? Wherefore in this very hour is there not an end put to my uncleanness. This I uttered weeping in the bitter contrition of my heart, when behold I heard a voice, as of a Boy or Child that seemed to come from some neighbouring house, which said in a singing tune, Take up and read, The up and read, which was often repeated. Hereupon I changed my countenance and began to confider, whether Children were used to sing any such words, but I could not remember to have ever heard the like; so drying up the violent Torrent of my Tears I got up, interpreting it that I was from God himself commanded to open the Book, and to read that Chapter which I should first light upon ; Hastily therefore I went where I had left the Apostles Book, and fnatching it up opened it, and in filence read that Chapter which I first cast mine eyes upon: Not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strift and envying, but put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the flesh to fulfil the Lusts thereof. No further would I read, nor needed I, for inflantly wit the end of this fentence, a Divine beam of Light, Com fort and Peace darted into my heart, and all the darkne of doubting vanished away, and thou, O my dear Lord didft the eby fo throughly convert me to thy felf as the I have no other hopes nor thoughts in this world but the

to Femilenis, Occ. thee; for which let my heart praise thee, and my tongue, yea, let all my bones lay, O Lord who is like unto thee, and do thou answer me and say unto my Soul, I am thy Salvation. St. Auft. Con. II. Sophronius Bishop of Jerusalem, delivereth the following History as an Infallible Truth to posterity; That Syncfius, who of a Philosopher became a Bishop, found at Cyrene Evagrius a Philosopher his old Acquaintance, fellow Student and intimate Friend, but an obstinate Heathen: Synefius was earnest with him to become a Christian, and following his Arguments for Religion very close, Evagrius discourses to this purpose, That to him it seemed but a meet fable and deceit that the Christian Religion teacheth Menthat this World shall have an end, and that all men shall rise again in these Bodies, and their Flesh be made immortal and incorruptible, and they shall so live for ever, and shall receive the reward of all that they have done in the Body; and that ie that hath pity on the poor lendeth to the Lord : And hat he that giveth to the poor and needy shall have reasure in Heaven, and shall receive an hundred fold rom Christ, together with eternal Life. Synesius affued him and proved by very cogent Arguments, that hele things were most certain, infomuch that being onverted thereby, he and his Family were baptized. Eagrius foon after brought Three Hundred pound in old to Synesius to be distributed among the poor, upn condition he would give him a Bill under his hand, nat Jesus Christ would repay him in another World, hich he did accordingly: Evagrius fell fick not long ter, and thinking he should die, ordered his Sons to it Synefius's Bill into his hand; after which he foon ed and was buried: About three days after, the Phisopher seemed to appear to Synesius in the night, and say to him, Come to my Sepulchre where I lie and ke the Bill, for I have received the Debt and am fatisd and for thy affurance I have written a discharge with y own hand. The Bishop told Evagries's Sons what he d feen, tho' he knew nothing of the Bill being put into hand, so they all go to the Sepulcher, and opening is H -2 found the Bill in the Dead Mans hand thus subscribed, Ego Evagrius, &c. I Evagrius the Philosopher, To the Holy Bishop Synesius Greeting, I have received the Debt which in this paper is written with thy hand, and am satisfied, neither have I any Action against thee for the Gold that I gave thee; and by thee to Christ our Saviour. Bax. Cru. the World Pres.

III. There was an entire Friendship between Michael Merchatus and Marcilus Ficinus, by reason of a mutable agreement in their Studies: It happened that thefe two discoursing of the State of Man after Death, when they could not agree in some particulars, they concluded, That which soever of them two should first Depart out of this Life, should (if possible) give an Account to the Survivor of the State of the other Life, and whether the Soul be immortal or not. This agreement being made and mutually sworn to, they departed: In a thort time after, while Michael Mercatus was one Morating early at his Study, he heard the noise of a Horse upon the Gallop, and stopping at the Door, he immediately heard the voice of his Friend Marcilus, crying out to him, O Michael, Michael, those things are true, they are true. - Michael wondring to hear his Friends voice; opened his Casement, where he saw the back part of him whom he had heard speak, in white, and Galloping away upon a white Horse: He called afeer him Marcilus, Marcilus and followed him with his Eye, but he vanished out of his fight. Michael amazed at this extraordinary accident, he inquired if any thing had happened to Marcilus, who lived at Florence some diffance thence, and found upon firitt enquiry, that be died at that very time when he was thus feen and heard by him. Wanlys Hift. Man. p. 88.

IV. About 1060. A great Doctor was buried at Paris, at the Interring of whom, when the Priest in the form then used, came to Responde mihi, Answer me, the Corps sat upright on the Bier, and to the amazement of all cried out, Justo Dei judicio accusatus sum, at the just Tribunal of God I am accused, lying down again. The attendants associated deserved the Funeral till next day, to fee the Issue of this strange accident, at which time a multitude met to observe the Event, when at the same words again repeated, the disturbed Body riseth again, and with the like hideous noise cried out, Justo Dei judicio Judicatus sum, Ly the just Judgment of God I am judged. The People yet more amazed, defered the Interment one day longer, when almost the whole City thronged to this strange Burial; and in the presence of them all, at the reciting of the fame words he rose up the third time and cried cut, Justo Deo Judicio condemnatus sum. By the just Judyment of God I am condemned; whereat as they were all affrighted, so Bruno a famous Docter in that University was seriously affected, and told them, That as they had formerly heard, so now they saw the Judgments of the Lord were unseaschable and past finding out, for this person whom we honoured for the flishnels of his Life, the modesty and unblamcablenels of his Conversation, cryeth out now, that he is condemned by the just Judgment of God. Dying Menswords. 196.

tii

V. Charles the 5th Emperor of Germany, K. of Spain and L. of the Netherlands, after 23 Pitcht Battles, 6 Triumphs, 4 Kingdoms won, and 8-Principalities added to his Dominions, which he Ruled over 14 years; yet at last refigned all, retired to his Devotion in a Monaftery, had his own Funeral celebrated before his Face, and left this Testimony of Christian Religion; That the fincere Profession thereof had in it those Sweets and Joys that Courts were Strangers to.

VI. Philip III. of Spain lying on his Death-Bed in 1621. fent thrice at midnight for Florentius his Confessor, who with the Provincial of Castile discoursed with him of approaching Death, exporting him to lubmit to Gods will, fo gravely, that the King could not chuse but weep, and after some intermission from tis Tears, and thanks for his wholsome Admonition, the King spake thus to him, Do you not remember that in your Sermon on Ashwednesday, you said that some of your Auditors might Die that Lent; this concerns me, H 3.

for lo my fatal hour is at hand, but shall I obtain Eternal Felicity? which words he uttered with great grief and trouble, adding likewise to his Confessor, You have not hit upon the right way of healing, is there no other Remedy? Which when he observed, the Confessor thought it of his Body, the King added, Ah, I am not folicitous for my Body, nor of my Temporal Difease, but of my Soul. The Confessor mournfully answered, I have done what I could, I must leave the rest to Gods Providence. Florentius then discoursed of Gods mercy, remembring his Majesty what he had done for the Honour and Worship of that God; to which the King replyed, Ah how happy were I, had I spent these Twenty-Three Years, wherein I have held my Kingdom, in a retirement. Florentius answered, That it would be very acceptable to God, if he would lay his Ringdom, his Majefly, his Life and his Salvation at the feet of his Crucified Saviour Josus Christ, and submit himself to his Will, Willingly; willingly will I do this (faid the Heart fick King) and from this moment do I lay all that God hath given me, my Dominion, Power, and my Life at the feet of Jesus Christ my Saviour, who was Crucified for me; and then among his last words he said to Florentius. Now really you have suggested to me very great comfort. Fair warning p. 105.

VII. Prince Henry Eldelt Son to K. James I. was Zealous in his love to Religion and Piety, and his Heart was bent, if he had lived, to have endeavoured to compound those Jars and Differences among Religious Men. He told the Dean of Rochester, That he thought that whereas he and others like him, did as usual look him in the Face when they came first into the Pulpit, their Countenance did as it were say to him, Sir, you must hear me diligently, you must have a care to observe what I say. He used to say, he knew no sport worth an Oath, and that he knew not what they call Puritan Preaching, but he loved that Preaching which went next his Heart, and spake as if they knew the mind of God. His last words were, O Christ thou art my Redeemer, and I know that thou hast Redeemed me; I wholly depend upon thy Providence and Mercy from the very bottom of my Heart; I commend my Soul into thy hand. A Person of Quality waiting on the Prince in his Sickness, who had been his constant Companion at Tennis, and asking how he did, he answered, Ah Tom, I in vain wish for that time I lost with thee and others in vain Recreation: He then added, Now my Soul be glad, for at all parts of this Prion the Lord hath set his Aid to loose thee, Head, Feet, Melt and Liver are sailing. Arise therefore and shake off thy Fetters, mount from the Body and go thy way. Out of his Life.

VIII. Hugo Grotius the greatest Scholar of this Age, after many Embassies abroad, and as many Transactions at home, after an exact survey of all the Hebrew, Greek and Latin Learning, after an unanswerable Treatife of the truth of the Christian Religion, and many other Elaborate Discourses in Divinity and other parts of Learning, concluded his Life with this Protestation, That he would give all his Learning and Honour for the plain Integrity and harmless Innocency of John Urick; who was a devout poor Man that spent Eight hours of his time in Prayer, Eight in Labour, and but Eight in Sleep and other necessaries. He also complained to another who admired his aftonishing Industry, Ah! Vitam perdidi, operose nihil agendo. Ah! I have loft my life in doing nothing Industriously; and gave this direction only to another that defired it, as knowing his great Wisdom and Learning, Be Serious. On his Death-Bed he sent for a Minister, professing himelf to be the poor Publican, saying, That he had nohing to trust to, but the Mercy of God in Chist Jesus, and wishing that all the World saw as much reason in. Religion as he did. Dying mens words, p. 162.

IX. Salmafius that Excellent French Scholar, wentut of the World with these words, Oh, I have lost a vorld of Time! Time that most precious thing in the World, whereof had I but one year longer, it should be spent in Davids Psalms and St. Pauls Episles; Shes, said he to those about him, mind the World seed and God more; all the Learning in the World without true Piety and the Fear of God is nothing worth: The sear of the Lord that is Wisdom; and to depart now Evil, that is Understanding. Ibidem. p. 161.

X. Sir F. Walfingham Secretary of State to Q. Elizabeth, toward the latter end of his Life writ thus to the L. Burleigh. We have lived long enough to our Country, to our Fortunes, to our Soveraign; it is high time we begin to live to our selves and to our God; in the multitude of Affairs that have passed through our hands, there must be some miscarriages, for which a whole Kingdom cannot make our Peace. And being observed to be melancholy, some Court humorists were tent to divert him. Ah! (faid Sir Francis) while we laugh, all things are serious round about us, God is serious when he preserveth us, and hath patience towards us; Christ is serious when he dyeth for us; the Holy Ghost is serious when he striveth with us; the Holy Scriptures are serious when they are read before us; Sacraments are serious when they are administred to us; The whole Creation is serious in serving God and us; those that are in Heaven and Hell are serious, and shall a Man that hath one foot in the Grave jest and laugh? Wan Hist. Man

XI. Sir T. Smith after he had many years ferved Q Eliza: as Secretary of State, a quarter of a year before he died, laid afide all publick Imployment, and discharging all his Worldly Affairs and Attendants, fent to two Reverend Divines, his good Friends, to draw him out of the word of God, the plainest and exactest way of making his peace with God, and living Godly in the present World; adding, That it was great pity Merkpew not, (at least did not feriously consider) to what end they were born into this World, till they are ready so go out of it. Fair warning, p. 368.

XII. Doctor Donne, a Person of as great Parts and Spirits as any this Nation ever beheld, when he was up on his Death-bed took this soletun farewel of his Friends repent of all my life, but especially that part of is which I spent not in communion with God and doing good. That Person in a dying hour shall wish himself not a Man, who hath not been a good Christian. Idem p. 164.

XIII. Sir Philip Sidney; a subject of England, but chosen King of Poland, whom Q. Esizabeth called her Philip, the Pr. of Orange called his Master, whose Friendship the Lord Brooks was so proud of, that he would have this to be part of his Epitaph. Here lyeth Bir Philip-Sidneys Friend; whose Death was lamented in Verse by the then Kings of France and Scotland, and the two Universities of England. This great Man lamented at his Death, the innocent vanity of his Arcadia, and to prevent the unlawful kindling of heats in others, would have committed it to the Flames, and left this farewel among his Friends; Love my Memory, cheish my Friends, their Faith to me may affare you they. ire honest; but above all govern your Will and Affections by the Will and Word of your Creator, and in me. pehold the end of this World, and all its Vanities. Ibid. E 126.

XIV. Sir Hen. Wotton, after many years Study with great proficiency in the University, his near Relation to the great Favourite the E. of Estex, his intimacy with the Duke of Tuscany, and James the 6th of Scotland, his Embassy to Holland, Germany, Venice, &c. was only ambitious of the Provosiship of Eaton, being definious to retire thither to enjoy his beloved Study and Devotion; saying often. That this was the happinest time of his Life, it being the utmost happiness which a Man ould attain to, to be at leisure to be and to do good; ever restecting on the spending of his former years without Tears, and would often say, How much time ave I to repent of, and how hitse to do it in. Ideal.

XV. Sir J.hn Mason, Privy Councellor to Hen. 3. and Edward 6. upon his Death-bed called for his Clark and Steward, to whom he spake on this purp ite; I have feen Five Princes and been Privy-Councellor to Four, I have seen the most observable matters in Foreign parts; and been present at most Transactions for 20 years together; and I have learned this after many years experience, that Seriousuess is the best Wisdom, Temperance the best Physick, and a good Conscience is the best Eflate; and were I to live again, I would change the Court for a Church, my Privy Counsellors bufiness and bustle for a Hermits Retirement, and the whole Life I lived in the Palace, for one hours enjoyment of God in the Chappel; all things else forsake me beside my God, my Duty and my Prayer. Ibid. p. 153.

XVI. Mr. Howard, (after E. of Northampton) being disturbed with Atheistical Suggestions, put them all off this way, if I could give any account how my felf or any thing elfe had a being without God, how there came so uniform and so constant a consent of Mankind of all Ages Tempers and Educations, (differing so much otherwife in their apprehensions) about the Being of a God, the Immortality of the Soul, and Religion, in which they could not likely either deceive fo many, or being fo many could not be deceived; I could then be an Atheift. And when it was urged that Religion was only a State Policy to keep Men in awe; he replyed, that he could not believe it, fince he was fenfible that the greatest Politicians have either sooner or later felt the power of Religion in the grievous lashes of their Consciences, and the dreadfulness of their Appreheusion about that state wherein they must live for ever. L dem. p. 151.

XVIII. Galeacius Carraciolus, Marquiss of Vico, of great Estate, powerful Relations, both in the Empero and Popes Court, (the last of which was his near Rela tion) notwithfranding the great Promifes and endearing Letters of his Kindred, the bitter Cries and Tears of hi Parents, his Wife and Children, the lofs of his Honou and Estate; yet broke through all these Temporal et gagements, forfook his Country and all that was dear t to go to Geneva and embrace a Reproached, De spised and Persecuted Gospel, chusing rather with Meses (to whom he was compared) to suffer Afflictions with the People of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of fin for a season, esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the Treasures of this World; because he had respect to the recompence of reward, and endured, a seeking him who is invisible. He used to say, That he should not look upon himself to be worthy to see the Face of God, if he did not prefer one hours communion with Christ before all the riches and pleasure of this World. Galeacine's Life.

XVIII. The late Earl of Rochester, though he spent a great part of his Life in the height of Atherim and Debauchery, yet upon his Dying-bed God was graciously pleased to hear the prayers of his near Relation and true Friends, so that he became an admirable Penitent. He was the Son of the Lord Wilmot, and a great proficient in Learning; He went to the University in 1660. when mad Joy and Debauchery for the return of King Charles II. had over-run the Nation, which had very ill effects upon him, so that he began to love those Disorders too much. After having travelled for some time, he returned back to Court, where falling into Company who delighted in those Excesses, he was at length entirely subdued by Intemperance; so that he confessed, for Five Years together he was continually Drunk, which led himto many Wild and Unaccountable things; and being a Person of Extraordinary Parts, he seemed to affect fomething fingular in his Impieties, as well as Writings, above the reach of other Men, taking all manner of pains to pervert others; nay so confirmed was he in Sin, that he Lived and almost Died a Martyr to it : The licentiousness of his Temper, with the briskness of his Wit, disposed him to love the Conversation of those who divided their time between Lewd Actions and Irregular Mirth, and fo he came to bend his Wit and Studies to support those ill principles of Atheism and Irreligion in himself and others: An Accident fell out about this time which confirmed him more in these courses, for going to Sea in 1665, there happened to be in the same Ship Mr. Montague and another Gentleman of Quality. These two, but especially the last, seemed perswaded That they should never return into England, and Mr. Montague suid, He was sure of it; upon which the E. of Rochester entred into an Engagement with the other Gentleman, not without Ceremonies of Religion, (Mr. Montague refusing it) That if either of them Died, he mould appear and give the other Notice of the Future State, if there were any; after which in a Fight with the Dutch, toward the latter end of the Action, the Gentleman fell on a fudden into fuch a trembling that he could scarce stand, and Mr. Montague going to hold him up, as they were in each others Arms, a Cannon Bullet killed him cut-right, and carried away Mr. Montagues Belly, so that he Died an hour after; but this Gentleman never appeared to the E. of Rochester afterward, which was a great fnare to him during his Life; after which he went on to commit all Iniquity with greediness. And yet even this desperate Sinner, that one would think had made a Covenant with Death, and was at an Agreement with Hell, and just upon the brink of them both, God to magnifie the riches of his Grace and Mercy, was pleased to fnatch him out of the Fire; for that falling into a great fit of Sickness, he laboured under strange Trouble and Conflicts of Mind, his Spirit being Wounded, and his Conscience sull of Terror, saying, If that God who dyed for great as well as leffer Sinners, did not speedily apply his infinite Mercies to his moor Soul, his wound was such that no Man could conceive or bear ; crying out, That he was the vileft wretch and Dog that the Sun shined upon, or the Earth bore, that he now faw his Error in not living up to that Reafon which God endued him with, and which he unworthily vilified and contemped, withing he had been a flarving Leaper crawling in a Ditch, that he had been a Link-Boy on a Beggar, or for his whole Life-time confined to a Dangeon, rather than to have finned against his God, and acknowledged that all the feeming abfurdities of Religion and the Holy Scriptures, and the Contradictions thereof, framed by Men, of corrupt and reprobate Judgments were now vanished, and the Excellency and Beauty thereof appeared, he being now come to receive the Truth in the Love of it; and upon his Death-bed gave command to his Reverend Chaplain, to Preach abroad, and let all Men know how severely God had disciplined him for his Sins by his Afflicting hand, that his Sufferings were most just, though he had laid ten thousand times more upon him; and how God had laid on one stripe upon another, because of his grievous Provocations, till he had brought him home to himself; and declaring, that from the bottom of his Soul he did detest and abhor the whole course of his former wicked Life; and admired the goodness of God who had given him a true sense of his pernitious Opinions and vile Practices, warning all Men in the name of God, and as they regard the welfare of their Souls no more to deny his Being or his Providence, or despite his Goodness; no more to make a mock of Sin, or contemn the pure and excellent Religion of the ever bleffed Redeemer; through whose Merits alone he who was one of the greatest Sinners, did yet hope for Mercy and Forgivenels; and in this Penitent and Religious temper and frame of Spirit, he some time after gave up the Ghoft. E. of Rochesters Life and Sermon.

XIX. I shall conclude with some brief Remarks out of the Life of the Excellent L. Chief Justice Hales. This Gentleman was descended rather from a Good than a Noble Family, and about seventeen went to Oxford, where he was placed under an able Tutor, and was an extraordinary proficient; but the Stage Plays coming thithe he was so corrupted by seeing many Plays, that he inost wholly forsook his Studies, of which mischief being sensible, he at his coming to London resolved never to see a Play again, to which he constantly adhered; but one Corruption of the Mind draws another, so that he sell into many youthful Vanities, and kept company with some vain People, till a sad accident drove him from it; or he with other young Persons, being invited out of 80 Divine Goodness to Penitents, &c.

Town to be Merry, one of the Company called for to much Wice, and went on in such excess, that (tho' Mr. Hales would have prevented it) be fell down as dead before them, to that all prefent were not a little affrighted, who did what they could to bring him to himself again, This did particularly affect Mr. Hales, who went into another Room, and thurring the Doot fell upon his knees, and prayed earnefuly to God both for his Friend, I hat he might be reftored to Life again, and that himself might be forgiven for giving such countenance to such Excels, and yowed to God that he would never again keep Company in that manner, inor drink a Health while he lived.

His Fr end recovered, and he most Religiously kept his Vow till his Dying Day; and the pressed to drink Healths, particularly King Charles the II. used by too many as a diffinguishing mark of Loyalty, and drew many into Excel after his Restauration; yet he would never dispense with his vow, though he was roughly treated for it by some hot and indifcreet Men; This wrought such an entire change on him, that he forfook all vain Company, and divided himfelf between the Duties of Religion, and the Studies of his Profession, in the former whereof he was to regular, that for 36 years he never once failed of going to Churchon the Lords day, and though he was acquainted with all forts of Learning, yet he seemed to have made the Study of Divinity the chiefest of all others; he was a very merciful and upright Judge. and would hear no caules but in open Court, which a great Peer complained off to the King, who bid him content himself that he was no worse used, and said, he verily be leved that he would use himself no better if he had gone to follicite him in any of his own Causes; He made it as a Rule to himfelf, That in the Administration of Judice, he was intrufted for God, the King and Country, and therefore ought to do it Uprighrly, Deliberately and Resolutely; and yet was much concerned that though it was his duty to ferve in the Office he was called to, yet was it a great confiamer of that little time we have here, which he thought might be better spent in a Pious Contemplative Life, and a due Provision for Eternity. J. Hales Life.

To conclude, The most Learned, Wife and Serious in all Ages have concurred in their Judgments, at to a future State, and have thought is the greatest Wildom in the World to be Religious, and to work out their Salvation with Fear and Trembling.

FINIS.

BOOKS Printed for Nath. Crouch at the Bell in the Poultry near Cheapside.

History.

Remarkable Transactions from Julius Casar; adorned with Poems and the Picture of every Monarch from K. Will. the Conqueror to this time. With a Lift of the Nobility, the number of the Lords and Commons in both Houses of Parliament, and other useful particulars. Price One Shilling.

2. THE History of the House of Orange: Or, a Relation of the Magnanimous Atchievements of the Renowned Predecessors of K. Will. 3. and likewise of his own Heroick Actions, till the late Glorious Revolution. Together with the History of K. William and Q. Mary, being an Account of the most remarkable passages in their Reign. By R. B. price One Shilling.

3. THE History of the two late Kings Charles II. and James II. and of the most observable passages during their Reigns, and the secret French and Popish Intrigues in those Times. Price One Shilling.

4. THE History of Oliver Cromwel Lord Protector, being an Impartial Account of all the Battles, Sieges, dre wherein he was ingaged in England, Scotland and Ireland, and of his Civil Administration when he was in Supream Dignity, till his Death. Adorned with Pictures. By R. B. Price One Shilling.

5. THE Wars in England, Scotland and Ireland, containing an Impartial Account of all the Battles, Sieges and other remarkable Transactions, Revolutions and Accidents in the Reign of K. Charles I.

1625. Price One Shilling.

6. I Istorical Remarks and Observations of the Ancient and present State of London and Westminster; shewing the Foundation, Walls, Gates, Towers, Bridges, Churches, Rivers, Wards, Halls, Companies, Government, Courts, Hospitals, Schools, Inns of Courts, Charters, Franchises, and Priviledges thereof; with an account of the most remarkable Accidents; as to Wars.

Fires, Plagues, and other Occurrences, for above nine hundred years past, in and about these Cities, Illustrated with the Arms of the 65 Companies of London, and the time of their Incorporating. price is.

A Dmirable Curiofities, Rarities and Wonders in England, Scotland, and Ireland, or an account of many remarkable Persons and Places, and likewise of the Battles, Sieges, prodigious Earthquakes, Tempefts, Inundations, Thunders, Lightnings, Fires, Murders, and other confiderable Occurrences, and Accidents for many hundred years past. Together with the natural and artificial Rarities in every County in England, with several Pictures. price one shilling.

8. THE Hiftery of the Kingdom of Scotland, containing an Account of all the Wars, Oc. Revolutions, and State Intrigues, during the Reigns of 72 Kings and Queens to this time. Intermixt with variety of Accidents and Events. And a Lift of the present Nobility of that Kingdom, Illustrated with picturess

Dr. I S.

9. THE History of the Kingdom of Ireland, and of all the Battles, Sieges, and other memorable Passages during the late Wars till its entire Reduction by K. Will. 2. With a Relation of the Aucient Inhabitants and Conquest of that Nation by K. Henry 2. The Horrid Rebellion in 1641. and the Popish and Arbitrary deligns in the last Reigns. pr. one shilling.

10. THE History of the Principality of Wales in three parts : Containing, 1. An Account of the Ancient Kings and Princes of Brittain and Wales, till the final extinguishing of the Royal Brittish Line. 2. Remarks upon the Lives of all the Princes of Wales of the Royal Families of England from King Edward I. to this time; particularly of Edward the black Prince of Wales, who with 30000 English defeated an Army of 100000 French at Creffy; and at Poiltiers, with 10000 beat 80000, and took John the French K. Prifoner. Also of Kenry of Monmouth (afterward K. Henry V.) who with 13000 routed 90000 French, whose Son Henry and fold by Nath. Crouch.

Henry VI. was Crowned K. of France at Paris. 2. Remarks on the most memorable Persons, Places, and Passages for many hundred years past: With the Birth and Actions of Merlin the Welch Prophet. And the Natural and Artificial Rarities in every County. price one shilling.

11. THE Unfortunate Court-Favourites of England, Exemplified in some Remarks upon the Lives, Actions and Fatal Fall of divers great Men who have been Favourites to several English Kings and Queens. Namely, 1. Peirce Gaveston Favourite to K. Edward II. 2. Hugh Spencer, the Father and Son, both Favourites to King Edward II. 2. Roger Mortimer Favourite to Q. Isabel, Mother to K. Edward illi. with their private Amours, &c. 4. H. Stafford Favourite to Crookback Richard, with that Kings secret intrigues for usurping the Crown, and murdering his Nephews. Likewife the Character of Jane Shore by Sir T. More who saw her. g. Cardinal Woolsey. 6. T. L. Cromwel, both Favourites to King Henry VIII. 7. E. of Effex Favourite to Q. Eliz. 8. D. of Bucks Favourite to K. James I. and K. Charles I. 9. E. of Strafford, Favourite to K Charles I. With all their pictures. price 1 s.

12. THE English Empire in America : Or, a prospect of the Dominions of the Crown of Eng in the West Indies. Namely, New-foundland, New-England, New-Tork, New Fersey, Pensylvania, Mary land, Virginia, Carolina, Bermudas, Berbuda, Anguilla, Montserrat, Dominica, St. Vincent, Antego, Mevis or Nevis, St. Christopers, Barbadoes, and Jamaica: With an Account of their Discovery, Situation and Product : The Religion and Manners of the Indians, &c. To which is prefixed a Relation of the discovery of the New World, and the Remarkable Voyages of Sebastian Cabot, C. Frobisher, C. Davis, C. Weymouth, C. Hull, C. Hudson, Sir T. Cavendish, the Earl of Cumberland, Sir W. Rawleigh, and other English Worthies. With Pictures of the strange Fruits, Birds, Fishes, Insects, Serpents and Monsters found in those parts of the World, price as.

13. THE English Acquisitions in Guinea and East-India, Containing 1. The several Forts and Factories of the Royal African Company, from Sally in South-Barbary to the Cape of Good-Hope in Africa. 2. The Forts and Factories of the Honourable East-India Company in Persia; the Empire of the Great Mogol; the Kingdom of China, and the Isle of Sumatra. A Description of St. Helena; and the wonderful Voyage of Domingo Gonfales, the little Spaniard, to the World in the Moon; an ingenious Fancy, writ by a Learned Bishop. The Life and Doctrines of Mahomet the Grand Imposture. The Journey of several Englishmen to the top of Pike Teneriff in the Canaries; accounted one of the highest Mountains in the World. The Travels of The. Coriat an Englishman to Greece, Ægypt, Jerusalem, Babylon, Mount Ararat, Armenia, Persia, and Cambaja in the Mogols Country, where he died. With an Account of the Natives of all these Countries, their Religion, Government, Trade, Marriages, Funerals, strange Customs, &c. Also the Birds, Beasts, Serpents, Monsters and strange Creatures found therein, with mamy other Memorable Remarks. With Pictures, pr. 1 s.

14. HE English Hero: Or, Sir Francis Drake Revived. Being a full Account of the Voyages, Adventures, and Atchievements, of that Renowned Commander. As 1, His Voyage in 1572. to Nombre de Dios in the West-Indies, where they saw a Pile of Bars of Silver near 70 foot long, 10 foot broad, and 12 foot high. 2. His incompassing the whole World in 1577, in two years and 10 months, gaining a valt quantity of Gold and Silver. 3. His Voyage into America in 1585. And taking the Towns of St Jago, St. Domingo, Carthagena, and St. Augustine. 4. His last Voyage into these Countries in 1595. With his Death and Burial. Revised, Corrected, Enlarged, and Beautified with Pictures. By R. B. price one shilling.

15. WO Journeys to Jerusalem; containing sirst, an Account of the Travels of 2 English Pilgrims some years since, and what Accidents befel them and fold by Nath. Crouch.

n their Journey to Ferusalem, Grand Cairo, Alexandria, Gc. II. The Travels of 14 English-men in 1669. with he Antiquities, Monuments, and memorable places mentioned in Scripture. To which are prefixed, Menorable Remarks on the antient and modern State of he Jewish Nation: As, 1. A Description of the Holy and, its Scituation, Fertility, Gc. 2. The several Capivities of the Jews. 3. Probable Conjectures what is ecome of the Ten Tribes carried Captive by the Afyrians, with divers pertinent Relations pursuant thereo. 4. The State of the lews fince their extermination, vith the present condition of Palestine. 5. of the Sepuagint, or 70 Jewish Interpreters of the Law of Moses. ogether with a Relation of the great Council of the eve in Hungary in 1650. to examine the Scriptures oncerning Christ. Written by S. B. an Eye-witness. 'he wonderful delusion of the Jews by a false Christ t Smyrna, 1666. The final extirpation of the Jews in erfia the same year, and the occasion thereof. The roccedings between the Jews and O. Cromwel L. Prot. 1655. The Epifile of Agbarus to our Saviour, with is Antwer. Beautified with pictures pr. 1 s.

Men: With the strange Events, and signal Mutions and Changes in the Fortunes of divers Illustrias Places and Persons in all Ages; being an Account a multitude of stupendious Revolutions, Accidents, id observable Matters in divers States and Provinces troughout the World. With pictures, pr. 15.

THE History of the 9 Worthies of the World, three whereof were Gentiles, 1. Hestor Son of chanus K. of Troy. 2. Alexander the Great K. of Madon. 3. Julius Casar first Emperor of Rome. Three was. 4. Joshua C. General of Israel. 5. David K. of wael. 6. Judas Maccabeus a valiant Jewish Commanar against Antiochus. Three Christians. 7. Arthur K. Brittain. 8. Charles the Great K. of France, and Emfor of Germany. 9. Godfrey of Bullen K. of Jerusalem. ing an Account of their Lives and Victories. With poems, poems, and the picture of each Worthy. By R. B. pr. One Shilling.

18. Emile Excellency: Or, The Ladies Glory. Illuftrated in the Lives of 9 famous Women. A dorned with poems and pictures. pr. 1 s.

19. 7 7 Onderful Prodigies of Judgment and Mercy discovered in above 200 Memorable Histories containing. 1. Dreadful Judgments upon Atheifts Blasphemers, perjured Villains, &c. As of feveral for fworn Wretches carried away by the Devil, and how an horrid Blasphemer was turned into a black Dog, & 2. The miserable ends of many Magicians, Witches Conjuters, &c. with divers strange Apparitions and Illusions of the Devil. a. Remarkable predictions and presages of approaching Death, and how the Rvent ha been answerable. 4. The wicked Lives and woful Death of several Popes, &c. 5. Fearful Judgments on blood Tyrants, Murderers, &c. also how Popiel King of Po land, (a cruel Tyrant) his Queen and Children wer devoured by Rats; and how a Town near Tripoly is Barbary, with the Men, Women, Children, Beafts Trees, Walls, Rooms, Cats, Dogs, Mice, and all tha belong'd to the place were turned into perfect Stone (to be seen at this day) for the horrid Crimes of th Inhabitants, &c. 6. Admirable Deliverances from im minent Dangers, and deplorable Diffresses at Sea and Land. Liftly Divine Goodness to Penitents, with th dying Thoughts of feveral famous Men concerning a fu ture State. With pictures. price 1 s.

20 Norallel'd Varieties: Or, the matchless Action and Passions of Mankind display'd, in nea 300 notable Instances and Examples, discovering the Transcendent Effects: 1. Of Love, Friendship and Gratitude. 2. Of Magnanimity, Courage and Fidelity. 30f Chassist, Temperance and Humility. And on the contrary, the Tremendous Consequences. 4. Of Hatred Revenge and Ingratitude. 5. Of Cowardice, Barbarity and Treachery. 6. Of Unchassisty, Intemperance and Ambition and Jold by Nath Crouch.

Imbellithed with Figures. price 1 s.

THE Kingdom of Darkness: Or, the History of Demons, Spectors, Witches, Apparitions and ther supernatural Delusions and Malicious Impostures the Devil: Containing near 80 memorable Relators, Foreign and Domestick, Ancient and Modern ollected from undoubted Verity. With a Preface gainst the Sadduces and Atherits of this Age, Gr. With Stures, price 1 s.

Ultrrizing Miracles of Nature and Art in two parts: containing, 1. Miracles of Nature: 1, the wonderful Signs and prodigious Afpects and ppearances in the Heavens, Earth and Sea; with an ecount of the most famous Comets, and other Progies from the Birth of Christ to this time. 2. Miracles Art, describing the most magnificent Buildings, and ther curious Inventions in all Ages, with the 7 Woners of the World, and many other Structures and Ra-ties. Beautified with pictures. price I s.

Account of the most remarkable Earthquakes om the Creation to this time, particularly in Naples, mirna, Jamaica, England and Sicily; with a Deription of Mount Arna, and several other late Accients, price One Shilling.

ents. price One Shilling.
Emorable Accidents, and unheard of Transactions, containing an Account of several range Events which have happened in divers Countries this last Age. price 1 s.

Artyrs in Flames: Or, The History of Popery; Displaying the Horrid Persecutions of Cruesties exercised upon Protestants for many popers past to this time. I. In Piedmont, with the istory of the Vaudois, and their great Successes ainst the French. 2. In France, with the Massacre Paris, and the late crues persecutions in that Kingman. 3. In the principality of Orange till 1697. In Bohemia. 5. In Hungary and the Palatinate in 1698, 1699. 6. In Poland, Lithuania, Italy and Spain, ith the bloody Inquisition. 7. In Portugal, Holland, and and Flanders. 8. In Scotland and Ireland, with the Massacre in 1641. 9. In England, containing an Account of the Martyrs in the Reign of K. Henry 8. and Q. Mary. The Spanish Invasion 1588. Guppowder Treason 1605. The burning of London 1666. The Horrid Popish-Plot, and Marther of Sir Edmundbury Godfrey, 1678. The detestable Conspiracy of Granual a Frenchman 1692. and of Sir W. Perkins, Sir John Friend, Charneck, &c. in 1695. with their Tryals and Executions Also God's Judgments upon persecutors. With pictures. pr. 15.

Books Printed for

Miscellanies:

26. Delights for the Ingenious; in above so felect Emblems, Divine and Moral, curiously ingraven on Copper-plates, with 50 delightful Poems and Lots for the lively Illustration of each Emblem: To which is prefixed a Poem, intituled Majesty in Misery: Or, an Imploration of the K. of Kings, written by K. Charles I. in Carisbrook-Castle in the Isle of Wight, 1648. with a curious Emblem. price 2 s. 6 d. 27. Xcellent Contemplations, Divine and Moral, of his Life, his Letters to his Lady, and his last Speech.

Also the Speeches of D. Hamilton, and the Earl of Holland, who suffered with him. price 1 s.

28. Inter Evenings Entertainments, in two parts; Containing, 1. Ten pleasant Relations of many notable Accidents. 2. Fifty ingenious Riddles, with Explanations, Observations and Morals, upon each. Enlivened with above 60 pictures, for illustrating every Story and Riddle. price 1 s.

29. E Sops Fables in Profe and Verse, with pictures and proper Morals to every Fable; some very pertinent to the present Times. price 1 s.

Divinity.

30. THE Divine Banquet: Or, Sacramental Devotions, confifting of Morning and Evening Prayers, Contemplations and Hymns for every Day in the Week, in order to a more folemn preparation for the

£116

and fold by Nath. Crouch.

yorthy Receiving of the Holy Communion. With curious Sculptures, proper to the feveral parts Graces. Imprimatur, Z. Isham, R. P. D. Henry London, price i s.

Guide to Eternal Glory: Or, brief Directions to all Christians how to attain Everlasting tion, price 1 s.

Ouths Divine Pastime in two parts, containing 1 75 remarkable Scripture Histories, turned English Verse. With 75 pictures proper to each y; very delightful for the vertuous imploying the nt Hours of young Persons, and preventing vici-Divertisements. With Scripture Hymns on divers fions. price I s.

THE Young Man's Calling : Or, the whole Duty of Youth, in a serious and compassionate ress to all young Persons to remember their Creain the days of their Youth. Together with Reks upon the Lives of several excellent young perof both Sexes, antient as well as modern, who e been famous for Vertue and Piety in their geneons. Namely. On the Lives of Isaac and Foseph in ir Youth. On the Martyrdom of the 7 Sons and ir Mother. Of Romanus a young Nobleman, and of ers Holy Virgins and Martyrs. On the Lives of K. ward 6. Q. Jane, and Q. Elizabeth in her Youth. Of nce Henry, eldeft Son to K. James I. and the young Harrington. With 13 curious pictures, illustrating several Histories. price 1 s. 6 d.

THE Vanity of the Life of Man, represented in the seven several Stages thereof; with pictures d poems, exposing the folly of every Age. Togeer with several other poems and pictures, very use-for instructing young persons. By R. B. price 6 d.

A Natichrist Stormed: Or, the Church of Rome proved to be Mystery Babylon the Great hore, Rev. 17. by undeniable Arguments, with the dgment of many Ancient and Modern Divines, of the e and final ruin of the Beast and Babylon, proving it will be in this present Age; Also many strange predictions relating to these Times. By B. Leach, pc. 135. THE Devout Souls Daily Exercise in Prayer Contemplations and Praifes, containing Devotions for Morning, Noon and Night, for every Da in the Week; with Prayers before, at, and after the Holy Communion: With Graces and Thanksgiving before and after Meat. By R. B. price 6 d.

37. Acramental Meditations upon divers Select Place of Scripture, wherein believers are affished in preparing their Hearts, and exciting their Affections and Graces when they draw night to God, in that most away ful and solemn Ordinance of the Lord's Supper. B

John Flavel late Minister in Devon. price 1 s. 28. The Acob wrestling with God, and prevailing: O of Faith in Prayer: By T. Vaylor, formerly Minister a

St. Edmunds-Bury. price one shilling.

Beaven upon Earth: Or, Good News for repeating Sinners. Being an Account of the remarkable Experiences and Evidences of many eminent Christians in leveral Declarations made by them upon Solemn Occasions. with the Memorable Conversion, exemplary Repentance, and dying Expressions of the late Earl of Rochester. Approved of as very necessary for confirming poor Doubting Believers. By W. Dyer, Minister of the Gospel. price as.

4°C Trifts Eumous Titles, the Second Part, containing several significant Names, Titles and Similitudes, whereby our Lord Jesus Chift is described in the Ho'y Scriptures, namely, 1. The great Strepherd, 2. The Power of God. 3. The Wildom of Cod. 4. The Glory of his Reople S. The Light of the World. 6. The Gift of God. And 7. The dopo of Salvation. In 7 Sermons is reached in and about the Civil of Oston. Purfuant to the Design of the Eight Part formerly Published. By W. Dyer.

lare Minister of the Gofpel. Price One Shilling.

41. THE Welcome Communicant; containing brief Directions to the weak of Christians have to preceed from one Grace to another, according to the Rule of the Holy Scriptsfree, that so they may come with Cheersains and Acceptance to the Lords Table. The her with Devotions and Prayers, before, as, and after the Receiving the Holy Communical By A. H. D. D. Price in Prayer.

